From the testimony of Pierre S. du Pont, President of the company, relative to the dismissal of Alfred I. du Pont from the Vice Presidency.—I had felt from about the Summer or the Autumn of 1914, that the company was not getting co-operation from * * * Alfred I. du Pont; * * * In the case of Alfred I. du Pont it dated prior to that, I believe—I know. The question of the purchase of this stock raised grave suspicions in my mind. The plan of campaign was not one which was open and above board, not one which a Director honestly interested in the company's affairs, would have taken. The news of this purchase was published in the papers, but no action was taken with reference to bringing the matter before the Board of Directors or in any official way until I myself acted. After that whole question had been settled by the board, I learned indirectly that Alfred du Pont was not acting openly and aboveboard. I was told by one of the Directors of the company that he had made serious charges against the principal men in the company which I felt positive—which I know were not true, and that he had also made similar statements to other men, though they did not tell me that directly—one man only told me of those charges. Alfred I du Pont some time prior to that had made serious charges, and very unwarranted charges, against T. C. du Pont, who was then President of the company, to which I immediately took exception, and to which he never made proper retraction.

I learned later on that Alfred du Pont had, in pursuance of a plan to keep this trouble going, tried to interest the Department of Justice in Washington, at least the Department of Justice had been solicited by somebody, and they refused to state whether or not it was Alfred I. du Pont, but I had every reason to believe that it was.

Mr. du Pont added that later he heard that Alfred I. du Pont and another Director were acting against the company's interests, and, after warning them, advocated their defeat for re-election to the board, and they were defeated.

From the testimony of John J. Raskob, Treasurer of the company, on cross-examination concerning the removal of Alfred I. du Pont from the Vice Presidency.—It was due to his lack of co-operation. We had heard many tales, a great many of which we had very good reason to believe, about his calling men to office, important men in the company, and making statements to them that were entirely out of line with any harmonious co-operation with the officials of the company, and I remember one of these statement made to one of the men, as I was told it, was that Alfred I. du Pont had said to him that Pierre du Pont was just squandering the company's money, that a few carpenters at one of our plants had struck, and Pierre du Pont immediately got panicstricken and increased the wages of all our employes 20 per cent., whereas the fact of the matter is that the heads of different operative departments, in order to gain the full co-operation of all of the men and allow them to participate in some of the earnings of the company if we were successful in carrying out what we had undertaken to carry out, had granted those men, from common laborers up, a horizontal increase of 20 per cent. Following that, the Executive Committee of the company increased the salaries of all of the employes of the company up to but not including members of the Executive Committee, 20 per cent., so that Mr. du Pont's statement that Pierre du Pont was panicstricken and had increased wages was absolutely false, although Mr. du Pont did fully concur with the heads of operating departments and with the Executive Committee in the belief that it was for the best interest of the company to take that action. * * * I joined in voting to remove Alfred du Pont as Vice President and member of the Finance Committee, for his thorough lack of co-operation with the company and creating dissension, which was I felt being felt among the men, but a time when we could absolutely not afford to have anything but the whole-hearted co-operation of all our employes.

OF WHAT use are a million Americans in France if their food, clothing and supplies are stalled in the railroad terminals throughout the United States? They must be transported to the seaboard.

Transporting goods to feed, clothe and equip our nation, its navy, its armies and our allies, is the most colossal task we have ever faced.

Every transportation unit must be used to the limit—the motor truck has become as necessary as the railroad.

Use your motor trucks for city to city hauling; to bring produce from the farms to the towns; to deliver merchandise to the door of the user; to speed up the loading and unloading of railroad cars and ships—to facilitate every phase of transportation.

The whole world is relying on motor trucks to do efficient and speedy work.

The story of the Russian immigrant in America, the prologue and first act of which Mary Antin told in semi-novelistic form in "The Land of Promise," has been dramatized in a prologue and three acts by Fannie Hurst and Harriet Ford. Where Miss Antin left her heroine just emerging from what is sometimes called the Ghetto, "The Land of the Free" develops a love story, a marriage, and the subsequent conflict between the families of the Russian bride and the American bridegroom. And it brings this conflict to an ostensibly happy ending.

The result leaves something to be desired as drama, being the sketchy and disconnected product which our forefathers knew as chronicle history; but it is interesting none the less, and it affords Florence Nash an opportunity to develop talents of which her most fervent admirers have scarcely thought her possessed. Hitherto she has been mainly identified with Broadway types, accentuated with racy, laughable slang and vivid, hoydenish vitality. Her slang is now replaced by a broken English, no less racy and amusing; but her hoydenish vitality has been enlarged and transfigured into the sphere of elemental, peasant passions. It needed only a more consistent and sustained dramatic background to lift the performance to a very high plane of creative art.

Of the likelihood of the play, especially in the later scenes, it would be easy to make light. This Sonya, arriving in New York, finds her sister the mistress of a sweatshop proprietor. Being befriended altruistically by a young novelist and social worker of aristocratic family, she throws herself at his head; announces her engagement to him publicly before he has so much as hinted a proposal; marries him, and takes her erring sister to live with him in his rooms in Washington Square, and finally lands her peasant mother also upon his neck. And she gets away with it. His mother, at first glacially snobbish, ends by accepting the whole fam-damily.

These are the literal facts, as they appear in the theatre. If they seem preposterous, it is probably the fault of the telescopic nature of the play—telescopic in the sense of being collapsed to one-third of its proper extension. In a play that was truly telescopic, seeing the far end clearly, it is not unlikely that it might all be made convincing. A character such as Miss Nash's Sonya can accomplish wonders. Be that as it may, the two later acts had best be left out of any sympathetic reckoning.

The scene of Sonya's arrival in her sister's flat is quite another matter. Her struggle to get past Ellis Island, vividly seen in its aftermath of excitement; her joy in the bigness and splendor of New York; her childish delight in the luxury of the sister's lace curtains—all these are revealed in a slang of the Bowery as vivid and picturesque as the Broadway slang to which Miss Nash has been addicted.

And then comes the scene in which she realizes the truth as to her sister's life. Flashed upon a background of Jewish morality and family affection, it develops a tragic intensity, a mingling of horror and sisterly love, superlatively true and fine. And Miss Nash rose to her opportunities with an art as inerrant and strong as it was simple. For a moment her performance was on the heights.

To the last, in fact, her performance seemed limited only by the inadequacy of the scenes she had to work with. Quick to anger, she was a "hell-cat" in defense of righteousness. Quick to love, she wooed her "friend husband" with a charm that made his omission of a proposal seem the gravest delinquency. Her struggles to speak pure English, tempered always by her racy delight in Bowery idiom, were a never-failing source of joy. "I can only talk it like I hear it," she laments, "and look it like I see it." Even in the last act, where she conquers everything else, she despairs of her speech. "English like you speak it," she says to her husband, "is in the blood, not in the grammar."

The numerous company were on the whole very capable. As Sonya's errant sister, Alice Lindahl was emotionally sincere and affecting. Giorgio Majeroni and Richard Tabor did excellent character work as two Bowery sweatshop criminals. Leslie Austin made an almost credible person of the colorless young novelist husband.

MAYOR TAKES HAND IN MILK INQUIRY

Appoints Committee of Experts to Learn the Cause of Advance in Prices.

The investigation into the high price of milk in this city and the responsibility of the Dairymen's League was broadened yesterday when Mayor Mitchel appointed a committee to conduct an inquiry into the subject at "the earliest possible moment." At the same time Alderman John J. Ryan of the Coney Island district offered a resolution before the Board of Aldermen proposing that there be an Aldermanic inquiry into milk prices.

The inquiry which Assistant District Attorney James E. Smith is conducting to ascertain whether the Dairymen's League, through its officers, violated the Donnelly anti-trust law in fixing prices in restraint of trade, had reached a point yesterday when it was intimated that the facts brought out justified the placing of evidence before the Grand Jury. Several milk dealers were interrogated, and the New York Milk Conference Board, the organization of the dealers, furnished the District Attorney with information tending to show that it had been a case with the dealers of either buying at the prices asked by the league or going out of business.

The request for the Mayor to start an inquiry into the milk subject came to the Mayor from Dr. Haven Emerson, Commissioner of Health, who suggested as the committee on inquiry Dr. Charles E. North, Secretary of the National Commission of Milk Standards; George W. Love, Chairman of the Committee on Foods of the Merchants' Association; E. B. Lewis, member of the Advisory Committee of the Department of Health; Bailey B. Burritt, General Director of the Association for Improving the Condition of the Poor, and Hugh Frayne, of the American Federation of Labor.

REACH AGREEMENT ON COAL PROBLEM

Bituminous Operators Consent to Reduced Demands of the Miners for Higher Wages.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 2.—Operators and miners in the central competitive bituminous coal district reached a compromise tonight in connection with demands for increased wages, and, it is understood, will now present the question to Fuel Administrator Garfield. The operators, it was said, were willing to grant a substantial increase in wages, but both parties agreed that it could not be done without shutting down a large number of mines and thus decreasing production, unless the Government granted higher rates than those named by President Wilson for coal at the mines.

The miners demanded an additional 15 cents a ton for the men who mined the coal, but received only 10 cents. A demand for $1.90 a day more for "day labor" was reduced to $1.50. Operators and miners agreed to the 20 per cent. increase for "dead work" and yardage. The only point left unsettled was the period for which the contract should run, the miners seeking a two years' agreement, while the operators voted for a contract to hold until sixty days after the war.

GOVERNMENT SENDS COHALAN EVIDENCE

Governor Informed It Is on the Way, and May, if Necessary, Call Extraordinary Session.

SENATE ASKS FOR FACTS

Adopts Wellington Resolution Unanimously—Similar Motion Blocked in Assembly by Goldstein.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, Oct. 2.—Soon after the opening gavel fell in the Senate today that body adopted the Wellington resolution, introduced last night, to pave the way for a legislative inquiry into the conduct of Supreme Court Justice Daniel F. Cohalan of New York City.

The resolution calls upon the Federal Government to supply to the Governor and the Senate any evidence in its possession to sustain the allegation that Justice Cohalan gave advice to agents of the German Government which was helpful to them in fomenting rebellion in Ireland, that he urged the commission of acts in violation of international law, and in other ways conducted himself so as "to render him an unfit person to continue to be a Justice of the Supreme Court of the State of New York."

Fragmentary information on the subject from official sources in Washington has already been given to the public.

This evening Governor Whitman received word that the desired information, transmitted by United States Attorney General Gregory, was already on its way to Albany. When this information reached the Governor the Legislature had adjourned sine die. There was a hurried conference between the Governor and Senator J. Henry Walters, Chairman of the Senate Judiciary Committee, which would be in charge of any investigation of Justice Cohalan that might result from the Senate action today.

After the conference it was learned that should the Governor find the information transmitted of sufficiently grave importance to justify such a course, the Legislature would be called back into extraordinary session again without delay. If not it is likely that legislative action will be deferred until after election. The Governor expects to receive the information sent from Washington tomorrow, and may decide upon the course to follow then.

In the Assembly, Perry M. Armstrong, a Democrat, representing the Nineteenth New York district, offered a resolution following in a general way the language used in the resolution adopted by the Senate. There were only seven members present. Assemblyman Jacob Goldstein, (Dem.) representing the Thirty-first New York district, jumped to his feet and interposed an objection on the ground that there was no quorum. Speaker Sweet pleaded with him in vain to withdraw his objection, and the Armstrong resolution was returned to the introducer.

"I should think," said Mr. Armstrong in offering his resolution, "that Justice Cohalan would be the first to ask for a full investigation rather than remain under a cloud. In any event, the people have a right to know whether these charges are true or false. At all times, but especially now, the people have a right to know where every one stands with relation to patriotism, and that applies with double force to a person holding public office, and peculiarly to our judiciary."

"Well," said Assemblyman Goldstein, "a matter of such grave importance should not be taken up for consideration except when there is a full attendance of members. I object to the introduction of this resolution."

In the Senate the resolution was the subject of very little debate. Senator George B. Wellington of Troy, sponsor for the measure, moved its adoption soon after the session began.

"In terms of legal conclusion," he observed, "it has been said that a Justice of the Supreme Court has seriously advocated the commission of the crimes of murder and arson. We should be derelict in our duty if we did not inquire into it."

The only other speech was made by Senator George F. Thompson of Niagara, who said he was in accord with the resolution, because there was an inference that the State Department at Washington had evidence of facts that had been withheld, and he believed that if they tend to prove the conclusion set forth in them should hear the case.

The resolution was adopted by a viva voce vote.

RUSSIANS ARRESTED IN EXPLOSION INQUIRY

Suspected of Being Involved in Blowing Up of Eddystone Ammunition Plant.

Special to The New York Times.

CHESTER, Penn., Oct. 2.—With the arrest this afternoon of two Russian Socialists at Media while a trial of other Socialists was in progress, a solution of the mysterious Eddystone Ammunition Corporation explosion of April 10, which cost 123 lives, may develop. Mitchell Lagoda, formerly of this city, and Nicholas Kieckner of Thirty-fourth and Spruce Streets, Philadelphia, former shell inspectors at the plant, were the men arrested. They were charged with murder by Sheriff Heyburn and were committed without bail to the county jail.

Kieckner is reputed to be one of the I. W. W. leaders in this country. At the time of the inquest on the explosion victims he was the star witness in relating the gross carelessness of allowing I. W. W. members to hold inspectors' posts at the powder plant.

Assistant District Attorney J. Borton Weeks, who investigated the explosion with W. A. Hajek, a Department of Justice agent, has been shadowing the two accused men, and decided today to take them into custody.

Attorneys Ernest L. Green of Media and Henry J. Nelson of Philadelphia were retained as counsel for the accused men, and asked for a habeas corpus hearing on Saturday. It is likely the Federal authorities will take charge of the two Russians.

On Sunday afternoon, April 1, a Socialistic meeting was held in this city, at which the principal speaker was William Derman of 3,407 Walnut Street, Philadelphia, and the Chairman was Lagoda. Sheriff Heyburn attended the meeting with an interpreter, and when Derman had launched a bitter arraignment of the capitalists of the country, and advocated an uprising of the laboring classes, the Sheriff broke up the meeting and arrested Lagoda and Derman.

Ten days later the Eddystone explosion occurred. Lagoda and Derman were employed at the plant as Inspectors, receiving their commissions as Inspectors from the Russian officials sent here. They were not at the plant at the time of the explosion.

Their cases were set for trial on Monday of this week, but were postponed until this afternoon. Since Monday Hajek has been in Media keeping watch on them.

After the arrest of the two men, Hajek requested that a house in Chicago be raided in connection with the case. It is believed that I. W. W. Russians here at the time of the explosion are wanted at that address.

ATTERBURY TO GET RANK OF A GENERAL

Railroad Official With Troops In France Is Among Those Nominated For Brigadiers.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 2.—W. W. Atterbury, Vice President of the Pennsylvania Railroad system, now supervising railroad operations for the troops in France, was today nominated to be a Brigadier General in the national army.

Other nominations for promotions to the rank of Brigadier General sent to the Senate by President Wilson were:

Adjutant General's Department—Colonel James T. Kerr, U. S. A., retired; Colonel Eugene F. Ladd, U. S. A., retired.

Judge Advocate General's Department—Lieut. Col. Samuel T. Ansell.

Medical Corps—Colonel Charles Richard, Colonel William H. Arthur, and Colonel Henry P. Birmingham.

The Tax on Professions.

Every professional person in the United States will be subject to the excess profits tax if his income is more than $6,000 a year. Two paragraphs inserted by the conferees and agreed to by Senate and House cover the subject. The act will levy an 8 per cent. tax on the incomes of professional men in excess of $6,000. A doctor, for instance, with an income of $10,000, will be subject to the regular income tax on $10,000, and also to an 8 per cent. tax on $4,000.

One of the paragraphs covering this new feature is found in Section 200: "The terms 'trade' and 'business' include professions and occupations." The other paragraph, in Section 200, reads: "That in the case of a trade or business having no invested capital or not more than a nominal capital there shall be levied, assessed, collected, and paid, in addition to the taxes under existing law and under this act, in lieu of the tax imposed by Section 201, a tax equivalent to 8 per cent. of the net income of such trade or business, in excess of the following deductions: In the case of a domestic corporation, $3,000; and in the case of a domestic partnership, or a citizen or a resident of the United States, $6,000; in the case of all other trades or business, no deduction."

Representative J. Hampton Moore of Pennsylvania, a member of the conference committee, said:

"In addition to lawyers, doctors, and other professional people, an excess profits tax will be levied on certain middlemen and speculators in foodstuffs not otherwise included. Farmers making excess profits were cut out of the House bill, and professional men making excess profits were cut out of the Senate bill, but both classes have been included by the conference.

"The individual cotton planter or farmer making profits in excess of $6,000 is now taxable, as is the professional man. If the corporations think they are hard hit, they have the satisfaction of knowing that individuals are to share the burden."

Under the bill, as construed by members of Congress, the 8 per cent. excess profits tax will apply to the salary of members, which is $7,500. They will pay 8 per cent. on $1,500.

STATEMENT OF THE OWNERSHIP, MANAGEMENT, CIRCULATION, ETC., REQUIRED BY THE ACT OF CONGRESS OF AUGUST 24, 1912, OF

The New York Times

State of New York, County of New York, ss.:

Before me, a Registered Notary Public in and for the State and county aforesaid, personally appeared Adolph S. Ochs, who, having been duly sworn according to law, deposes and says that he is the Publisher of THE NEW YORK TIMES and that the following is, to the best of his knowledge and belief, a true statement of the ownership, management, and circulation of the aforesaid publication for the date shown in the above caption, required by the Act of August 24th, 1912, embodied in Section 443, Postal Laws and Regulations, printed on the reverse of this form, to wit:

Publisher—Adolph S. Ochs,

NEW YORK'S PROSPERITY.

It seems like the good old times to welcome back an increase of taxable real estate values for this borough and the greater city. If any one thinks that this is a singular sentiment, it is only necessary to look back a year and recall the dismay with which the decrease of taxable values was received. The decrease then was in Manhattan, and only the increases in the outer boroughs prevented an actual decrease for the entire city. The increase of $1,718,171 was the smallest in the history of the greater city, and perhaps marked the turning point in the period of depression of real estate due to general trade depression and the shifting of values resulting from the construction of the dual subway. Low as last year's valuations were, the receipts of owners were lower. This year the reverse is true. High as the valuations are, the receipts are higher, and the owners will have something left after paying the rates on the increased valuation. This year's increase in Manhattan is $39,990,100, against last year's decrease of $41,486,226. Brooklyn is the only borough which shows a larger increase this year, $43,614,506. Queens increases more than the Bronx, and even Richmond shares the general growth of values. All have thrived, but Manhattan more than the others.

The present figures are approximate only, pending revision on the complaint of those who think themselves aggrieved. It is safe to say that there will be fewer complaints this year of the increase for the entire city of $137,369,758 than last year's failure to show the accustomed improvement. But, as last year's assessments showed that Manhattan was carrying more than its proper share of the general burden, so this year's well-distributed growth shows that the outer boroughs are taking up their share of the benefit and the burden of the chief cause of the general prosperity. No doubt the activity of war trade has helped, but the greater cause is the approaching completion of the dual subway. There is no nook or corner of the greater city which does not feel the stimulus of the distribution of population, whose congestion was driving population away. At the same time, business realty was suffering from difficulty of access by workers.

It is almost too trite to remark, but there is necessity for remarking that the subways run both ways. They enable workers to reach cheap homes of improving values, and they also enable them to reach their work in office building districts with a facility never before known, and still showing improvement with every traffic return. Every one who walks or rides about the city knows that this is so. Broadway is "coming back," and will recoup from the new subways what it lost by its opposition to the first of them. The Seventh Avenue district is improving tardily from the neglect not to give access sooner to the Pennsylvania Terminal. The outer boroughs are turning potato fields into residential districts. Landlords and rent payers alike know that the increased valuations reflect conditions and are not arbitrary for the sake of enlarging the city's debt limit or reducing the tax rate.

This is all the more remarkable because it occurs amid marked depression in the building industry. Just as the city had been overbuilt, so now it is approaching an underbuilt condition. The building trade is low throughout the country, and perhaps is lower in this city than at any time since consolidation. The simple explanation is the cost of materials and labor. Owners know that whoever builds just now is at a disadvantage of fixed costs in any future depression. Nevertheless, there are those who think that present conditions are so fortified that those who have cheap land can better afford to proceed with their building plans than await cheaper building conditions. The loss of income now offering is a considerable offset to increased costs.

The candor with which our efficient tax department recognizes these changes is the best protection against our larger values necessitating undue payments on account of direct State tax. The increase shows that our valuations are full, and fair play requires that up-State valuations also shall be full. Prosperity is not confined to this city. The farmers are getting prices they never dreamed of, and the value of their land reflects—or should reflect—the commodity markets as surely as our valuations reflect the renting market.

DESERVED PUNISHMENT.

Whatever course the United States Senate may pursue in regard to the pernicious utterances of LA FOLLETTE, it is an assured fact that the violence of the reaction against not only the Wisconsin mischief-maker but nearly all the Senators who have gained unenviable distinction by opposing the nation's preparations for war has put them in an exceedingly painful position. Petitions have now been received for the expulsion from the Senate not only of LA FOLLETTE but of STONE of Missouri and GRONNA of North Dakota as well, while the names of Senators HARDWICK, REED, and VARDAMAN are joined with theirs in resolutions "condemning in unmeasured terms" the obstruction of essential war legislation.

If any human being enjoys this sort of publicity, we are quite sure that he is not a man who has had reason to believe, in the past, that he was regarded as a safe and patriotic leader by some part of the community. The stain upon the repute of these men they placed there themselves. The petitioners are only deepening it. The Senators cannot possibly find the process agreeable. They know that the widespread revolt against them is in every case inspired by loyal feeling, that the patriotic citizens have been roused by a realization of the enormous evil that has already been accomplished by the open and secret opposition to the extension and equipment of the army and navy, by the obviously dangerous effect in Europe of this sort of conduct in an American legislative body. The stigma thus placed on the name and fame of every legislator involved will not easily be removed.

THE EXPULSIONS AT COLUMBIA.

The Trustees of Columbia University, concurring with the university Faculties, have done their duty to the university and its good fame by expelling two members of the Faculty who have fomented disloyalty. To one of these extruded persons long tolerance has been shown. There is a curious class of professors that covers itself with the threadbare cloak of "academic freedom," and thereby seeks protection for public utterances whose cumulative effect is injurious to the reputation of the college. Almost every considerable institution of learning has in its Faculty men who have a gift, often, it would seem, a malicious pleasure in using it, of mischievous, unreasonable, and dangerous speech, a specious radicalism that tends to mislead the young. They practice insubordination. They glory in sensation. Their folly rejoices the disheartened "college administrator" and dens or disgusts the graduates and friends of their college, creates a little group of sympathizers among the undergraduates, light-hearted resisters of authority, easily attracted, in the generosity of youth, to unsound, perilous theories, finding unpopularity a merit.

The esprit de corps of the Faculty, sometimes the personal qualities of the errant professor, plead in his favor. The Trustees are afraid of the howls of violated "academic freedom." It is hard work to get rid of a professor. What a rage there was when the University of Pennsylvania dropped an instructor of this type a year or two ago! Its judgment has been signally vindicated since. The unruly instructor has turned up this year as a pacifist and seditionary.

The largest tolerance of professorial opinion must stop at professorial opinion that opposes and seeks to undermine the primary obligations of the citizen, the security, the existence of the nation. The fantasies of "academic freedom" may protect an agnostic professor in a theological seminary. They cannot protect a professor who counsels resistance to the laws and speaks, writes, disseminates treason. That a teacher of youth should teach sedition and treason, that he should infect, or seek to infect, youthful minds with ideas fatal to their duty to the country, is intolerable. The elder of the two expelled professors has a son, formerly a Columbia student, who has lost his citizenship for acting on his father's teachings. That mournful illustration of the effects of treasonable teaching suffices.

A professor who uses the letterhead of the university to urge members of Congress to "support a measure "against sending conscripts to Europe "against their will" has ended his "academic usefulness," as the Columbia authorities say. He had warnings repeated, the final warning in President BUTLER'S Commencement Day speech last June, that Columbia would keep no place on its Faculties or among its students for opposers or counselors of opposition to the laws, traitors or emitters of treason. "Academic freedom" is a pitiful thing by the side of the freedom of the United States, of democracy. This professor was ripe for dismissal long ago. His dismissal was proposed last Spring. He has been treated with singular patience.

The evicted assistant professor, in spite of ample warning, has been active in anti-patriotic organizations such as the People's Council. An assistant professor of Columbia, roaming about the country with other representatives of that sodality of sedition, was a public injury to the good name of the university. It is painful to see a grandson of the author of "The Building of the Ship" and "Paul Revere's Ride," a grandson also of the author of "Two Years Before the Mast," a man in whose blood the taint of treason should have been impossible, brought by socialism and pacifism to such base company.

A great historical institution, Columbia has had its sons in the country's wars for more than a hundred and fifty years. Its graduates and undergraduates continue, with greater numbers and as great a patriotism, the heroic tradition. The Columbia soldiers in the war of freedom are to be shamed no longer, Columbians everywhere are no longer to be shamed, by voices of treason at Morningside.

JAPAN'S POLICY IN CHINA.

Viscount ISHII'S frank and candid statement of Japan's attitude toward China should remove from American minds any anxiety which misunderstanding or misrepresentation may have caused. With equal frankness it may be said that we in this country have not always understood Japan's purposes in respect to China, and we were particularly in the dark at the time certain specific demands were made upon China some two years ago. Our distinguished Japanese visitor not only illuminates the subject by his statement of Japan's purposes, but the assurances he gives are in their very nature calculated to allay any uneasiness that may have existed.

In explaining that the policy and principle of Japan in her relations with China as "voluntarily outlined and pledged" by him are not a Monroe Doctrine, that the term Monroe Doctrine is inapplicable since it is inaccurate, Viscount ISHII indicates points of difference which certainly do not impair the value of the Japanese commitment in regard to China. In his remarks on Monday evening the special Ambassador said:

> There is this fundamental difference between the Monroe Doctrine of the United States as to Central and South America and the enunciation of Japan's attitude toward China: In the first there is on the part of the United States no engagement or promise, while in the other Japan voluntarily announces that Japan will herself engage not to violate the political or territorial integrity of her neighbor, and to observe the principle of the open door and equal opportunity, asking at the same time other nations to respect these principles.

Let us say at the outset that in Japan's purpose to ask other nations to respect the political and territorial integrity of China and the principle of the open door there will never be a cause of difference between the Japanese Government and our own. It is scarcely necessary to point out the identity of Japan's present policy toward China with the policy declared by Secretary HAY, to which he secured the assent of the leading nations. We have not, we never had, any purpose to impair in the slightest degree China's sovereignty or to possess ourselves of any of her territory, and we are heartily in accord with Japan in this policy.

It is true, as Viscount ISHII remarks, that in the Monroe Doctrine as originally proclaimed there is no express engagement or promise not to molest our neighbors, but that engagement is implied in the circumstances which led to the declaration of President MONROE, and it inheres in the very spirit of the Doctrine itself, insomuch that any breach of it would be an inexcusable fault, for which we may be sure we should promptly be called to account. Therefore, when Viscount ISHII declares that the absence of the express pledge from the Monroe Doctrine is a "fundamental difference" between that Doctrine and the declared policy of Japan toward China, he enhances, it may be unconsciously, the binding force of her engagement to seek no territorial advantage over her neighbor. Our engagement not to molest our sister republics in this hemisphere was sufficiently clear and inviolable, even if not expressly given. If, in comparison, Japan's commitment gains greater force through expression, it must be very strong indeed. At least it is gratifying to us that it has been given in this clear manner, and there is further cause for satisfaction in the feeling that Viscount ISHII'S words have removed, we hope permanently, all chance that differences might arise between the United States and Japan out of the development of her policy toward China.

A LINCOLN FOR LONDON.

OLIVER CROMWELL has been variously portrayed in English picture and story, as bigoted and vengeful and treacherous and cruel, as forbidding of aspect. But, when the time came to set up in front of St. Stephen's a statue of CROMWELL, the patriot, the liberator of English thought, was depicted by an enlightened sculptor in his true historical aspect. The Cromwell at the Parliament Buildings is the true Cromwell of clarified history. The Beaconsfield, near by, depicts the great political leader, the powerful upbuilder of a great Empire, not the egotistical and attitudinizing "Dizzy" some of his contemporaries liked to caricature. The Lincoln which should stand in proximity to these imperishable effigies of famous Englishmen should faithfully and sympathetically depict the ideal of the Emancipator, the heroic, self-sacrificing American leader who bore so bravely the great burden of his nation's troubles.

The humble origin of the man, the uncouthness his enemies found in his personality, need not be suggested in a statue intended to personify for all time the triumph of the democratic principle. Mr. GEORGE GREY BARNARD has been at pains to denote the ungainliness of his Lincoln, to present him in an ugly pose, to exaggerate, probably for some comprehensible artistic effect, certain physical defects. This is, therefore, not an appropriate statue of President LINCOLN to put in that place to represent to generations to come of Englishmen the true spirit of America. We have a few public statues of LINCOLN much better suited to the purpose.

As a matter of fact, LINCOLN was a man of splendid stature. He faced his troubles erect, not bowed with his hands clasped in front of his body in an attitude of humility and despair. Mr. BARNARD has evolved a Lincoln which just suits the fancy of Mr. BARNARD and his friends. We should not care to deprive them of the aesthetic enjoyment they derive from contemplation of it. But let us set up in London a statue of LINCOLN which faithfully represents the great public and historic side of the author of the Gettysburg address and the second inaugural speech, the powerful, unshrinking, heroic, and triumphant LINCOLN.

A BLOW AT AUSTRIA'S HEART.

If General CADORNA'S latest move contemplates isolating Monte San Gabriele and passing on, it is no wonder that the Austrians are frantically rushing troops from France, Galicia, and Bukowina to stop him at all costs to the other fronts. For such a move on his part would mean nothing less than an intention to smash the Austrian Army before the Winter weather begins. Heretofore, alarmed as the Austrians were by his successes, they have doubtless been confident that he could do no more than master the Bainsizza Plateau before cold weather. That would be bad enough, but the Austrian Army would be in no positive danger before next Spring, and many things might happen in the Winter. The peace incantations that are now being so skillfully organized by Austria and Germany, not for the purpose of bringing about peace so much as for the purpose of confusing the Allies and building a pacifist backfire on them, might be calculated on by Teuton optimists to be working havoc with CADORNA'S plans by April.

But if CADORNA means to isolate Monte San Gabriele, it means that he intends to be in the Chiapovano Valley while there is still good fighting weather. The Bainsizza Plateau is the last obstacle to that valley. Once he gets into it, he can turn and crush the Austrians to the south or the north, he can drive a wedge between the two armies, he will force them to mercy. That done, he could drive them toward Vienna. His entrance into the Chiapovano Valley would mean that his arm was raised for a blow at the heart of Austria-Hungary.

The Austrians, though they have seen his object well enough for the last two months, counted on the Bainsizza Plateau to keep him busy until cold weather. He has got most of it in his possession, but he has still to make his way over the remainder and down over the side of the plateau into the valley. The whole Austrian effort has been concentrated on holding what is left of the plateau, so as to keep him out of the fatal valley until Spring. Monte San Gabriele has been the greatest obstacle.

But now CADORNA is manifesting a disposition to leave the mountain behind him instead of taking it. Since he could doubtless take it if he were willing to spend enough time in the enterprise, this apparent intention can mean only that time is important to him; in other words, that he means to get into the valley at once, regardless of Monte San Gabriele. That means that his contemplated effort to destroy the Austrian Army is scheduled not for next Spring, but for this Fall. Germany and Austria are "alarmed," the dispatches say. They would be excusable if they were panic-stricken.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

One-tenth of All Bars Closed.

With October's first day the Brown amendments to the State liquor tax laws came into effect, with the result that renewal of license had to be—and, therefore, presumably was—refused to something more than 2,000 of the something more than 20,000 dispensatories of intoxicants which till then had been more or less gladly and generously supported by the State's inhabitants. No general or vehement protest against this restriction of a privilege hitherto enjoyed has yet been audible, so it can be assumed with safety that again legislative interference with the working to its perfect end of the sacred law of supply and demand has been successfully achieved, or, as the world's people say, put across.

The docility displayed by a population once easily aroused by any assault upon, or infringement of, its "personal freedom" might be explained in any of several ways, each about as plausible as another.

It could be said, for instance, that we are no longer what we were—that fast following reforms, so-called, have worn out our powers of resistance, and that now we quietly submit to deprivation of one-tenth of the saloons seemingly only numerous enough to meet our needs, and as tamely endure the hardships incidental to having the average distance to the nearest ginmill increased to an extent easily computable by any competent arithmetician. That means, in a State as large and populous as this one, the wearing out of no inconsiderable amount of leather every year, and sympathetic economists will shed bitter tears over the waste.

On the other hand, there is consolation in the thought that the longer the walk the greater the thirst and the greater the satisfaction in the assuaging thereof.

Some will not have to lighten the cloud by this reflection. They will remember that even when a tenth is taken from 20,000 a good many remain, and that while the average remoteness of remedies for drought has been increased, in individual cases next to innumerable there will be no change of habit required.

Lastly, there are the queer people who are so obsessed by what they consider knowledge of the close relation between alcohol and crime, insanity, pauperism, and half a dozen other social annoyances that they will actually welcome the new régime and lament, not the loss of the tenth, but the perpetuation of the remainder. For their position, too, there is perhaps something to be said.

Of Course His Rage Is Double.

Mexico's Consul General here seems to combine in temper, as he does in name, the dislike of gringos and gringo methods characteristic of a part of the people he officially represents and the peculiar readiness to be in the opposition—to be "agin the Government"—that used to be ascribed to the islanders of whom his father may have been a far-wandering son. It is not really hard to understand, therefore, either why a Juan Burns should have involved himself once in the troubles arising from the smuggling of arms across our southern border, or why now he should be in a towering anger because one of his subordinates, like other resident foreigners, was asked by the draft authorities to make clear his alien status by writing it out for them on a piece of paper.

It was, indeed, entirely natural that a Burns who is also Juan, and a Juan who is also Burns, should inflate this little formality into a large, bitter grievance, or that, when it had been inflated, he should describe it as an outrageous attempt to compel a Mexican subject to risk his life as a member of the United States Army. What is natural, however, is not always pleasant, or even tolerable, and as Señor JUAN—or Mr. BURNS—has seen fit to express his resentment against our constituted authorities in the manner peculiar to Latin courtesy when it curdles into opprobrious epithet and earnest objurgation, perhaps the time is near, or even is already come, for taking up the question whether, as a persona, he is or is not grata.

He has forgotten, apparently, that along with the sub-species of diplomatic immunity which undoubtedly is his, and extends more or less to his official family, there go certain risks and perils from which the ordinary foreigner is exempt. Among these risks and perils are some arising from the fact that his departure from the country, if deemed desirable, can be brought about with speed and ease by a mere request to his superiors for his recall. No explanation of such a demand need be given, and he cannot invoke the delaying complexities and inadequacies of our immigration laws, as could almost any other stranger within what by ancient metaphor is called our gates.

They Defend Germans from Germans.

There was a certain magnanimity, rising at least a little higher than strict justice, in the fact that from the headquarters of the Canadian troops in France there came yesterday a dispatch which added to the statement that German prisoners complain that their perils are not

HOTELS HAVE BEEFLESS DAY

Patrons Here Accept Plan to Conserve Food Without Protest.

New York City had its first beefless Tuesday yesterday, when all of the hotels dropped beef in every shape and form from its menus. This plan was adopted voluntarily by the hotel managers, in their efforts to help the Food Administration in its plan to conserve food. Although started without previous notice, there was little, if any, confusion and no protests.

Reports received by John McE. Bowman, member of the Federal Food Administration, and Thomas D. Green, Chairman of the Food Administration Committee for New York, Pennsylvania, and New Jersey, showed that the New England States, Atlantic City, and San Francisco had also started the beefless Tuesday yesterday. According to both officials, practically every hotel and restaurant in the United States will put the plan in force, so that next Tuesday will be generally a beefless day throughout the country.

The first notification the diners in the hotels had that there was a change in the menu was at luncheon, when the cards were placed before them. At the top of each was printed:

"The United States Food Administration wishes to discourage the use of beef on Tuesdays. This appeal to patriotism has our support, for which reason we do not offer our patrons beef in any form on today's menu."

A perusal of the menu showed that beef in any form had been eliminated and preference seemed to have been given to fish and other sea food, eggs, chicken, mutton, and lamb. In some of the high-class hotels pork and beans figured for the first time prominently featured on the cards.

In some cases where the patrons ordered beef steaks or filet of beef, without having looked at the menu, the headwaiter called attention to the fact that this was a beefless day. In not a single case was there reported any objection on the part of the guest, or a case where he or she did not willingly change the order. One of the specific cases was in the Park Avenue Hotel where a woman diner who had ordered filet of beef, learning of the change, went to the proprietor, George C. Brown, and complimented the hotel upon setting an example in patriotism. She said she would advise her cook to make Tuesdays in her home also beefless days.

Thomas D. Green, President of the Hotel Association, said that the plan had met with even greater enthusiasm than even the hotel men had expected.

"The action of the hotel men of this city was voluntary," he said. "They were anxious to do what they could to help the Government in its campaign to conserve the nation's food supply. Beef was one of the things which it was reported was becoming scarce, and efforts were being made to stop the grave shrinkage. We felt that a beefless Tuesday would not only put a punch in the conservation plan, but would also call the attention at the same time of the general public to what the Food Administration was doing.

"The way the patrons of our hotels have taken to the idea is splendid. There was not one complaint registered, but instead the proprietors report that they received many compliments and offers of support. The diners of New York are just as patriotic as any other class in this city, and I am glad to be able to say that the stories that they would get beef just to be contrary were absolutely unfounded."

One of the questions which puzzled the hotel men was what would happen at formal dinners given on a beefless Tuesday, and this was answered when the Rotary Club at its first monthly dinner in the ballroom of the McAlpin, learning of the adoption of the beefless Tuesday, had chicken substituted for beef.

Yesterday also found the dining cars of all the railroad lines observing their first beefless Tuesday. The Lehigh Valley served no meat whatever.

John J. Cavanagh, President of the Society of Restaurateurs, telegraphed Mr. Bowman that the restaurants of this city would start their beefless days this coming Tuesday.

DENIAL BY ROOSEVELT.

Never Advocated German State in South Brazil, He Says.

AMSTERDAM, Oct. 2.—In connection with Theodore Roosevelt's recent speech at a luncheon in Chicago, in which he related for the first time the details of secret conferences in 1902 between himself and the German Ambassador in connection with Germany's proposed occupation of Venezuela, the Frankfurter Zeitung publishes what it asserts is the German Foreign Office record of a conversation on the South American situation on Feb. 18, 1903, between President Roosevelt and the late Baron Speck von Sternburg, the German Ambassador.

In this conversation President Roosevelt is quoted as having said that he thought the best guarantee for the amelioration of South American conditions would be the establishment of a German State in South Brazil.

Colonel Roosevelt at Oyster Bay last night, when asked about the assertions of the Frankfurter Zeitung, said:

"There is not the least truth in that statement."

In his luncheon speech at Chicago the Colonel said that in 1902, when Germany proposed a "temporary" occupation of Venezuela, he sent for the German Ambassador and told him that "this Venezuela business has been going on long enough, and I cannot afford to let it go to a point where it will cause trouble for this country." He asked the Ambassador what Germany meant by temporary possession, and on the Ambassador replying that he did not feel at liberty to discuss such an important question, he delivered the following ultimatum: "Tell your Government that in ten days it must arbitrate the matter or I will send Dewey down there."

The German Ambassador, according to Colonel Roosevelt, said he could not send such a message, saying he did not think the President knew what it would mean. President Roosevelt replied that if it meant war, Germany had chosen the one spot where she could not fight the United States. The President then ordered Admiral Dewey to be ready to sail on an hour's notice.

The Ambassador again visited President Roosevelt a week later, and said he had not dared send the message, and the President told him that he had ordered Dewey to sail within forty-eight hours. The Ambassador said this would be an awful thing for the United States, but President Roosevelt retorted that it would be more awful for Germany. Within thirty-six hours the Ambassador again returned to the President and informed him Germany would arbitrate.

OUSTED PROFESSORS SILENT

Columbia Secretary Says the Affair Is a Closed Incident.

If Professor James McK. Cattell and Professor H. W. L. Dana, who were dismissed from the Faculty of Columbia University on Monday because of their activity in opposing America's war plans, had any complaint to make, they did not voice it yesterday. Professor Dana, when asked by a reporter for THE TIMES to comment upon the action of the trustees of Columbia, replied:

"I will not discuss that matter with newspaper men."

Professor Cattell could not be found at Columbia yesterday. It was said he was at his home in Garrison, N. Y. On Monday night he had said he was sorry but not surprised at the trustees' action.

Dr. Samuel McCune Lindsay of the Columbia Faculty and President of the American Academy of Political and Social Science, said the action of the trustees suited the Faculty generally. Dr. Lindsay was asked if he considered that the action of the trustees infringed on the right of free speech.

"In the circumstances," he replied, "I think that it did not. These are not normal times and we should look at things differently. I think that the action of the trustees finds the support of the Faculty of Columbia."

Frank D. Fackenthal, Secretary of the university, said that the matter was a closed incident, so far as the trustees were concerned. When asked if there had been any protests made to the university by other members of the Faculty or by any one else, he said:

"I have heard of none, and if there has been any they would probably have come to me."

STARVING BELGIANS CLUBBED AS SLAVES

Albert's Government Reports Brutality to Men Forced to Labor in Camps.

WORKERS BEATEN TO DEATH

Hungry Men Taunted with Sight of Food—Even Comforts of Religion Denied.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Oct. 2.—The Belgian Government gives THE NEW YORK TIMES for publication an official report on the suffering of Belgians in camps of "hungerland," which has been called a secondary army zone behind the German battle front. The report runs:

"It can now be stated positively without exaggeration that deported Belgian 'workers' are overcome by starvation. Despite their utter weakness they are driven unsparingly to heavy work, such as unloading trucks, roadmending, and burying the dead until the moment when nature can stand no more and they are carted off to a hospital or sent home to die.

"All work is supervised by sentries armed with clubs which are used unsparingly on any poor wretch who slows down sick or exhausted. Thus at Romage Camp a man named C—, suffering from fever and lung trouble, complained of his condition to the officer on duty. The latter seized C— by the shoulders and flung him against a wall, where he fell senseless.

"Another named S— was so sick he was hardly able to walk. A sentry struck him in the back with a rifle butt and the man has not left the hospital since. At Fontaine Camp it was after fell fainting and four of his companions carried him to the guardhouse to ask for his removal to a hospital. The sentry's reply was to beat the men literally to death before their eyes.

"At Villers a sentry decided that a worker named M— was too slow in lighting a fire and clubbed him over the head. M— now has a suppurating abscess in the ear and has become hopelessly imbecile. At Demblay an unfortunate named E— found heart to laugh at a remark of one of his companions. To teach him a better state of mind a sentry struck him down with a rifle butt and he is still half paralyzed in a hospital.

"Of all these cases we possess full names, dates, and details, but for obvious reasons cannot publish them yet. Sunday was supposed to be a day of rest for workers. Lest they might feel over-favored soldiers, just 'for fun,' or even by official order, made them line up against a courtyard wall and stand half-naked for hours.

"Another piece of German 'fun' was at Demblay and Damvillers, to hold up bread or a bowl of soup to starving prisoners. The latter would spring forward, to be met with kicks and clubbing.

"What this 'pleasantry' means to prisoners may be imagined from the fact that they readily paid francs apiece for rats to ease pangs of hunger. Workers were housed in never-cleaned sheds reeking with filth and vermin. Never were they allowed to bathe, or even change their linen.

"Even the comforts of religion were forbidden. From Dec. 1 to May 5 only once was a priest allowed to say mass and give absolution at Romagne Camp. At Montmedy only two masses were held between Nov. 2 and May 30, and everywhere the case is still the same or worse. Such are but a part of the sufferings of our unhappy population."

DR. CARSTENSEN OUT.

Officials of Riverdale Church Resented His Admitting Negro Orphans

The Rev. Dr. J. M. Carstensen, for fifteen years rector of Christ Episcopal Church, Riverdale, has resigned under circumstances which have aroused considerable feeling among a large part of his congregation in the town of Riverdale, where he is very popular.

Dr. Carstensen's resignation is said to be due to opposition to him by a small but influential part of his congregation, and particularly by one of the prominent Vestrymen. The original cause of the trouble was the permission given by the rector to the Superintendent of the Colored Orphan Asylum, which is near the church, to have a small number of the children of the asylum attend the services at Christ Church and occupy a corner of the church. This was resented by most of the Vestrymen, and the managers of the institution were informed that the children were not wanted. The rector protested, and his friends assert that his protest has been the source of the discord which has now ended in his resignation.

The rector declined yesterday to discuss the causes of his resignation or his future plans. It is said, however, he has under consideration overtures from a parish in the Northwest, and this fact has resulted in a movement among those associated with his work in Riverdale to interest Bishop Greer to keep him in the neighborhood of his present activities.

Dr. Carstensen is well past middle life, and the greater part of his career has been spent in New York. He returned from service in the Spanish-American war to take a pulpit in this city, and has been active in many varied fields of usefulness here since. He is President of the Churchmen's Association, is a Sergeant in the Home Defense League in Riverdale, and Associate Chaplain of a National Guard regiment. It is his friends in these bodies and some former parishioners who are discussing sending the petition to Bishop Greer.

BUSY WITH WAR TOBACCO.

Revenue Employes Work Overtime to Keep Soldiers Supplied.

Collector William H. Edwards, in charge of the Second, or Wall Street, Internal Revenue District, said yesterday that the large shipments of cigars and cigarettes now being sent to American soldiers in France and England was responsible for a great deal of extra work for the employes of his office.

Many of the employes of the Internal Revenue service are working overtime these days in order that shipments of cigars, cigarettes, and tobacco for the American soldiers in France may not be delayed," the Collector said. "Every case of such goods exported must have a Government export stamp affixed, and as these stamps must be filled in with certain data in long hand, the extra work entailed is considerable.

"At the large tobacco factories in the district rush orders from individuals and organizations are being filled as rapidly as possible, and requisitions for export stamps have almost swamped the Internal Revenue officers whose duty it is to prepare them. This has often necessitated their working late into the night. There have been no complaints on account of the extra work, as the men feel that in a way they are thus doing their 'bit' in war time."

Collector Edwards said that another feature in connection with the exportation of "smokes" for the expeditionary forces was that it entailed additional work on the part of Deputy Collectors, because the Government provides gratuitous duty on all tobacco sent to the American troops.

ADMIRAL TAKESHITA BETTER

Japanese Mission Will Probably Visit Roosevelt Today.

Vice Admiral Isamu Takeshita of the Japanese Commission, who has been ill at the home of Elbert H. Gary, was reported improved last night, and the commission probably will leave for Oyster Bay at 10:30 o'clock this morning for the postponed visit with Colonel Roosevelt. Viscount Ishii, head of the Japanese Commission, has been suffering with a sore throat, but was also said to be much improved.

With the exception of a short motor trip the members of the commission remained indoors yesterday, resting up after the strenuous days of [illegible]

EULOGIES OF LIFE OF I. N. SELIGMAN

THRONG AT BANKER'S BIER

Prominent Men the Pallbearers for Patron of Many Charities — Rev. Dr. Enelo Pays Tribute at Grave.

The esteem that had been commanded by Isaac Newton Seligman as a member of the banking house of J. & W. Seligman & Co., as a patron of many charities and as one of the city's leading citizens, was reflected by the great gathering at his funeral yesterday at his home, 36 West Fifty-fourth Street. Although attendance at the service had been restricted to members of the family, relatives and close business and social friends, the rooms set aside for the mourners were full to overflowing, and the coffin was covered and surrounded by a great bower of floral pieces. Some of these pieces came from bankers, members of clubs and of the church to which Mr. Seligman belonged, but there were also many flowers there from the clerks of his banking house, and the employes of his town and country residences.

The body was placed in the family mausoleum at Salem Fields, Cypress Hills, L. I., the following being the honorary pallbearers: Fredrick Strauss, Mr. Seligman's partner; General Horace Porter, Oswald Garrison Villard, A. Barton Hepburn, Henry W. Taft, R. Fulton Cutting, Robert C. Cornell, Francis S. Bangs, Frank Outerbridge, Oscar S. Straus, Walter Beer, A. F. Southerland, Frank Damrosch, George C. Kobbe, Dr. Abram Jacobi, and George McAneny.

Both at the house and the cemetery the services were simple. Dr. Felix Adler, head of the Society for Ethical Culture, which Joseph Seligman, father of Isaac N. Seligman, had helped to found, preached the funeral sermon at the home. He delivered the sermon in the music room where rested the coffin surrounded by the following members of the family and relatives; Mrs. Isaac N. Seligman, Lieutenant and Mrs. Joseph L. Seligman, Miss Margaret V. Seligman, Professor and Mrs. Edwin R. A. Seligman, Mr. and Mrs. George W. Seligman, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Seligman, Mr. and Mrs. Jacob H. Schiff, Mr. and Mrs. Paul M. Warburg, and Mr. and Mrs. Felix M. Warburg.

Dr. Felix Adler's Eulogy

Dr. Adler reviewed in simple terms Mr. Seligman's many activities, his integrity in business, his loyalty to America, and his fidelity to his friends.

"A bracing, cordial word, stimulative of strength, is all that I can venture to speak at this moment, when the mystery of death has invaded our lives, filling us with solemn awe," he said in part. "There is a power in men to rise above their weaker selves, to face life anew, and in resolutely taking up the duties that remain to find comfort and strength.

"It has been asked, by what shall a man be remembered after he is gone? The answer is, by the service he has rendered, by the love he has expended.

"The life of Isaac Seligman was one of manifold and varied service—service to the nation, State, and city. He was an ardent American, setting the interests of the country above those of creed and party. He was one to whom men went for counsel, sensible, fair-minded, and exercising a moderation and reconciling influence in controversies.

"The dying Emperor, when asked for the password, replied: 'Equanimity!'

"The gift of equanimity, of a mind ever equable in time of stress, Mr. Seligman possessed to a degree not commonly met with. And there was something else, a crowning charm—a love of human beings as such, a warm, sunny kindness which awakened similar feelings in return."

He added that in pursuing his charitable activities Mr. Seligman had never hesitated to make liberal contributions, and had always lent himself to the support of any movement that aimed at the betterment and happiness of his fellowmen.

Rev. Dr. Enelo's Address.

A brief address was delivered at the cemetery by the Rev. Dr. Enelo of Temple Emanu-El. He said in part:

"Mr. Isaac Seligman was both an ornament and an asset to the community. Heir to an honored name, he lived up to it with distinction and an unfailing sense of the responsibility of high position. His personal qualities were such as to make him deeply loved of his fellowmen. In him, gentleness and vigor were harmoniously blended. His qualities were not merely external, they were inward. Integrity not only of deed but of thought, kindness of spirit which expressed itself not in formal charity, but in tenderness and sympathy toward all, purity that pervaded his whole being, devotion to duty, enthusiasm for every good cause, ardent patriotism and lofty ideals of citizenship; such were the qualities that made him a force in a vast number of enterprises; that made his presence well known and welcome in every assemblage for the common good. When we think of his noble qualities and achievements and think of how he is taken from us, we cannot help realizing the truth of the ancient utterance, 'A good life hath but few days; but a good name shall endure forever.'"

APPEAL TEACHERS' PAY CASE

Highest Court to Pass Upon Rate of Deductions for Absence.

The Appellate Term of the Supreme Court yesterday heard an appeal by the Board of Education in a test case which, if affirmed by the higher courts, is expected to cost the Board of Education millions of dollars. The question hinges on the amount to be deducted from a teacher's pay because of absence on account of illness. In the case of Mary A. Broughton, plaintiff in the test suit, the board divided her annual salary by the number of school days in a year and deducted one part for each day absent. She contends that one-three hundred and sixty-fifth of her salary should have been deducted.

The action was tried before Municipal Justice Levy, who held that the teacher's contention was right. Arthur C. Mandel was engaged by the Allied Teachers' Association to conduct the litigation in their behalf. The case will eventually reach the Court of Appeals.

MISS KNEVELS A BRIDE.

Daughte of Late Adrian L. Knevels Weds Edward R. Rickman.

The wedding of Miss Elizabeth Lawrence Knevels and Edward Ranlett Rickman took place yesterday afternoon at 3:30 o'clock at the residence of the bride's aunt, Miss Elizabeth Knevels, 969 Park Avenue. The ceremony was performed in the presence of about seventy-five guests by the Rev. Henry McFarlane Ogilby of Watertown, Mass., a cousin of the bride.

Miss Barbara Robinson of Concord, N. H., a niece of E. W. Rollins of this city, attended the bride, also young Miss Dorothy Remsen Babcock, who acted as flower girl.

E. C. Buchignani, a brother-in-law of the bridegroom, was best man. Masters Henry and Nelson Brinkerhoff served as ushers.

The bride is the daughter of the late Adrian Lawrence Knevels, and is related to the Brinkerhoff family, who lived at 3 Broadway in the early days of New York. Mr. Rickman is a son of Captain Edward Newton Rickman of Louisville, Ky.

WED TO CAPT. R. L. JONES.

Miss Marion E. Babcock the Bride of Signal Officer in Reserve Corps.

The marriage of Captain Reginald Lamont Jones of the Signal Officers' Reserve Corps, U. S. A., and son of Mr. and Mrs. Albert S. Jones of Los Angeles, Cal., and Miss Marion Elizabeth Babcock, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Jerome Babcock of 318 West Seventy-ninth Street, took place at 6 P. M. yesterday in the Broadway Tabernacle. The pastor, the Rev. Dr. Charles E. Jefferson, performed the ceremony.

MISS MILLIKEN WEDS OCT. 15.

Attendants for Her Marriage to Daniel F. Kellogg, Jr.

Miss Edythe E. Milliken, a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles S. Milliken of 524 West End Avenue, and Daniel F. Kellogg, Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Daniel F. Kellogg of 54 East Sixty-eighth Street, will be quietly married on Monday, Oct. 15, at 4 o'clock in the chantry of St. Thomas's Church, Fifth Avenue and Fifty-third Street. Miss Milliken will have the bridegroom's sister, Miss Victorine L. Kellogg, as her maid of honor, and her little sister, Miss Ruth Milliken, is to be the flower girl. The Misses Marian W. Hall and Dorothy Taylor are to be the bridesmaids.

Mr. Kellogg will have four ushers—Howard A. Plummer, Fritz K. Barbour, Ormond Gould, and Sterling Macintosh. Bryce Gray is to be best man. An informal reception for the relatives only will be held at the Ladies' Annex of the Metropolitan Club.

Stearns-Hubbard Engagement.

Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Kimball Stearns of Detroit, Beverly Hills, Cal., and New York, announce the engagement of their daughter, Miss Marjory Stearns, to Lieutenant Edward Waite Hubbard, son of the late Rev. William Henry Hubbard and of Mrs. Hubbard of Auburn, N. Y., and Holyoke, Mass. Mr. Hubbard is a nephew of William Skinner and Miss Skinner of 6 East Thirty-eighth Street, this city.

To be Bride of Lieut. Com. Jenney.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry McLellan Harding of 1 West Eighty-first Street have announced the engagement of their daughter, Miss Marion Harding, to Lieut. Commander Lee Royal Jenney of New York. The marriage will take place in November.

LOAN SALES REACH NEARLY $100,000,000

campaign, and several large bond distributing organizations have sent out letters and telegrams to their branch offices, instructing their representatives not to seek any new business of any kind, and to concentrate on the work of getting subscriptions to the Liberty Loan.

An appeal has been made by the Liberty Loan Committee to every bank President in this district to canvass depositors for subscriptions. In a letter to the bank Presidents the committee points out that subscriptions to the first loan from men who ordinarily invest from $5,000 to $10,000 at a time were low in the aggregate, in sharp contrast to the generous investments of wage earners, corporations, and other large investors.

The department stores and hotels are being brought rapidly into line for the campaign. Hundreds of thousands of shoppers will in the next few days have their attention called to the Government loan by booths attractively decorated and attended by volunteer workers. In the lobbies of the hotels the same general plan is being carried out.

Educational System Enlisted.

The entire State educational system is co-operating in the Liberty Loan campaign. The general plan embraces meetings in each school, with addresses by teachers. Dr. John Huston Finley, Commissioner of Education, has written to 3,000 State students, asking their support, and pointing out that the present situation affords them an opportunity to render valuable services to the Government. About half of the men whose aid has been requested are attending the New York City institutions, while the other 1,500 are at Cornell, Rochester, Syracuse, Union, and the other colleges which receive scholarships from the State. To enable the 75,000 school teachers in this district to take effective part in the campaign, a textbook has been prepared by the United States Treasury Department. The books will be ready for distribution in a few days.

Addressing the teachers of the State, Dr. Finley says: "You are asked as a first service to the State to help finance the war by acting as agents for the second Liberty Loan."

The Bureau of Education of the Liberty Loan Committee is arranging for booths in 500 public libraries of the State, not including the school libraries.

Boy Scouts Ready for Drive.

The Boy Scouts of America, a quarter million or more of whom are scattered in 12,284 troops all over the country, have completed their preparations to take the same active and efficient part in the Second Liberty Loan campaign as they did in the drive last Spring. A series of camps are going to be set up by the boys in various parks and public squares, where Boy Scout buglers will call attention to the Liberty Loan posters and circulars which they are spreading broadcast. The actual house to house canvass by the boys is reserved for the closing days of the campaign.

With the object of raising a million-dollar subscription from members of the American colony in Cuba, Osgood Smith has left for Havana. The recent action of the United States Treasury in subscribing to one-half of the $30,000,000 issue of Cuban war bonds has tended to cement the financial relations of the two countries, and the Liberty Loan Committee has been assured of liberal subscriptions from Cuba.

"The best way to shorten the war is to see that the Liberty Loan is heavily oversubscribed," declared yesterday Thomas W. Lamont, member of the firm of J. P. Morgan & Co. "All Europe has been torn to pieces for three years. No end to the struggle seems yet to be in sight. Is there any way that we can avoid similar distress befalling America? Yes, by going at this task hammer and tongs; by providing promptly the wherewithal to enable our armies and those of our allies to push the conflict through speedily to victory; thus to shorten the war.

"Why has the war already run so long? One answer is because of inadequate preparations on the part of the Allies, because of lack of proper munitions during the first two years of the war. By vigorous and proper financial support America can overcome lack of preparedness, inadequacy of munitions. We can get over these handicaps by speeding up everywhere.

Says Everybody Must Aid.

"Where, then, are we going to get all this money? Congress has already provided a scheme of heavy taxation, but if taxes become too heavy industry and business are injured and all of us suffer. So we come back to the fact that the Government must borrow, and must borrow on an enormous scale, and must get its money promptly.

"Everybody must fall to in this work. It is not the task of the rich or of the moderately well-to-do, or of the poor. It is the task of every one. It is your duty and your business today. Every man, woman, and child should make the success of this loan his chief business. Everything else can wait. But the loan must be subscribed for without delay. If you take hold in this spirit you will save for yourselves and for your country much of the treasure, the blood, and the tears that are saddening the whole world today."

The Liberty Loan headquarters was in receipt yesterday of subscriptions from John F. Hylan, Democratic nominee, and William M. Bennett, Republican nominee for Mayor; Mayor Mitchel, the Fusion candidate, having signed his application on Monday.

M'ADOO SAYS DOLLARS MUST BACK OUR ARMY

Least That Can Be Done for Fighters is To Give Them Means of Defence.

CHICAGO, Oct. 2.—A warning that the United States was not in the war merely for altruistic purposes but was fighting for her sacred rights, her integrity as a nation, and her security for the future, was made before a large Chicago audience by Secretary McAdoo tonight in urging that generous support be given the second Liberty Loan.

Secretary McAdoo asserted that Germany, in actual fact, had been at war with the United States long before a state of war officially was recognized, and Germany's destroying American lives through sinking ships was in each case, he said, an act of war.

"We should have been at war long since with Germany," he said. "President Wilson, in his eagerness to save America from this colossal conflict went to the extreme of forbearance and patience in order to escape with peace and honor, postponed the conflict until it was no longer possible to avoid the issue."

Issues Made Clear in Indianapolis.

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., Oct. 2.—If by any possible chance a single loan offered by the United States Government to the American people should fail it would be a more fatal disaster and have worse effect than the loss of a great battle, said William G. McAdoo, Secretary of the Treasury, in a speech to a mass meeting today of persons interested in boosting the second Liberty Loan.

He made the statement concerning the effect of the failure of a loan after having told how the United States Treasury was the heart of the war machine, and felt the shock of everything done through the expenditure of money. The "gold pile" in the Treasury must be kept as plentifully supplied as the coal pile of a business, Mr. McAdoo said.

The least that can be done for Americans in the fighting forces, he said, was to give them the means of defending themselves, so that when they meet the Germans "every brave boy at the front will know that in his hands, put there by American love and American skill, is a weapon the best that possibly can be devised that will give him a possible superiority over his foe." He continued that he wanted the fighting forces to know that "every American dollar is back of them, and that lines of communication and supplies would be kept open. We must be just as willing to sacrifice all our money as they are willing to sacrifice their lives for us."

Mr. McAdoo also outlined to committeemen who will have charge of the bond sale in Indiana the plans.

OVERSUBSCRIBE ISSUE OF TREASURY BILLS

Held to Presage Success of Second Liberty Loan—Offering Is $400,000,000.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 2.—Liberty Loan financing was marked today by the oversubscription of the largest issue of short-time Treasury certificates of indebtedness yet put out by the Government, $400,000,000. The certificates bear 4 per cent. interest, mature Dec. 15, and may be redeemed sooner upon ten days' notice.

The amount of the oversubscription was not stated by the Treasury, but the taking of the entire issue, which is one-third greater than any previous offering, with a margin to spare, was regarded as presaging the success of the second Liberty bond issue.

Today's offering of certificates brings the total up to $1,250,000,000, or more than 40 per cent of the minimum set by Secretary McAdoo for the second Liberty Loan. With the proceeds of the latest certificate issue available, the Government will have anticipated the second Liberty Loan receipts to the extent of $1,250,000,000, and much of the money will have been paid out.

The issuance of certificates of indebtedness in blocks of from $200,000,000 to $400,000,000 is highly regarded by Treasury officials as a method of obviating stress in the money markets which might result from the sudden withdrawal of a considerable proportion of a large loan.

SAVINGS LOAN TO WAIT.

Vanderlip Will Press Campaign Only as Bond Drive Nears Conclusion.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 2.—The project for floating the $2,000,000,000 of war savings certificates, under the direction of Frank Vanderlip, President of the National City Bank of New York, will not be pressed until the present campaign for the sale of Liberty Loan bonds is nearing a conclusion.

Mr. Vanderlip is at work in the Treasury Department on the task allotted to him, and expresses confidence in the outcome of the savings loan. The organization he is building up embraces committees of representative bankers and business men in every financial centre of the country, with an extended subordinate organization.

SUFFRAGIST OPPOSES LOAN.

Mrs. H. O. Havemeyer Urges Women Not to Subscribe.

BALTIMORE, Md., Oct. 2.—Mrs. Henry O. Havemeyer of New York, member of the Advisory Council of the National Women's Party, in an address before a meeting of 150 suffragists here today appealed to the suffragists not to lift a finger in aid of the Liberty Loan. She declared she would not work for it, although she had served on the committee of women which toured the country for the first Liberty Loan.

"I haven't the nerve to ask money," she said, "for a battle for democracy when we who demand true democracy are thrown into jails for doing so."

The suffragists present greeted her with applause and most of them declared they were ready to follow her advice.

Mrs. Havemeyer said she had been asked by Frank A. Vanderlip, President of the National City Bank of New York, to take an active part in the women's work for the Liberty Loan, but told him she was ineligible because of the Government's attitude on the suffragist question.

Mrs. Abbey Scott Baker of Washington, an official of the National Women's Party, urged the women to boycott the loan. She said she had three sons in the service of the Government, but that made no difference.

GIANTS BEAT PHILS IN TWELFTH INNING

Perritt Has Better of Rixey in Long Pitching Dispute in First Contest.

ALEXANDER WINS SECOND

Quaker Star Registers Thirtieth Victory of Season at Expense of New League Champions.

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 2.—The Giants broke even in today's double-header with the Phillies, the champions winning the first game, 5 to 2, in twelve innings, and losing the second, 8 to 2. The opening contest found Pol Perritt and Eppa Rixey waging a slab fight, in which the Phillies' big southpaw weakened in the twelfth.

In the second game Grover Cleveland Alexander registered his thirtieth victory of the season. Al Demaree opposed Alexander on the hill at the start, but after pitching four scoreless innings gave way to a pinch-hitter. Rube Benton replaced him and was pounded savagely by the locals.

Only for two unfortunate breaks in favor of the Phillies in the ninth inning the Giants would have won the first game then and there. They scored a run in the fourth on singles by Herzog and Kauff and Zimmerman's sacrifice fly, and in the seventh singles by Zimmerman and Fletcher and a sacrifice fly by Robertson netted another.

In the ninth the situation underwent a rapid change. Schulte opened with a double off the right field wall. Whitted fouled to McCarty and Luderus flied to Kauff. Dugey raised a pop fly back of third base, which either Fletcher or Zimmerman could have caught. Both ran for the ball and then stopped a yard apart. Fletcher finally made a desperate lunge for the ball, but it popped out of his hands, and Schulte scored. Dugey stole second and scored when Evers's bounder popped over Herzog's head and rolled into centre field. Evers died stealing, ending the inning.

Robertson Starts Winning Rally.

A double by Robertson started the Giants on the road to victory in the twelfth. Holke followed with an infield hit to Evers, and when Johny made a wild throw to first, Robertson scored. McCarty hit to Dugey, who made a wild throw to second to force Holke, and both men were safe. Perritt's out advanced Holke and McCarty and Burns's single to right scored both runners.

Evers singled with one out in the Phillies' half of the twelfth and was allowed to steal second without drawing a throw, but he got no further, as Pearce and Adams were easy victims.

The Giant regulars started the second game, but were gradually relieved as the contest progressed, so that Robertson was the only member of the regular infield or outfield still in the game when the ninth inning rolled around.

Alexander pitched a fine game, and though hit hard in spots was never in danger. He had easy sailing after the sixth inning, in which the Phillies scored six runs off Benton on a combination of six hits and two passes.

Young Pitcher Ill.

Adam Swigler, a young pitcher recruited by McGraw from the University of Pennsylvania, was stricken with appendicitis today, and was operated upon. His condition is said to be very grave. Swigler became ill in St. Louis last week, but the exact nature of his complaint could not be determined at that time, and he had apparently recovered.

PRICE OF TICKETS GOING UP.

Chicago Scalpers Ask Fabulous Sums for World's Series Seats.

CHICAGO, Oct. 2.—With the arrival tonight of the first out-of-town contingent for the World Series, the prices of tickets for the three Chicago games were sent skyward by scalpers, who insist they will be able to supply purchasers who failed to get seats through the regular channels.

Although the reserved seat tickets and the box seats will not be distributed to purchasers until Thursday, scalpers are accepting deposits on orders and are asking $50 for a five-dollar box seat for three games and $25 for stand seats, which sold for $1.00 each. What system the speculators are using in their attempt to obtain tickets is puzzling officials of the Chicago Americans, as all tickets are registered and numbered, and the applicants will be obliged to call personally for their allotments. A Chicagoan who balked at the prices demanded by scalpers inserted an advertisement in a newspaper today offering $30 for two stand seats for the first two games.

Samuel A. Ettelson, Corporation Counsel, joined the fight with President Comiskey of the Chicago Club against scalping. Ettelson will confer with Chief of Police Schuettler tomorrow for the purpose of enlisting the aid of the police.

Purchasers of the 18,000 bleacher and pavilion seats, which will be placed on sale Saturday, will be obliged to pass through a long wire cage entering the park immediately after buying tickets. There will be no turning back. The reason for this is to prevent purchasers from passing tickets and then [illegible] in the crowds to resell them.

PFEFFER IS PEPPERED.

Boston Braves Pound Him Hard and Win from Brooklyn, 6 to 2.

In this flood of talk about the world's series it is perhaps being overlooked by many that the Dodgers, who still flaunt the championship emblem of the National League, and the Braves, former holders of the bunting, are fighting valiantly to decide which shall drop into seventh place. Yesterday's clash, the first of the series which will determine this momentous question, was decided at Ebbets Field, and the Dodgers, with one of those "after you" smiles, tossed the game over to the Boston men with the score 6 to 2, and settled the seventh position argument for the day at any rate.

Pfeffer undertook the task of holding the visitors in check, but the rattle of Boston hits was so persistent in the third inning that five runs were sent across the plate, enough to win the game without more worry. Aside from this fatal lapse Pfeffer did very well. Just a handful of Brooklyn fans saw the homecoming Dodgers go to defeat, and even those few were so nearly frozen with the cold that they couldn't give an encouraging word or a handclap. In the ninth inning Powell, the Boston centre fielder, rapped a circuit drive to the flag pole for a home run, but even that went by with little or no attention.

SOX TAKE PRACTICE GAME.

Benz Pitches Well in Contest Against Cleveland.

CLEVELAND, Oct. 2.—Chicago defeated Cleveland 8 to 5 today in the first of a series of two games to prepare the American League champions for the world series. Cleveland played listlessly in the field and Chicago's run-getting was made easy. Benz did the best work of the three pitchers used by the White Sox. A rally by Cleveland netted four runs in the ninth.

MISKE DEFEATS WEINERT.

St. Paul Boxer Has Big Margin Over New Jersey Rival.

Carrying the fight to his heavier opponent from the starting bell until the finish, Billy Miske, a St. Paul light-heavyweight, last night gained his second victory over Charlie Weinert, a Newark boxer, at the Broadway Sporting Club of Brooklyn. Starting slowly in the opening round, Miske took the aggressive with the second session, and from then until the finish he carried Weinert before him with a furious offensive which almost earned him a knockout victory.

Electing offensive in the second round, Miske completely surprised Weinert, and before the latter could evolve a style to combat the St. Paul boxer's aggressive Miske had Weinert staggering as a result of a hard left hook to the jaw. The St. Paul boxer, however, in his eagerness was wild and lost whatever chance he had to score a knockout.

RUEL BRINGS HOME YANKS' WINNING RUN

Young Catcher Helps Subdue Athletics as Season's Last Baseball Reel Is Started.

The last reel of the season's baseball movie was started at the Polo Grounds yesterday, when the Yankees trimmed the Athletics by a score of 3 to 2. The big fade-out comes this afternoon when the same talent will perpetrate a double-header. No matter what these two teams do, it will have no effect whatever on any one's peace of mind. They can go as far as they please and no one cares.

The crowd of 500 which sat around with overcoat collars turned up suddenly sat up and began to observe what was going on in the eighth inning when the Yanks started a rally which landed them in front. Up to that time Jingling Johnson had been pitching pretty fair ball and had held Donovan's men to three hits. The Athletics were in the lead by a score of 2 to 1 at this stage of the game and it was taken for granted that the struggle was over.

Sam Vick was the first batter up in the eighth and he poked a single to left. He went to second as Johnson was throwing Fewster out at first, and then Muddy Ruel made his first major league hit, a slamming single to centre, which pushed Vick home and tied the score. Ruel went to second on Strunk's toss home. Johnson whirled about and tried to catch Ruel napping off second and the Yank catcher sneaked to third. Terrible Tim Hendryx was shoved in to bat for King Brady, the Yankee recruit pitcher, and he hoisted a sacrifice fly to Witt in left and Ruel romped home with the winning run.

So King Brady starts his major league career with a victory. He pitched well enough, but his work was marred with passes which he issued most inopportunely. In the third inning Witt walked and went to second on Strunk's out at first. Wallie Schang, the catcher, who is now playing third base, punched a hit to right and sent Witt home.

The Yanks tied the score in their portion of the same round. Fewster singled to right and Ruel popped a foul fly to McAvoy and Brady popped one to Stuffy McInnis. Miller then smashed a hot grounder down the third base line, which Schang gobbled up and then made a strong-arm toss over McInnis's head. While the ball was taking its merry flight Fewster scored.

Sam Vick couldn't restrain an impulse to throw the ball around in the sixth inning, when with two gone McAvoy singled to right. Vick fielded the ball and wanted to make a smart play by throwing the runner out at first. The ball sailed over Pipp's head and McAvoy went to second.

Both clubs tried out a number of their recruits but no wonders were unearthed. Two years ago when Connie Mack had his general house cleaning, he announced that in a couple of seasons he would have another great team like the famous Athletics of 1911, but one season has gone by already and the Athletics yesterday appeared as if they had a record-breaking journey before they arrive at the standard set by the old world's champions.

RED SOX IN EVEN BREAK.

Divide Spoils of Double-Header, Losing to Senators and Then Winning.

BOSTON, Oct. 2.—Boston and Washington divided their double-header in the opening games of the final series of this season today. Washington won the first game 9 to 7 in ten innings by hitting Leonard freely.

In the second game Ayers and Mays, who are after bonus money, were the pitchers, and Boston won, 2 to 1. The game was called in the eighth inning on account of darkness. It was Bat and Ball Fund Day, and Manager Griffith of the Washington Club presented the several camps of the Department of the Northeast with baseball paraphernalia.

Killed in Football Practice.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Oct. 2.—The first fatality of the football season occurred here today when Francis Burns was killed during a practice game between teams made up of members of the Rindge Technical High School football squad. Burns's neck was broken when he tackled a player who was running back a punt.

FANS TO AID LIBERTY LOAN.

New Bond Issue to be on Sale at World's Series Games.

"Baseball Fans' Liberty Loan Day is scheduled for Oct. 9, the day of the opening world series game between the Giants and the Chicago White Sox in this city.

In order that the first championship contest here may not overshadow the $3,000,000,000 loan drive, Harry N. Hempstead, owner of the Giants, is making special efforts to gain the active support of every lover of the national game. He has promised the second Liberty Loan Committee that the Polo Grounds will be covered with banners to bring home forcefully the message of the loan to the 40,000 fans who are expected to jam their way into the big inclosure.

The players will have plenty of incentive to increase their batting averages by several prizes of $50 bonds which have been offered for the first home run.

The Giants were the first ball players to take up a part of the first loan, and several members of the team intend to invest in the new issue. Mr. Hempstead will also buy a liberal share of the certificates.

There will be several members of the Loan Committee present at the first game to receive subscriptions and answer questions of prospective investors.

COLUMBIA'S ELEVEN CHOSEN

Seven of Last Season's Players the Basis of 'Varsity Team.

Coach Metcalf has selected a tentative first team from the Columbia squad, which includes in addition to the four regulars of last year, Miller, Cochran, McCabe and Rosen, the three men on last year's freshman team who have returned. These are Healy, Eisfelder and Weinstein.

In the two practices of the week so far two divisions have been made, the backfield candidates in one and the ends in the other, as separated from the rest of the candidates. The ends have been given special training in tackling and the backs in running with the ball and bucking the line. The entire squad has been tried out daily in forward passes, tackling practice and work on the charging machines.

Captain Dal Cochran has shown up well in punting, his kicks traveling long distances and carrying up well in the wind. He and the other regulars have assisted in the coaching. From now on Tom Thorp will help Coach Metcalf as assistant.

FORDHAM LEARNS NEW PLAYS

Coaches Try Out Formations for Allentown Game Friday.

A long signal drill, in which several new formations for Friday's game with the Allentown ambulance eleven were practiced, occupied Fordham football players yesterday. A short dummy scrimmage was held to polish off the plays. Gulick got a trial at tackle as did Abbott at centre and Halligan at half-back. McDonough, a big tackle, and Halligan returned to the squad after a short absence.

A number of plays involving the forward pass were worked on. Fordham used only one pass last Saturday and that was intercepted. Coach McCaffery is still driving at the line. If the forwards can hold up under opposition the fast Maroon backs should be able to make good gains.

YALE PLANS DEVELOP.

Indications Are That Athletics Will Be More General.

NEW HAVEN, Oct. 2.—Athletic plans at Yale are slowly taking form, with a chance for a more general participation by the student body as a whole than in any previous year. Instead of a university crew it has been decided to have four crews made up of the most available material from the three upper classes. These crews will row every other day and will be trained by Professor Abbott as Coach Nickalls will not return from Europe to instruct the oarsmen. No outside races are planned for the crews though there will be both Fall and Spring regattas.

A regular freshman crew will be picked from the best material, which will have races against Harvard, Cornell and Pennsylvania crews. Five or six university crew men who are back will assist in the coaching of both the freshmen and the four upper class eights.

As most of the men who answered the call for football last Saturday were freshmen, the athletic managers have asked the men of the upper classes to turn out for practice at football, with the intention of forming an eleven which will play informal games with outside teams if a fair squad to represent the university can be got together. Three days a week have been set aside for athletics, and students have been urged to come out for football as a military training asset, on which particular stress will be laid during the Fall term.

Concannon Still in Lead.

BUFFALO, Oct. 2.—Joseph Concannon of New York, challenger, continued to lead Frank Taberski of Schenectady, pocket billiard champion, in the second night of their 450-ball match for the championship. Concannon pocketed 150 balls tonight while Taberski was scoring 141, making the score for the night's play, Concannon, 300; Taberski, 173.

TOWN HALL LEADS FIELD OF JUMPERS

W. R. Coe's Youngster Outfoots Other Harbor Hill Candidates in Aqueduct Event.

Three-year-old jumpers, all candidates for the Harbor Hill Cup to be competed for Saturday at Piping Rock, provided the principal attraction at Aqueduct yesterday, and the regular racegoers were augmented by a large contingent of amateur sportsmen. The race over the two-mile course brought out ten starters, and though nearly all of the field performed cleverly the preliminary contest served to demonstrate the superiority of W. R. Coe's Town Hall, the only jumper of his age to gain winning brackets this season. Town Hall fenced well and was in hand all the way. Med Henderson, who rode him, appeared content with a length's advantage over J. E. Davis's Melodrama at the finish.

The surprising part of the exhibition was that not one of the young steeplechasers fell. Two were pulled up when the pace began to tell, but not one blundered seriously, a remarkable state of affairs considering that many of the competitors were making their first attempt through the field. Commodore Gaunt, which was one of those that failed to finish, was full of running at the start and set the pace in the diagonal run across the infield. He gave way to Russian Pinion, which showed the way to Sir Richard, Melodrama, and Town Hall for the greater part of the first lap.

Commencing the last turn Melodrama and Town Hall raced up to Russian Pinion, but it was not until the far turn that Melodrama took the lead. All through the race Henderson was going wide with Town Hall to keep him out of possible trouble in case any of the novice fencers fell, but with the issue narrowed down to three horses Town Hall was sent alongside Melodrama. Nicklaus drove Melodrama for all he was worth, while Henderson watched his nearest rival and kept Town Hall in hand. The pair took the last obstacle almost together, but once on the flat Town Hall drew away to win by a length.

In the final half mile the leading pair had drawn twenty lengths away from Russian Pinion. Crack o' Day and Sir Richard followed closely, the latter particularly being worthy of praise as it was his first outing over the jumps.

In the flat races the contestants ran closer to form than on any previous day of the meeting. Four favorites and two well-played second choices won. In the stake feature, the Sunnybrook Selling at a mile, Clarence Buxton's Sasin closed an odds-on choice, but a strong play on Harry Shaw enabled the supporter of the favorite to obtain even money early in the speculation. For more than half the distance it looked as if Harry Shaw might win as he raced in the lead with Harvest King, while Sasin was a distant trailer. Once in the stretch Sasin began to run in earnest and caught the field so quickly that he was in the lead at the eighth pole, continuing his great flight of speed to win by eight lengths. Brooklyn came from behind to challenge Harry Shaw for the place, but Harry finished gamely and earned the decision by a head.

The fifth race at a mile and a sixteenth brought out four good performers with F. D. Weir's Hendrie the top weight in the handicap. Hendrie was a strong favorite, but he never could shake off J. E. Widener's Chiclet. The pair raced close together well into the stretch where Keogh on Chiclet stole a march on Peak and obtained a lead of a length and a half. He kept this advantage until the last fifty yards when Peake woke up and nearly turned the tables with a Garrison finish that landed Hendrie only a nose behind Chiclet at the line.

THE REAL LADY WINS.

Captures Blue Ribbon of Trotting Turf in Straight Heats.

LEXINGTON, Ky., Oct. 2.—The Real Lady, driven by Murphy, won the $14,000 Kentucky Futurity, the "blue ribbon" of the trotting turf, in convincing style here today. Miss Bertha Dillon, the world's champion three-year-old filly, was a heavy favorite for the race, but was distanced in the second heat. In the third heat, The Real Lady reduced her record of 2:04¼ to 2:03¾, which is also the fastest third heat for a three-year-old filly and within a quarter of a second of the stake record.

The first heat was the closest of the meeting, in which the judges' eyes caught The Real Lady first a nose ahead of Miss Bertha Dillon.

BORROW AGAIN DEFEATED.

Whitney Crack Fails to Carry Weight in Laurel Race.

LAUREL, Md., Oct. 2.—Harry Payne Whitney's Borrow, which has not won a race since his memorable victory in the Brooklyn Handicap, met with defeat again today in the Oakwood Handicap. The distance of a mile was scarcely suited to the Whitney crack, and, though Loftus had him going great guns in the stretch, he failed to reach Grant Hugh Browne's Ed Cudihee, which was in receipt of twenty-two pounds from Borrow. Haynes, who rode Ed Cudihee, scored another victory in the last race with Wilfrid Viau's Airman.

Edward B. McLean's Japhet defeated more fancied candidates in the first race, for two-year-olds, and there was another surprise in the sixth race, when a strong finish by Jimmy Butwell landed C. F. Brant's Fairly a winner over Ella Ryan, another outsider. This was the second winner for Butwell, as he had previously scored easily with the Cleveland Stable's Dorcas.

OUIMET DEFEATS BRADY.

Wins Golf Match Announced as His Last Before Entering Army.

BELMONT, Mass., Oct. 2.—Francis Ouimet, Western amateur golf champion, defeated M. J. Brady, Massachusetts open champion, 5 up and 4 to play, in a thirty-six-hole match for the benefit of the American Red Cross, on the links of the Belmont Springs County Club today. It was announced as Ouimet's last match before he enters the national army.

MISS WAGNER WINS IN STRAIGHT SETS

Teamed with Miss Moore, She Also Wins in Doubles at Women's Tennis Tourney.

Play in the women's open tennis tournament at the New York Lawn Tennis Club advanced to the semi-final round of the singles event as a result of yesterday's competition, and the doubles event progressed through the second round. In the singles the survivors are Miss Marie Wagner, national indoor champion; Miss Bessie Holden, Miss Helene Pollak, and Mrs. Samuel Waring. The first three of these won their brackets yesterday, while Mrs. Waring took her place as a result of her victories on Monday.

For the most part the winners earned their places yesterday without experiencing very spirited opposition, straight sets prevailing in every instance. Miss Wagner's deep driving and careful placing game was far too strong for Mrs. Percy Wilbourn to combat with success, and the indoor champion romped away with the match at 6—2, 6—2. Miss Holden and Miss Caroma Winn had a bit more spirited contest, Miss Holden winning at 6—4, 6—3. Miss Pollak disposed of Mrs. Ingo Hartman in a 6—2, 6—4 contest.

Five doubles matches were played. Miss Bessie Moore, former holder of the national singles title, was teamed with Miss Wagner, and these two won their first-round encounter against Miss Florence Crane and Miss Ethel MacArthur without being at all pressed to earn the decision. The score was 6—3, 6—0.

The summaries:

SINGLES.—First Round—Mrs. F. J. Strauss won from Mrs. C. C. Parsons by default. Second Round—Miss Marie Wagner defeated Mrs. Edward Lynch, 6—1, 6—2; Miss Caroma Winn defeated Mrs. F. J. Strauss, 6—3, 6—1.

Third Round—Miss Marie Wagner defeated Mrs. Percy Wilbourn, 6—2, 6—2; Miss Bessie Holden defeated Miss Caroma Winn, 6—4, 6—3; Miss Helene Pollak defeated Mrs. Ingo Hartman, 6—2, 6—4.

DOUBLES.—First Round—Mrs. W. H. Pritchard and Mrs. F. C. Conklin defeated Mrs. L. Z. Murray and Mrs. W. H. Damrau, 6—1, 6—2; Miss Bessie Moore and Miss Marie Wagner defeated Miss Florence Crane and Miss Ethel MacArthur, 6—3, 6—0; Mrs. Albert Humphries and Miss Bessie Holden defeated Mrs. S. Waring and Mrs. Embree Henderson, 6—1, 6—4.

Second Round—Miss Helen Bernhard and Miss Helene Pollak defeated Miss E. Sidenberg and Miss T. Blum, 6—2, 6—2; Mrs. Albert Stearns and Miss Ethel Bagg defeated Miss Marion Iler and Miss E. Kahn, 6—2, 6—1.

WOMEN REACH TENNIS FINAL

Miss White to Meet Mrs. Le Roy in West Side Match.

The women's championship at the West Side Tennis Club has narrowed down to a contest between Mrs. Robert Le Roy and Miss Edith White. These two players came through the semi-final round yesterday, the former by defeating Mrs. Theodore Cassebeer in a spirited three-set match, at 6—3, 4—6, 6—0, while Miss White defeated Mrs. De Forest Candee at 6—3, 6—8, 6—1, and thereby caused something of a surprise.

This match was sturdily fought during the first two sets, with brilliant rallies frequently interpolated. Miss White, after having been forced to relinquish the second set, rallied her strongest game to her command and won decisively.

The summaries:

Women's Championship Singles.—Semi-final Round—Mrs. Robert Le Roy defeated Mrs. Theodore C. Cassebeer, 6—3, 4—6, 6—0; Miss Edith White defeated Mrs. De Forest Candee, 6—3, 6—8, 6—1.

NEW EXPORT RULES GIVEN TO SHIPPERS

AIM TO AID WAR'S WORK

2,000 Representative Bankers, Railroad and Steamship Men Attend Meeting and Get Information.

Nearly 2,000 representative bankers, shippers, railroad and steamship men gathered yesterday in the grand ballroom of the Hotel Astor to listen to an address by C. A. Richards, Director of the Federal Bureau of Export Licenses, who came to New York upon invitation of the Merchants Association to explain to merchants interested in foreign trade the procedure to be followed in procuring licenses. At the close of the address, the meeting resolved itself into a forum in which business men on the floor and in the galleries opened a rapid fire of questions designed to meet individual export license requirements.

So many were the queries propounded for the Government's representative to answer that at the expiration of two hours S. Christy Mead, Secretary of the Merchants Association, who presided, announced that further questioning of Mr. Richards would have to be deferred.

Mr. Richards emphasized that it was the intention of the Exports Administrative Council and the Licensing Board to be as liberal as possible in the granting of licenses. At the same time he reminded his hearers that the licensing regulation was a war measure and must be regarded in that spirit by loyal American exporters. The Director was unable to give assurances that delays in granting permits would not occur, and as an explanation told of the various departments of the Government at Washington which had to be consulted before the board was in a position to act upon a given application.

Mr. Richards set at rest rumors existing in local exporting circles that shipments of steel plates, upon which an embargo was placed, would be allowed to be sent to Japan. Licenses for steel plates and other material required for foreign shipbuilding, the Director said, would be granted only in exceptional cases. The same thing applied to tin. So-called British letters of assurance, the speaker said, would soon be a thing of the past. His statement that the powers of the New York Exports Licensing Bureau, which had been somewhat limited, would be enlarged from time to time evoked applause.

"You gentlemen," said Mr. Richards, "must keep in mind the fact that this entire business is a war measure. It is a war measure which has to consider three things in particular—conservation, consignor, and consignee. As an example of the first, I might instance the case of steel plates. Every one knows that through sinkings by submarines the tonnage of the world is short, and this country may need all the plates that can be rolled to enable the shipyards to produce steamers faster than the submarines can sink them, and to provide necessary transportation for our troops and for supplies to maintain them abroad. It is obvious, therefore, that licenses for shipments of plates would only be granted under very exceptional circumstances, if at all."

With reference to the treatment to be accorded tin plate during the period of the war Mr. Richards said:

"Tin plate, for example, which is on the conservation list, is being very carefully watched—first, because it is difficult to procure tin abroad; secondly, because we must conserve the tin plate manufactured in this country, to be sure that it is used for purposes which will directly or indirectly contribute to the success of the war. Applications for tin plate are therefore submitted to the special scrutiny not only of our own expert but to the Tin Plate Conservation Committee, which consists of representatives of various Government departments which are particularly interested in this product. Exporters would do wisely not to make sales for goods on the conservation list unless they first receive a license."

The Question of Coal and Fodder.

Mr. Richards next discussed the extent to which the American Government should permit fodder, sulphuric acid and other articles to be exported when they were to be put to uses which only indirectly contributed to the success of the war. It was a problem, he said, for the Exports Administrative Council to decide. He cited another example. If the board should decide that this Government did not wish fodder to go to a European neutral to feed cattle likely to be used by the enemy, to what extent should it grant bunker coal to a vessel flying the flag of its country which came here to take a cargo of general merchandise to South America, with the intention on arrival there of taking the same goods which she could not obtain here back to her own country?

"Every one knows we need all the coal we can produce," the Director said, "and we all know that no one desires to injure our trade with South America, but shall we permit neutral nations of Europe to have the privilege of buying the coal which we need so much here, in order to circumvent our refusals for fodder, even when by refusing these bunker licenses we may indirectly work a hardship on American trade?"

Mr. Richards discussed the rules to govern shipments of lumber, and called attention to the ruling whereby small quantities of food grains, flour, butter, and sugar destined for Canada, Newfoundland, and Mexico may be licensed by the indorsement of the Collector of Customs at the point of exit on the shipper's export declaration. If these concessions are abused, the Director warned, they will be withdrawn.

On the question of British letters of assurance, Mr. Richards said it was merely a waste of time for shippers to apply to the British Government for such letters. Possession of a British letter of assurance was not to be taken "as any indication that a license may be granted." Mr. Richards emphasized that, in order to facilitate the movement of troops, their supplies, and equipment to France, it was necessary for all exporters to do everything in their power to prevent any congestion on the railroads by deferring shipments to seaboard until they had first obtained their export licenses, and then by endeavoring to have ocean freighting arrangements made before the shipment leaves the interior, so as to secure prompt exportation of the goods upon their arrival at seaboard.

Make the World Safe for Business

This war is not only a war to make the world safe for democracy. It is a war to make the world safe for life and liberty. And it is a war to make the world safe for business. This world is not big enough for both business and war. One of them must go.

If more wars are going to come, if every nation is going to be turned into a vast armed camp; if we have to see bayonets on every street corner and guns on every merchant ship; if we must tax our people and our commerce to support a vast army and an immense navy and be prepared to throw the whole power of the nation into the battle line at 24 hours' notice--then business, as we in America understand it, cannot continue to exist. The burden will be too great.

If business is to prosper and legitimate commerce to continue unchecked and free from the blight of warfare, then war must end. Militarism and business cannot exist side by side.

This is more than a war for democracy, liberty, life, and business. It is a war to end war.

The only way this war can be ended with a peace that shall endure, is in victory for the United States and our allies.

To be victorious, the Second Liberty Loan of 1917 must be promptly and fully subscribed.

Every dollar you put into these bonds is a dollar subscribed to end war and provide the basis for an enduring peace.

The bonds are the best investment in the market—a direct obligation of the United States Government, bearing 4% interest, maturing in 25 years, free from the normal federal income tax and from local personal property taxes, readily marketable and readily available as collateral.

It is to your own best interests to go to your bank and subscribe—to-day.

FINANCIAL MARKETS

Stocks Sag Lower of Their Own Weight—Rails Go to New Low Levels.

The stock market continues to sag, and not even the announcement of the formation of a money pool with a fund of more than $200,000,000 to be used in stabilizing rates served to dispel the depression that has settled again upon financial circles. Yesterday's decline was more pronounced in the railroads than on the other side of the list, but some of the industrials plainly reflected liquidation induced by the growing feeling of uneasiness engendered by the new war revenue measure.

Weakness in St. Paul was pronounced again yesterday, despite the long period of declines through which the company's shares have been passing. The common stock made a new low record at 50, closing at 51 with a net loss of 2 points, while the preferred dropped off 2½. Baltimore & Ohio went to 59½, closing at 60½, off 1⅞; Norfolk & Western sold at 107⅞ and closed off 1, and Wisconsin Central declined 3¼. The weakness in the rails has not been due to any recent development, but represents the growing feeling of discouragement over the outlook for any upturn in their net revenues. There is a limit to the economies which the transportation companies can effect to stem the inroads of advancing costs, and there is little prospect of early relief of the only kind possible through a reopening of the rate question. The New England lines are going back to the commission with a plea for permission to advance interstate passenger fares, but with materials, coal, and labor rising at an unprecedented rate the small measure of help given in the recent advance has been more than offset before the new schedules have begun to show results. The situation is unpleasant for security holders, but it manifestly cannot go forever without being remedied, and the promise of the Interstate Commerce Commision to keep a close watch on the course of earnings must sooner or later bring about a reconsideration of the whole question of adequacy of rates established in normal times to cover abnormal operating expenses.

The excess profits section of the new War Revenue bill as it passed the House has so far baffled most of the experts who have been trying to apply it to concrete instances. There is a consensus of opinion that the measure is crudely framed and full of inequalities, but it begins to look as though Congress would enact it into law with little regard for the complaints that are being registered. The underlying feeling of depression that has found expression through the stock market has been due to fears that the law will seriously encroach upon the margin of earnings over and above fixed charges of many corporations.

The work of placing the new Liberty bonds is going ahead with gratifying results. The committees which are at work in the several reserve districts have made much better progress to date than was made in the initial campaign, largely because of the utilization of machinery provided to handle the $2,000,000,000 issue. Money loaned yesterday at 5 per cent. for renewals, with some offerings at 3 per cent. later in the day.

LONDON MARKET IMPROVES.

War Bond Prospectus Well Received on the Stock Exchange.

LONDON, Oct. 2.—The prospectus of the new war bonds was well received, and it is believed the issue will be supported liberally, as the terms are attractive. Business on the Stock Exchange was interrupted by air raid gossip, but the tone of the markets was good. There was an upward tendency in Argentine rails and a fair demand for gilt-edged securities. Grand Trunk shares were weak on the passing of the dividend. Speculative rubbers were easier. Russians weakened owing to the uncertain situation.

Money was in better supply. Discounts were steady.

Trading Quiet on Paris Bourse.

PARIS, Oct. 2.—Trading was quiet on the Bourse today. Three per cent. rentes, 60 francs 20 centimes for cash. Exchange on London, 27 francs 18 centimes. Five per cent. loan, 88 francs 30 centimes.

Payment in Milliken Dissolution.

Milliken Brothers, the old Staten Island steel fabricating company, is in process of dissolution. The plant and uncompleted contracts were turned over last July to Wallace Downey, who has organized the Downey Shipbuilding Company on the Milliken site on the Kill van Kull. Holders of the preferred stock will receive $10 per share on Oct. 25 and a second payment is expected within sixty days. A substantial amount of assets still remain to be disposed of.

TOPICS IN WALL STREET.

"Money Pool" Helps.

Announcement of the formation of a "money pool," with $200,000,000 immediately available, had a salutary effect on the money market yesterday. Rates for call loans eased off, most transactions being put through at 5, compared with 6 per cent. on Monday. It is understood that the banks intend making free use of the rediscounting facilities of the Federal Reserve Bank, and it was said yesterday that the banks had more eligible commercial paper on hand than was generally supposed, the campaign of education designed to have business men issue paper maturing in not more than ninety days having proved effective. In addition to commercial paper, the banks may borrow from the Reserve Bank on their own note, secured by United States Treasury certificates of indebtedness.

Last Day for Certificates.

Today is the last day that banks and individuals desiring to subscribe to the latest issue of $400,000,000 of 4 per cent. certificates of indebtedness offered by Secretary McAdoo on Sept. 24 may make their payments to the Federal Reserve Banks. Some institutions have already made investments, while others have been holding off until the last day. It is not necessary for a bank subscriber to forward a check or currency, but it may effect the payment by notifying the Reserve Bank that it has made a transfer credit on its books, retaining its subscription as a Government deposit.

Sale of British Treasury Bills.

J. P. Morgan & Co. announced yesterday that the rate for the $15,000,000 of British Treasury ninety-day bills, offered this week, had been fixed at 5½ per cent., the same as during the last two previous weeks. Payments for subscriptions to the issue will be made tomorrow. The bills mature on Jan. 2. The bankers are not pushing the sale of the British Treasury bills, and are not offering more than $15,000,000 any one week. Those who desire to make investments are supplied, but special pains are taken to avoid the possibility of the British bills hurting the sale of United States 4 per cent. Treasury certificates of indebtedness. The two issues are quite different in character.

A Discouraged Party.

The bull party in stocks has reached the stage where it is merely hoping against hope. Yesterday's decline caused particular discouragement in some quarters where it had been thought the news of the Money Committee's definite steps to safeguard the money market would promote a better feeling for stocks. The liquidation of railroad shares proceeded at a rapid rate, particularly in St. Paul, New York Central and Baltimore & Ohio, and the late recoveries failed to stimulate sentiment in their favor. Readjustment processes in the rails have been evident for a long time, and signs have been lacking so far this week that they were passing through the final stage.

A Poor Cotton Crop.

It has been a long time since the cotton market has been so unpleasantly surprised by a Government crop report as it was yesterday. As a rule, the last condition report of the year is fairly accurately discounted by the various private estimates which are published a few days before it, and although the day the Government report is published sees considerable fluctuation due to adjustment, its effect on the ultimate status of the market is not often considerable. Yesterday's report, however, was more than 2 per cent. below even bullish expectations, and such a surprise, indeed, that it took an hour or so really to sink in. Then the market began to move rapidly.

Anaconda's Production Cut.

The Anaconda Copper Mining Company reports a production of 2,800,000 pounds in September, a decline of 75 per cent. from the output in August. This is a startling showing, but the seriousness of the situation is lessened by news that the miners are gradually returning to work. In September last year the company turned out 29,400,000 pounds, and last May, before strike troubles appeared, the output was 28,400,000. The biggest month this year was March, with 31,300,000 pounds. As all the companies affected by the strike suffered a heavy decline in production in July, August and September, the shortage of supplies of refined metal bids fair to be emphasized in the last two months of the year.

The Ship Chartering Committee.

Welding Ring, Chairman of the Chartering Committee of the United States Shipping Board, yesterday obtained at least temporary office-room in the Customs House, and set to work with J. B. Smull, the third member of his committee, getting ready for duty. Both Mr. Ring and Mr. Smull, apparently, have not abandoned hope of persuading Daniel Bacon of the West India Steamship Company, to reconsider his refusal to act as second member of the committee. The general sentiment in shipping circles was in accord with them in this. The good impression made by Mr. Ring's appointment has been strengthened by the names of his associates. Practically every shipping man yesterday declared that the committee, with Mr. Ring, Mr. Bacon and Mr. Smull, was as strong as any the Shipping Board could have picked, and would command the entire confidence of the industry, and that it would be a great pity if Mr. Bacon could not see his way, in spite of his duties on the Board of Appraisal of the Navy Department, to remain on the committee, if only for the strength which his name would give it.

Herbert C. Hoover's Double.

Jacob B. Smull, of James H. Winchester & Co., newly-appointed third member of the Shipping Board Chartering Committee, is the dead image, unless Mr. Hoover's pictures belie him, of Herbert C. Hoover, United States Food Administrator. Mr. Smull has had to endure considerable good-natured joking from his friends on the resemblance, but now that he, like Mr. Hoover, is in the Government service, they are declaring the resemblance goes deeper than the skin. One highly valuable quality Mr. Smull shares with Mr. Hoover—both men are reported to be gluttons for work.

Slack Business in Copper.

Inquiries in the copper market show that little, if any, business in substantial amounts has been done at the fixed price of 23½ cents a pound. Under the agreement with the Government, the producers are obligated to sell their supplies at this quotation, and as their output is subject first to Federal demands, they are not desirous of entering into contracts with private consumers until the extent of probable Federal consumption for the next three months is known. There are plenty of bids in the market at 23½ cents, with offerings coming from "second hands" at prices ranging from 26 to 27 cents. There are said to be only meagre supplies of the metal available at the higher levels, as consumption has kept closely abreast of production of marketable copper from all sources for many months.

Government Steel Costs.

The Federal Trade Commission's examination into production and prices in the steel industry brought forth the estimate of about 43,000,000 tons of ingots as the country's probable output this year. From this tonnage slightly more than 32,000,000 tons of rolled products would be turned out. The Government's steel experts have figured that the steel already ordered in war preparations and for the shipping program aggregates approximately 6,000,000 tons of rolled material, and it is expected that fully 1,000,000 tons more will be asked for in the near future. The prices recently established show that a fair average for the major items sought by the Government will be 3 cents a pound, indicating a total outlay of $400,000,000 and more for the steel thus far ordered. The figures indicate that producers may count upon the Government taking around 20 per cent. of the nation's output in the twelve months begun July 1, provided the mills continue to operate on the current basis. Of plates the percentage is likely to be much higher. On top of this comes the orders for the allied Governments, whose total may not yet be estimated.

How Will the Cost of the War Be Met?

The colossal sums required to carry on the war must be paid by the people. The Government has no other source from which to secure the money.

There are two ways by which the Government can get this money from the people. One is by taxation; the other is by the sale of bonds.

When you are taxed, your money is gone. You never see it again. When you buy a Government bond you get all your money back, and interest besides.

So, you see, it is much more to your interest to buy Liberty Bonds than it is to be taxed.

But there is another reason why you should buy Liberty Bonds--a bigger, better reason--a more unselfish and patriotic reason.

You love your country. You know it is the finest country in the world to live in. You love your country's flag. It is the symbol of liberty, justice and equality. It protects your life and your property.

Hundreds of thousands of your fellow Americans are going abroad to fight for your country and your flag.

They are ready to lay down their lives, if need be, to make sure that no invader's foot shall desecrate American ground; that your family, your home, your property, your liberty, are not destroyed or violated.

These gallant young Americans must have food, clothing, arms and ammunition. Otherwise they are lost, and the war is lost.

That is the purpose to which the money you pay for Liberty Bonds will be put. That is the reason why you should buy Liberty Bonds.

Do it now. Buy all you can.

An Ideal Investment for Your Funds

As a matter of sound business judgment and foresight, every corporation, partnership, and firm, should invest a goodly portion of its surplus in the Second Liberty Loan of 1917.

These bonds are an ideal investment for the surplus of any business because of—

1. Their absolute safety.
2. Their quick marketability.
3. Their immediate availability as collateral.
4. Their stability in value.
5. Their attractive interest rate.
6. Their freedom from local personal property taxes.

We suggest to American corporations, partnerships, and firms of all kinds and characters, that they immediately invest such a portion of their surplus in Liberty Bonds as may be advisable, and make further purchases as additional sums are set aside for surplus.

Moreover, every American business man must remember that this is a war to make the world safe for business, as well as safe for democracy. It is a war to end war.

Unless we are victorious and achieve a just and permanent peace, we must look forward to an age of militarism and of renewed warfare, and a colossal burden of taxation. To do your part in averting these evils, subscribe to the Second Liberty Loan and help toward victory and lasting peace.

A subscription to the Second Liberty Loan is a patriotic act and an act of good business judgment.

Your bank will handle the details of your subscription and aid you with its advice.

Federal Experts Estimate That September Loss from Forecast Was 452,000 Bales.

WEATHER CONDITIONS BAD

Storms, Boll Worms, and Weevils and a Lack of Potash Figured in the Deterioration.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 2.—Deterioration during September over almost the entire cotton belt caused a loss of 452,000 bales in the prospective production of cotton and left the 1917 crop at 12,047,000 equivalent 500-pound bales. The Department of Agriculture in its final condition report of the season, today announced a decline of 7.4 points in cotton's condition during the month, caused principally by boll worms and weevils. Cool weather, drought, shedding, wilt, blight, lack of potash in fertilizer and in the extreme Eastern belt, storm damage, also caused loss.

Picking of cotton was general and was being pushed except in the northern part of the belt, the department reported. There is complaint of a scarcity of pickers in many districts.

A final estimate of production will be made in December.

A yield of 168.3 pounds of cotton an acre was forecast. Condition by States on Sept. 25 was:

Virginia 69, North Carolina 63, South Carolina 67, Georgia 62, Florida 61, Alabama 55, Mississippi 63, Louisiana 69, Texas 53, Arkansas 68, Tennessee 65, Missouri 76, Oklahoma 62, California 80, Arizona 87.

The production, forecast from conditions on Sept. 25 and allowing 1 per cent. from the planted acreage for abandonment, compares with a forecast of 12,499,000 bales made on the Aug. 25 condition; 11,949,000 bales, made on the July 25 condition, and 11,633,000 bales, made on the June 25 condition. The area planted this year was 34,600,000 acres.

Last year's production was 11,449,930 bales on an area of 35,239,000 acres, and a final condition of 56.3 per cent. of a normal; the 1915 production was 11,192,000 bales on an area of 31,412,000 acres and a final condition of 60.8 per cent. of a normal, and the 1914 production was 16,135,000 bales (the record crop) on an area of 36,332,000 acres with a final condition of 73.5 per cent. of a normal. The ten-year average of condition on Sept. 25 is 65.7 per cent. of a normal, and the ten-year average change in condition from Aug. 25 to Sept. 25 is 5.2 points.

The Census Bureau's second cotton ginning report of the season, announcing the amount of cotton ginned from the growth of 1917, prior to Sept. 25, compares with 4,081,989 bales, counting round as half bales, ginned prior to that date last year, and 2,903,829 bales in 1915. Sea Island cotton included in last year's ginning amounted to 31,261 bales and in 1915 they were 19,091.

Corrected statistics for the quantity ginned prior to Sept. 1 were announced today as 615,597 bales. Ginnings by States were as follows: Alabama, 94,557; Arizona, 35; Arkansas, 48,343; California, 1,515; Florida, 13,752; Georgia, 581,288; Louisiana, 153,145; Mississippi, 115,499; Missouri, 225; North Carolina, 28,614; Oklahoma, 47,678; South Carolina, 233,930; Tennessee, 35; Texas, 1,179,406; Virginia, 1; all other States, 8.

Ginnings of Sea Island by States were: Florida, 9,282; Georgia, 9,382; South Carolina, 67.

PIERRE JAY REPORTS BUSINESS GOOD HERE

Enormous Buying By the Government Is Felt in Most Staple Lines.

Pierre Jay, Chairman of the Board of the Federal Reserve Bank of New York, in his monthly review of business conditions in this Federal Reserve district, finds the general situation good, with chief emphasis continuing upon the enormous buying of the Government, whose influence is predominant in most staple lines.

"Conservatism in buying continues and has had desirable effects," the report says, "notable among them being a pause in the upward movement of commodity prices and the maintenance of generally satisfactory collections. The general report is that payments are being made with a promptness gratifying in view of increased investments necessary to carry on business under present conditions, and of the firm money rates. The volume of business, including Government orders, as measured in dollars, is above that of recent months and of last year. Certain industries which experienced depression report distinct revival of business, the automobile industry being a notable example.

"Manufacturers of machinery are busy principally on orders for the Government or for machinery to be used on Government work, and have their output engaged for some months ahead. Little new business is coming in, however, as deliveries to purchasers other than the Government are subject to delay. A similar condition obtains in the iron and steel industries."

The copper price fixed by the Government, it is remarked, is expected to have good effects. In the rubber tire industry the price of cotton, instead of the price of rubber, now governs, and is so high as to have forced price advances on the finished tires. The building industry in the city is light, but building supplies are in demand, notably materials for rapid construction work.

The Food Administration, Mr. Jay finds, is generally expected to bring about lower prices of flour and sugar, and the Government buying methods have been carefully designed to disturb the market as little as possible. The clothing trades are in general experiencing higher prices but no relatively great change in volume of business done. The Government's demand for shoes is placed at 2 per cent. of the total demand, and is offset somewhat by decreases in other demand. The consumption of luxuries, however, shows no decrease under war conditions.

Rail transportation conditions have shown some improvement. Ocean rates seem to have reached top notch, and owing to delays in getting cargo, both because of embargo restrictions and delayed arrivals, steamship lines are having more difficulty in completing their cargoes on time, with the result that space is offered more frequently at cut rates for filling up. Reports from banks and business houses indicate that the demand for money during the coming months will be heavy.

FORM NEW CARBIDE CONCERN

Company to Have Capital of 3,000,000 Shares Without Stated Value.

The Union Carbide and Carbon Corporation has been organized under laws of this State with a capital of 3,000,000 shares without stated par value. The new organization proposes to absorb the Union Carbide Company, the National Carbon Company, the Prest-O-lite Company, and the Linde Air Products Company.

Stockowners of the Union Carbide Company are offered two and one-half shares of the corporation for each share of their present holdings, while two shares of new stock will be given for each Prest-O-lite share, and three and one-quarter shares for each Linde Air Products share. Myron T. Herrick is to be Chairman of the corporation's Board of Directors and George O. Knapp, President of the Union Carbide Company, is to be President. The Directorate, beside these officers, will consist of C. K. G. Billings, Charles A. Coffin, Jesse J. Ricks, Andrew Squire, Nicholas F. Brady, G. W. Davison, Conrad Hubert, James Parmelee, Roger C. Sullivan, F. C. Walcott, and James N. Wallace.

The companies to be united in the corporation are large producers of carbon, oxygen, and acetylene products. The Union Carbide Company has $12,600,000 preferred and common stock, the National Carbon Company $5,600,000 preferred and about 1,000,000 shares of common without par value, and the Prest-O-lite Company 100,000 nonpar shares.

THE COTTON MARKET

Prices Advance from 103 to 114 Points on Poor Government Crop Report.

A surprisingly poor Government crop report yesterday and a proportionately low ginning report sent the entire list up more than a cent a pound on the cotton market yesterday, and although the highest figures reached were not sustained under late realizing, the closing bell found the market barely steady, with symptoms of further advances liberally manifesting themselves. Cotton is now selling on an average of between 5 and 6 cents a pound higher than its price of only a month ago, and several months passed the 25-cent level at the top of the market.

December contracts, which were nearest the average of the market, sold up to 25.06c, an advance of 122 points over Monday's closing price, and closed at 24.92c. The net advance for the general list ran from 103 to 114 points.

The trade had been prepared for small ginning figures owing to the lateness of the season and the light movement into sight, but it hardly looked for returns as small as shown by the census report. This accounted for an opening advance of 22 to 26 points, and as soon as the Government's crop figures were issued the buying became general and excited. In addition to Wall Street and Western buying there was an active demand from both foreign and domestic trade interests which sent prices rapidly higher in spite of realizing and increased Southern hedging. Active months sold 118 to 126 points above last night's closing figures, closing a few points off from the best under realizing.

Early ginning returns are not considered a safe guide to the crop, but yesterday's report, indicating only 2,496,581 bales ginned prior to Sept. 25, emphasized the lateness of the season and consequently the dangers of a possible early frost. The trade had expected a condition in the neighborhood of 62.2, which would have meant only a slight change in the crop indication. The condition of 60.4 officially reported pointed to a yield of 12,047,000 bales, compared with the indication of 12,499,000 last month, excluding linters. This reduction in crop figures, combined with recent free exports, evidently created a very strong bullish feeling around the ring, and even after the advance there was talk of materially higher prices.

The buying movement was slowed down somewhat during the afternoon by reports of an easier spot basis in the Southwest. This was attributed to the rapidity of the advance in futures, and local bulls felt that the effect of today's reports would show in the attitude of Southern holders. Reports from New Orleans said the Cotton Growers' Conference in session there had voted to fix the price at 45 cents a pound.

Exports for the day were 49,285 bales, making 842,141 so far this season, against 926,721 last year. Southern spot markets as officially reported were unchanged to a cent higher.

COMMODITIES MARKETS

WHEAT.

The movement at Western points continues to be the principal factor of interest in the wheat market. Receipts were slightly under last week, although for two days the movement shows an increase of about 100,000 bushels from two days last week, but is about 1,750,000 bushels under last year. RYE—Market easier. No. 2 Western, $1.97, cost, insurance, and freight, New York.

CORN.

The corn market again displayed its ability to rally from depressions. Early prices declined about a cent a bushel under scattered liquidation prompted by very optimistic views of the crop outlook. The price of old cash corn was also lower, and there seemed to be little on which to base bullish expectations. When shorts attempted to cover, however, they again found offers withdrawn and prices hardened, and closed firm, with gains of about 2 cents a bushel from the bottom and ⅝@1c from the previous close. Meantime the market for old corn is coming down steadily, and in the local market, No. 2 yellow was quoted at $2.10 and No. 2 mixed at $2.05, cost, insurance, and freight, New York.

OATS.

There was comparatively little feature to the oats market and prices moved largely in sympathy with the action of corn. Offers from the country are not oppressive, and while exporters are doing little at present the cash position shows considerable firmness. Stocks of oats on the farms are believed to be large, but farmers are not selling freely, and many believe that oats are worth more money as a feeding proposition and in comparison with other commodities. The local cash market was steadier; standard quoted at 66@66½c; No. 2 white, 66½c; No. 3 white, 65½@66c; No. 4 white, 65@65½c; fancy clipped white, 67½@69½c; ordinary clipped white, 65½@67½c, all elevator.

PROVISIONS.

The market for hog products was easier early owing to a decline in the market for live hogs and on a feeling of hesitation about taking an aggressive stand on the buying side. Offers were small, however, and when a little more active buying appeared prices rallied and closed firm at the top. Packing of hogs continues to run far behind last year, and some authorities maintain that there is little probability of heavy pressure until there is some accumulation of stocks. Receipts of hogs at Chicago were 8,000; estimated for today, 16,000. Kansas City received 9,000 and Omaha 3,900.

COTTONSEED OIL.

The market for cottonseed oil was nervous owing to a communication to the trade from the Vice President of the Produce Exchange warning traders against purely speculative operations. Prices yesterday were strong, however, closing with net gains of 10@30 points on buying, based on the bullish Government report on cotton, and the pronounced strength in the crude position. ### COFFEE.

There was further liquidation in the market for coffee futures yesterday. The selling was not particularly heavy, but it seemed to be for both domestic and foreign account, while demand was limited except for some scattered covering, as prices made new low ground for the movement. Closing prices were 4 to 9 points lower. Sales were reported of 35,500 bags. The local spot market was quiet and unchanged at 8¼c for Rio 7s and 9¾c for Santos 4s. Range of prices:

SUGAR.

The general acute situation here may be somewhat relieved by the reported purchase by Great Britain of 150,000 tons of Java sugar, October-December shipment, at 8c, free on board Java. Heretofore it has been a question of getting sugar from the Far East to England, but it is now believed that Great Britain is counting on American ships to be placed in the European trade, allowing British tonnage to be sent to the East. Refined sugar here was unchanged at 8.35@8.50c, with a moderate demand in evidence. Warner bought 15,000 bags Cuban raw sugar, prompt shipment, at 5⅞c, cost and freight, and there was a rumored sale of Cubas, prompt shipment to Canadian interests, at the same price level. Canadian interests are very active on the buying side and would take more sugars in the prompt positions if available. Spot prices follow: Centrifugal 6.90c; molasses, 6.02c; cost and freight, 5⅞c.

BUTTER AND EGG MARKET.

BUTTER.—Receipts today, 8,279 packages. Supplies only moderate, but demand not quite so snappy, and the general market is without material change. Feeling about steady at yesterday's advance. Creamery, higher than extras, per pound, 46¼@47c; extras, (93 score,) 46c; firsts, (88 to 91 score,) 44¼@45½c; seconds, (85 to 87 score,) 43@44c; thirds, 41½@42½c; creamery, unsalted, higher than extras, 48@48½c; extras, 47@47½c; firsts, 45½@46½c; seconds, 44@45c; State, dairy, tubs, finest, 45@45½c; good to prime, 43@44½c; common to fair, 39@42c; renovated, extras, 43½@44c; firsts, 42½@43c; lower grades, 39@42c; imitation creamery, firsts, 41½@41½c; ladles, current make, firsts, 39@39½c; seconds, 38½c; lower grades, 37@38c; packing stock, current make, No. 1, 38½@39c; No. 2, 37½@38c; lower grades, 35@37c.

EGGS.—Receipts yesterday, 14,093 cases. Trade was generally reported quieter; it is affected somewhat by the Jewish holiday. Most receivers report still a fair demand for strictly fancy qualities, but the tone of the market as a whole is barely steady and outside quotations are still extreme. A large part of the Western stock here and arriving has no selling value above a range of 38@40c; some undergrades ranging downward. Storage eggs are dull, and, in the absence of important trading, values are almost nominal at the moment; tone is weak. Nearby white eggs of strictly fancy quality continue scarce and prices for such are sustained. Very few of the receipts, however, show quality to reach top quotations, mixed and irregular qualities offering at a wide range of unimproved prices. Fresh gathered, extras, per dozen, 45@46c; extra firsts, 42@44c; firsts, 39@41c; seconds, 37@38c; thirds and poorer, 35@36½c; fresh gathered dirties, No. 1, 35@36½c; No. 2 and poorer, 32@35½c; fresh gathered checks, good to choice, dry, 33@34c; undergrades, 30@32c; refrigerator, special marks, fancy, storage and insurance paid, 38½@39c; firsts, storage and insurance paid, 37@38c; seconds, storage and insurance paid, 35½@36½c; lower grades, storage and insurance paid, 34@35c; refrigerator, State whites, 41@43c; State, Pennsylvania and nearby Western hennery whites, fine to fancy, 58@62c; ordinary to good, 45@57c; gathered whites, good to fine, 42@56c; Western and Southern, gathered whites, 42@45c; State, Pennsylvania, and nearby hennery browns, 48@50c; State, Pennsylvania, and nearby gathered browns and mixed colors, [illegible]

Sons, brothers, husbands are now preparing to give their lives for the cause which enlists the dollars of those who subscribe to the Liberty Loan.

That cause met with a wide and emphatic response in the First Loan. It has now become even clearer and dearer. To the lives now pledged is owing the unstinted support of those whose security and freedom they go to defend.

This Company therefore places its services at the disposal of purchasers of the new Liberty Bonds, in the conviction that the Second Liberty Loan demands with a new and greater urgency a ringing answer, an answer from everyone capable of saving, an answer worthy of and mightier than that given by millions of the people to the First Loan.

SEEK TO PROTECT CITY RAILWAY BONDS

Owners of 5 Per Cent. Securities Ask Right to Intervene Against Service Board.

A Bondholders' Committee consisting of Frank L. Hall, Charles P. Howland, and George B. Leighton, representing the owners of $6,000,000 of 5 per cent. gold income bonds of the New York City Railways Company, filed a petition in the Supreme Court yesterday, to be heard by Justice Whitaker today, asking permission to intervene in an action brought by the company against the Public Service Commission.

The plaintiffs says that the bonds were issued in 1911 under the scheme of reorganization of the old Metropolitan Street Railway system, but for the five years ended June 30 last the bondholders have received only a total of 16.00 per cent. and got nothing at all on June 30 last. They say this condition is due to the fact that by an order of the Public Service Commission made in 1911 the railroad company is required to set aside 20 per cent. each year from the gross income from operation for depreciation and maintenance of the property, the unexpended balance being required to be added to the amortization fund.

The Bondholders' Committee states that the railroad company started proceedings for a court review of this order, but never carried it to a hearing, for the reason that 90 per cent. of the New York City Railways' capital stock is owned by the Interborough Consolidated Corporation, successor to the Interborough-Metropolitan Company, "which has much larger interests in other transportation companies competing with the New York Street Railways Company and with interests at times adverse to that company."

The bondholders allege that the management of the company whose bonds they hold is disinclined to have the Public Service Commission order set aside, and "is in fact delaying the hearing upon said writ in order to accumulate a large fund which would otherwise be payable to the holders of said income bonds as interest, and are viewing with complacency a delay which is month by month storing up a fund for the benefit of the stock which they represent." This fund now amounts to $3,127,000.

If the petition of the bondholders is granted they will be in a position to demand an immediate hearing on the proceedings to review the Public Service Commission order.

GROWTH OF BANK CLEARINGS

New York Report Shows Increase of $34,000,000,000 in Year.

The tremendous growth during the last twelve months in the volume of business handled by New York City banks was indicated yesterday in the annual report of the New York Clearing House, which placed the year's clearings at $181,534,000,000, an increase of more than $34,000,000,000 compared with the previous year and more than double the total for the year ended Sept. 30, 1915.

The report shows that the total transactions of the last year aggregated $193,681,000,000, and mention is made of the fact that the largest daily transactions in the sixty-four years that the Clearing House has been in existence were recorded on Feb. 6, 1917, when the total was $1,265,758,049. The largest daily balance on record, $133,761,391, was reported on Aug. 29, 1917. The unusual increase in the volume of business handled by the Clearing House in the last year has been due to operations in connection with Government financing.

The average daily clearing the last year amounted to $601,000,000, compared with $484,000,000 in 1916 and $300,000,000 in 1915. Ten years ago the average clearings amounted to $313,000,000, and twenty years ago they totaled $103,000,000.

At the annual meeting of the Clearing House Association, held yesterday, Gates W. McGarrah, President of the Mechanics and Metals National Bank, was elected President, succeeding Frank A. Vanderlip, President of the National City Bank. Walter E. Frew, President of the Corn Exchange Bank, was elected Chairman of the Clearing House Committee, an office just vacated by Mr. McGarrah. Theodore Hetzler, President of the Fifth Avenue Bank, was elected Secretary and William J. Gilpin and Clarence E. Bacon were re-elected Manager and Assistant Manager, respectively. Charles A. Hanna continues as Examiner.

The Clearing House Committee now consists of Mr. Frew, Seward Prosser, President of the Bankers Trust Company; Albert H. Wiggin, President of the Chase National Bank; Francis L. Hine, President of the First National Bank, and Lewis E. Pierson, Chairman of the Irving National Bank.

At yesterday's meeting an amendment to the constitution was adopted which provides for a meeting of bank representatives every afternoon, for the purpose of exchanging and settling for "return items." When this new clearing will begin has not yet been determined. The object of having all the banks send their "return items" to the Clearing House is to obviate the present necessity of the banks sending messengers all over the city for the collection of these items. Under the proposed plan all these items will be turned in at once, and the settlements will be effected through the next morning's regular exchanges.

Rubber Company Doubles Profits.

The Intercontinental Rubber Company earned a net profit of $1,195,895 in the year ended July 31, against $581,903 the year before. The year's surplus was $1,055,174, more than double that of 1916, and the total surplus on July 31 amounted to $4,005,596, compared with $2,950,422. G. H. Carnahan, President, said in the annual report yesterday that the Mexican properties had not been worked during the year, but that steps had been taken to reopen the factory at Torreon early this month.

FINANCIAL NOTES.

The Jamestown, Westfield & Northwestern Railroad has applied to the New York Public Service Commission, Second District, for permission to execute a mortgage of $5,000,000 and to issue thereunder $1,000,000 of 5 per cent. 30-year gold bonds.

The Bankers Trust Company has issued a booklet briefly summarizing the Income and War Profits Taxes of the new Revenue Bill.

Ross Young, formerly Vice President of the Loton H. Slawson Company has become associated with Charles W. Hill.

At the annual meeting of the California Railway & Power Company the retiring Directors were re-elected. Lyman T. Hammon of Bonbright & Co., was also elected a Director, thus increasing the board membership to twelve.

At the annual meeting of Granby Consolidated Mining, Smelting & Power Company, Ltd., the board was reduced from thirteen to eleven, and retiring Directors were re-elected.

The retiring Directors of the Chicago, Great Western Railroad; Chicago & Alton Railroad, the Crex Carpet Company, and the Midvale Steel & Ordnance Company were re-elected at the respective annual meetings of these companies.

Retiring Directors of the Union Ferry Company were re-elected yesterday, and the present officers reappointed.

GRANBY SALES $11,975,430.

Copper Mining Company Reports Annual Gain of $2,661,102.

The Granby Consolidated Mining Company reports gross sales of metals amounting to $11,975,430 in the year ended June 30, a gain of $2,661,102 over the preceding year. The net income, including dividends on investments, was $5,025,251, a gain of $1,406,181, and the balance for dividends amounted to $5,452,796, of which $230,320 came from miscellaneous operations. The net earnings were equal to 36.35 per cent. on the outstanding stock. The company produced 41,878,568 pounds of copper, which was sold at an average price of 27.4 cents a pound.

Costs rose rapidly, being 11.5 cents a pound for one mine, against 10.09 cents the year before, and 20.8 cents at the other property, compared with 14.25 cents in 1916. E. P. Earle, Vice President, said in his report to stockholders that the Canadian war tax had not been settled. The Government, he said, was negotiating with company officials, and the latest proposition allowed for 7 per cent. interest on the money invested and 10 per cent. for depletion of ore reserves, in addition to a reasonable charge for depreciation, before taking either 25 per cent. of the excess profits or, as an alternative, 4 per cent. of the net earnings.

To obtain sound views on the great commercial problems of the day, The Annalist is consulted by thousands of earnest thinkers. A magazine of wide influence. Every Monday, 10 cents; $4 a year by mail.—Advt.

CONSOLIDATED EXCHANGE

The market on the Consolidated Exchange opened strong, but an early advance was checked by offering the rails, steels, and coppers. Railroad earnings reports came out at intervals during the day and created unfavorable impressions. The market lapsed into dullness for a time, but late in the day further drives were made against the important issues, but little stock was brought out and in attempt to cover short contracts, carried prices back rapidly so that closing figures were materially above the earlier low levels.

NOTICE.

To the Stockholders of the E. I. duPont de Nemours and Company:

In the suit of Philip F. duPont and others against Pierre S. duPont and others, No. 340 in Equity, in the District Court of the United States for the District of Delaware, the Court has filed a decree, a copy of which is enclosed, finding that the purchase on their own behalf from T. Coleman duPont of the 63,314 shares of common stock and the 14,599 shares of preferred stock of the E. I. duPont de Nemours Powder Company, by Pierre S. duPont and his associates, Irenee duPont, Lammot duPont, A. Felix duPont, John J. Raskob, Robert Ruliph Morgan Carpenter, Harry G. Haskell, Harry F. Brown, William Coyne, John P. Laffey and duPont Securities Company, some of whom participated at the time of the purchase and others became afterwards interested in the purchase, was in violation of the duties which they owed to the Powder Company, and in fraud of the rights of said corporation; that duPont Securities Company, which was organized by Pierre S. duPont and his associates for the purpose of financing the purchase of said stock, acquired the same subject to the rights of the Powder Company thereto; that the act of Pierre S. duPont and his associates in acquiring said stock on their own behalf has never been ratified or condoned in such a manner as to vitiate the rights of the E. I. duPont de Nemours Powder Company, and that at the time of the purchase of the stock by Pierre S. duPont and his associates and at all times subsequent thereto, the Powder Company was authorized to purchase all of the said stock and had on hand funds sufficient to enable it legally to make such a purchase.

The Court also found that the stockholders of E. I. duPont de Nemours and Company have the right to determine whether the said E. I. duPont de Nemours and Company shall acquire and receive the 63,314 shares of the common stock of E. I. duPont de Nemours Powder Company purchased by the defendants from T. Coleman duPont, carrying with the same the 126,628 shares of the common stock of E. I. duPont de Nemours and Company received as a dividend thereon, together with all other cash, stock and bond dividends or the proceeds or value of such other stock and bond dividends with interest or income thereon, paid to or realized by the defendants on the 63,314 shares of the common stock of E. I. duPont de Nemours Powder Company, and the 126,628 shares of the common stock of E. I. duPont de Nemours and Company, less such sums of money with interest as were paid by the defendants for the purchase from T. Coleman duPont of the 63,314 shares of the common stock of E. I. duPont de Nemours Powder Company and the 14,599 shares of preferred stock of said Company, after crediting on the amounts so paid by them such amounts as may have been received by the defendants from a sale of said preferred stock purchased as aforesaid from T. Coleman duPont, or the proceeds thereof, with interest, the exact figures, together with the proper calculations of interest thereon to be ascertained by an accounting to be taken under the direction of the Court, and less any sums for expenses connected with said purchase which may be allowed by the Court on such accounting.

By statements filed by the defendants in this cause, it appears that there was purchased from T. Coleman duPont 63,314 shares of the common stock and 14,599 shares of the preferred stock of the E. I. duPont de Nemours Powder Company, at the price of ........................................ $13,903,715.00

That interest on the amount paid for said stocks, at six per cent. from the time said stocks were paid for to May 1, 1917, amounts to the sum of 1,805,165.66

Total of principal and interest, as of May 1, 1917............ $15,708,880.66

It further appears that there has been received by the defendants since the purchase of the stocks aforesaid, as a dividend on the common stock of E. I. duPont de Nemours Powder Company purchased from T. Coleman duPont, 126,628 shares of the common stock of E. I. duPont de Nemours and Company, and certain preferred stock of the Atlas Powder Company.

It further appears, from said statements, that the defendants have received since the purchase of the common and preferred stock from T. Coleman duPont aforesaid, in cash from dividends upon the 63,314 shares of the common stock and 14,599 shares of preferred stock of the E. I. duPont de Nemours Powder Company; from dividends upon the 126,628 shares of common stock of E. I. duPont de Nemours and Company; from the sale of the preferred stock of the Atlas Powder Company; from sales of the 14,599 shares of preferred stock of the E. I. duPont de Nemours Powder Company, and from the sale of certain Anglo-French bonds received as dividends on the 126,628 shares of the common stock of E. I. duPont de Nemours and Company, sums in cash, with interest thereon to May 1, 1917, in the aggregate largely in excess of the purchase price paid by the defendants for the 63,314 shares of common stock and 14,599 shares of preferred stock of E. I. duPont de Nemours Powder Company.

The question, therefore, upon which the stockholders of the E. I. duPont de Nemours and Company must pass at the special meeting of stockholders now called, is as follows: Do the stockholders now desire to acquire for the Company the 63,314 shares of the common stock of E. I. duPont de Nemours Powder Company formerly held by T. Coleman duPont, with the right to require the defendants to turn over to the company the 126,628 shares of the common stock of E. I. duPont de Nemours and Company; and further to require the defendants to account for the cash which they have received in excess of the amount paid by them, with interest, as the purchase price for the said 63,314 shares of the common stock and 14,599 shares of the preferred stock of E. I. duPont de Nemours Powder Company, and further to require the defendants to account for the Anglo-French bonds received by them as dividends and which have not been converted into cash.

For the information of the stockholders, it is proper to state that from the statements filed in this cause by the defendants, it appears that if the stockholders desire to exercise the right to acquire said stocks, and to require the defendants to account for the excess in cash, and the Anglo-French bonds not converted into cash, received by them as aforesaid, it will not be necessary for the Company to pay anything to the defendants, for they have been repaid in cash more than the amount paid by them, with interest, for said stocks purchased from T. Coleman duPont.

Notice is hereby given that the Special Meeting of the stockholders of the E. I. duPont de Nemours and Company, in pursuance of the decree of the District Court of the United States for the District of Delaware, in the cause of Philip F. duPont et al. v. Pierre S. duPont et al., No. 340, in Equity, will be held on the Tenth day of October, 1917, at twelve o'clock noon, at the principal office of the Company, at Wilmington, Delaware, for the purpose of voting upon the following resolution to be submitted to said meeting under the decree of the Court aforesaid:

"RESOLVED, that the stockholders of E. I. duPont de Nemours and Company hereby determine that said corporation shall acquire and receive the 63,314 shares of the common stock of E. I. duPont de Nemours Powder Company purchased by the defendants from T. Coleman duPont, carrying with the same the 126,628 shares of the common stock of the E. I. duPont de Nemours and Company received as a dividend thereon, together with all other cash, stock and bond dividends, or the proceeds or value of such other stock and bond dividends, with interest or income thereon, paid to or realized by the defendants on the 63,314 shares of the common stock of E. I. duPont de Nemours Powder Company, and the 126,628 shares of the common stock of E. I. duPont de Nemours and Company, less such sums of money, with interest, as were paid by the defendants for the purchase from T. Coleman duPont of the 63,314 shares of the common stock of E. I. duPont de Nemours Powder Company, and the 14,599 shares of preferred stock of said Company, after crediting on the amounts so paid by them such amounts as may have been received by defendants from a sale of said preferred stock purchased as aforesaid from T. Coleman duPont, or the proceeds thereof, with interest, the exact figures, together with the proper calculations of interest thereon to be ascertained by an accounting to be taken under the direction of the Court, and less any sums for expenses connected with said purchases which may be allowed by the Court on such accounting."

The voting shall be by ballot, and the polls will remain open to receive the votes of the stockholders from 12 o'clock noon to 6 P. M. on the said Tenth day of October, 1917.

Special Master.

COMMERCIAL PAPER.

Yesterday .......5¼@5¾% for the best names
Monday ..........5¼@5¾% " " "

The quotations are for six months' paper.

Rubber Buyers Are Marking Time.

Rubber buyers are marking time so far as the local market for the crude material is concerned, and prices are gradually slipping off. The relapse seems to be more marked in the plantation varieties at the present than in the Brazilians. Yesterday, up-river fine was quoted at 66½ cents for spot and near-by positions, while for similar deliveries 46 cents was asked for up-river coarse, and 40¼@41 cents for upper Caucho Ball. In the plantations, 66 cents was quoted on first latex for all positions up to April, 1918, and the corresponding price on smoked sheets was 65 cents.

Fancy Undergarments Well Taken.

According to a number of local retailers, there is a strong demand for fancy undergarments of the higher grades. A noticeable development of the Fall season is the reported preference for white charmeuse instead of georgette or washable satin. It is combined with real "val" and filet tops for the envelope chemise. The rapid movement of these goods over the counter is said to be causing constant calls on the manufacturers for more merchandise, with the result that deliveries in many instances are falling behind.

Help Situation Improves.

"The help situation," says the head of one of the local department stores, "is showing some little signs of improvement. There is less shifting from one store to another and from one industry to another than there was earlier in the year. It is not as difficult now to keep our help, and during the last week we got more response to our advertising than we have gotten for some time. There still is, however, a great shortage, and we look forward to the holiday rush with no little apprehension.

Wool Question Unsettles Trade.

Clothing manufacturers of this city, both of men's and women's wear, are said to be holding up placing of their Spring requirements for woolen fabrics pending the outcome of the discussions at Washington on the subject of wool conservation. The many proposals put forth suggesting manipulated fabrics, Government regulation of woolen prices, and the like are causing no end of unsettlement in the trade. As one manufacturer put it, "we can't set our course for the coming Spring season until we know something about which way the wind is going to blow."

Low-Priced Suit Not Dead Yet.

The volume of business done in popular-priced suits during the last few weeks is pointed to by local manufacturers as the best refutation of statements emanating from certain quarters to the effect that low-priced suits will ultimately have to give way to coats and dresses. "As long as there are low-priced suits," says one authority in the trade, "there is an overwhelming number of women who are going to buy them. The rush of business we are having now would indicate to me that a lot of women, finding their last year's coat still good for another season, are buying suits this Fall who have not bought them before. I don't see any signs of the suit business 'dropping out.'"

Printcloth Buying Grows Larger.

The sharp upturn in cotton yesterday, following the issuance of the Government crop report, had a stimulating effect on printcloth buying here and also added to the firmness of prices. Sales of 38½-inch 64-60s were reported at 9¾ cents for deliveries running up to March of next year; the same goods also were reported sold at 10 cents for shipment through the rest of 1917. Business was done as well on 38½-inch 60-48s at 8¾ cents for deliveries running to March next, while for this year 39-inch 56-44s moved at 8 cents. In the wide, high-count cloths sales of 39-inch 68-72s were put through for this year at 11¼ cents. For 38½-inch 64-56s 9¾ cents was asked in certain quarters, but business was done in others at 9½. Other constructions also sold more or less freely, and it is predicted that, unless an unexpected break in cotton comes, another era of high prices will develop. Spot printcloths averaged this way at the close:

RAISE ASSESSMENTS ON MANY BUILDINGS

Valuation of the Equitable Increased from $20,500,000 to $25,000,000.

SOME MORE THAN DOUBLED

One Telephone Building Advanced from $320,000 to $910,000—Only a Few Reduced.

Large increases in the assessments on some of New York's well-known office buildings were disclosed when the tax books were opened yesterday. Four million five hundred thousand dollars was added to the valuation of the Equitable Building, 120 Broadway, raising the assessment from $20,500,000 to $25,000,000. The New York Telephone Company Building at 102 to 108 Broad Street was advanced from $320,000 to $910,000, and the American Express Company Building at 63 to 65 Broadway from $1,975,000 to $3,800,000. While these are some of the larger increases, and while in some instances assessments were reduced, the general level for all the buildings in the city is higher than in the last year.

There were a few reductions of some of the more prominent hotels, one of the fortunate ones being the Knickerbocker, which had its assessment reduced $100,000. The assessments on some of the theatres were advanced, as they were also on some of the banks and Fifth Avenue business buildings. One of the well-known residences in Fifth Avenue, that of George W. Vanderbilt, at 640 Fifth Avenue, was advanced from $2,300,000 to $2,450,000.

Here are some of the assessments for the more important office buildings, hotels, theatres, residences, and business houses:

REAL ESTATE FIELD

The Standard Oil Company increased its East Harlem holdings on the river front yesterday by purchasing the half block front facing the Harlem River at the north corner of 119th Street. The purchase gives the company ownership of this vast frontage between 119th and 120th Streets. The property just acquired was bought from Emily J. Murray of Sound Beach, Conn., who has owned it for many years. It comprises about twelve lots fronting 106.5 on the Harlem River by 280 on 119th Street. The plot has recently been used by the Burns Brothers Coal Company. The Standard Oil Company now owns a frontage of 212.6 on the river, with riparian rights, 430 on 119th Street, and 274 on 120th Street.

George Bockhaus, Inc., acted as the broker. The purchase price is said to have been over $150,000.

Investors Buy St. Nicholas Avenue Flats.

An investing client of J. S. Maxwell purchased from John R. Agnew the four five-story flats 280 to 286 St. Nicholas Avenue. The structures occupy a plot, 112 by 100 feet, on the northeast corner of 124th Street, and have been held by the seller for eighteen years.

J. T. Farrell sold to an investor the Belcourt, a five-story apartment house, on plot 76 by 95 by irregular, situated on the southeast corner of 118th Street and St. Nicholas Avenue. The property was held at $75,000. Nehring & Co., Jules Nehring, President, negotiated the sale.

Operator Buys on Upper Broadway.

The New England Mortgage Security Company sold to Frederick Brown, operator, the four-story flat at 3,924 Broadway, occupying a plot 25 by 100, between 164th and 165th Streets. Harry J. Rogers negotiated the sale. About a year ago Mr. Brown purchased from the same company the properties at 54 and 84 Lenox Avenue through the same broker, which have been resold.

Buys West Broadway Lofts.

The two five-story loft buildings at 502 and 504 West Broadway, plot 50 by 75, between Houston and Bleecker Streets, have been sold to an investor through the Charles F. Noyes Company for the Hasco Building Company, Lorne A. Scott, President. They are under lease at $4,800 a year. The sellers acquired the property a month ago from the Pinchot estate. The holding price was $50,000.

Bronx Sales.

Angelo L. Frumento sold for William J. Diamond, 620 East 183d Street, a three-story flat, with stores, on a lot 25 by 75, to Giuseppe Gagliardo.

Hugo Wabst sold a two-story and basement two-family detached dwelling on the north side of 219th Street, about 350 feet west of Barnes Avenues, to an investor.

The John P. Peel Company sold to the William S. Dempsey Realty Company, Inc., two new five-story apartments at 2,479 to 2,483 University Avenue for the E. M. & H. K. Construction Company, who purchased the property at auction Sept. 5.

Richard H. Scobie sold for Harry B. Davis the five-story twenty-family apartment house on a plot 50 by 100, known as 2,656 and 2,658 Decatur Avenue, to William E. Sengens, who gave in part payment the three-story office building, with three stores, on a plot 31 by 90, located on the southeast corner of Main Street and Bird Avenue, Tarrytown, N. Y., opposite the depot.

The Plattsmouth Realty Company purchased from Meta K. Oetgen, 916 Hoe Avenue, a five-story new-law tenement, on a plot 50 by 100. The seller acquired the property in foreclosure proceedings last August for $42,000, subject to a mortgage for $34,000, which the new owner has assumed, plus a second mortgage for $7,000.

Brooklyn.

Frank A. Seaver & Co., Inc., sold a plot 40 by 119 on the south side of Ninety-first Street, 100 feet west of Colonial Road, to Henry Horan for investment.

Queens Borough Sales.

E. F. White of Brooklyn purchased the dwelling and plot, 20 by 100 feet, on the southeast corner of Legget Avenue and Eighty-fifth Street, Woodhaven, from S. Schnorr.

J. T. Shepard sold to T. Ambrosino of 1,118 Thrall Avenue, Woodhaven, a plot 100 by 100 feet on the northeast corner of Grafton and Walker Avenues, Woodhaven.

A. Pennamacoor sold to M. Hargrave, Ridgewood, the dwelling and plot 80 by 100 feet on the north side of Eliot Avenue, 363 feet east of Fresh Pond Road, Glendale.

The P. R. B. Construction Company, Inc., sold to M. Dryer of Manhattan the dwelling and plot 80 by 100 feet on the east side of 162d Street, sixty feet south of Forty-third Avenue, Flushing.

Long Island.

The Cross & Brown Company has sold for the Misses Miller the plot 83 by 100 on Jackson Avenue, Long Island City, adjoining the Ford automobile plant; a plot on Jackson Avenue, extending to the railroad, and adjoining the Joseph Elias plant, to investors.

Westchester County.

The Robert E. Farley Organization sold to Clinton G. Swackhamer a house on Chatterton Parkway, Battle Hill Park, White Plains, N. Y., formerly owned by Clarence W. Eisner.

Commercial Leases.

S. Osgood Pell and Company leased to the Hudson Motor Car Company, the store at 1890 Broadway, between Sixty-second and Sixty-third Streets, with "L" extending through to Sixty-third Street.

The Douglas Robinson, Charles S. Brown Company has leased for the American Express Company, the entire eleventh and twenty-first floors in their building at 65 Broadway to the Electric Bond and Share Company. The lease is for a long term of years.

The Charles F. Noyes Company has leased for Christopher Pitkin Company to the Lawden Company, the vacant plot at 13-15 Catherine Slip, corner of Water Street.

Realty Notes.

In the Exchange Salesroom, 14 Vesey Street, at noon today, a fully equipped stone yard, with land 270 by 100, at 402 to 422 East 107th Street, near East River, and in the unrestricted zone, will be offered at auction, in foreclosure, at stand of L. J. Phillips & Co.

Archibald D. Russell paid $200,000 to the Pennsylvania Railroad for the plot 167.6 by 98.9, at 216 to 230 West Thirty-first Street, opposite the terminal station, which he bought, together with properties of other owners at 225 to 237 West Thirtieth Street, to make a site for a building which he has leased to the Adams Express Company for a period of twenty-one years.

The Civil Service.

City.

Eighteen persons have filed applications for consultant on city planning.

Edward Wisely has passed the non-competitive test for Assistant Sanitary Superintendent in the Health Department, at $3,480 a year.

Candidates who were rejected in the medical examination for patrolmen have until Oct. 5 to file requests for medical re-examination. The rejection slip handed each candidate by Medical Examiner at time of rejection must be returned with appeal after it has been properly filled out by his physician. No appeal presented after Oct. 5 will be considered by the commission.

United States.

Examinations will be held today for copyist draftsman, for both men and women, to fill two vacancies at the Naval Torpedo Station, Newport, R. I., at $2.50 a day; and for clerk, qualified as typewriter repairer, male, to fill a vacancy in the Bureau of Pensions, Washington, D. C., at $1,200 a year. An examination will also be held for trained nurse, for women only. Vacancies in the Indian service will be filled from this examination. The entrance salary is $720 a year and laundry of uniform. Competitors will not be required to report for examination at any place, but will be rated on physical ability, and training and experience. The applicant must have graduated from a recognized school for trained nurses requiring a residence of at least two years in a hospital giving thorough practical and theoretical training, or be a member of the graduating class of such an institution and furnish proof of actual graduation within three months from the date of making oath to the application. Applicants must have reached their twentieth but not their fortieth birthday on the date of making oath to the application. Until further notice, and on account of the urgent needs of the service, applications will be received at any time. Papers will be rated promptly and certification made as the needs of the service require.

THE WEATHER

WASHINGTON, Oct. 2.—A shallow barometric depression is passing eastward over the upper Lakes. It has been attended by light scattered rains in Michigan, Illinois, and Wisconsin, and light showers also have fallen in the Dakotas.

Seasonal temperatures prevail in all parts of the country except the far Northwest, where it is unseasonably warm.

Showers are indicated for the lake region and the upper Ohio Valley, but in the East and South fair weather will prevail with slowly rising temperature Wednesday and Thursday.

Winds for Wednesday and Thursday along the North Atlantic Coast will be gentle southwest to west, fair; Middle Atlantic Coast, light and variable, mostly south, fair; South Atlantic Coast, fresh northeast to east, fair.

FORECASTS TODAY AND THURSDAY.

Eastern New York, New Jersey, and Eastern Pennsylvania—Fair and slightly warmer Wednesday; Thursday partly cloudy.

New England—Partly cloudy and somewhat warmer Wednesday; Thursday fair.

Western New York—Fair Wednesday; Thursday probably showers.

The temperature record for the twenty-four hours ended at 11 P. M., taken from the thermometer at the local office of the United States Weather Bureau, is as follows:

| | 1916. | 1917. | | 1916. | 1917. |

Education Notes.

With the opening of the Women's Art School and the first year Engineering Classes Cooper Union begins its work in all departments. While the registration in the Day Technical School is lowered by the war conditions, the enrollment in the evening classes, both technical and art, is nearly as large as last year, numbering 2,520. The slackening of building operations has had considerable effect in reducing the number of applicants for architectural drawing, but the demand for mechanical drawing has increased, and additional classes have been opened. New Classes in concrete construction, steam and gas engine practice will be opened shortly, and it is hoped to open a laboratory for the study of the construction and operation of motor vehicles this year. Every new student admitted to the classes of the union this Fall has been required to sign a pledge of loyalty to the Government.

The New York University has opened a military training course to the general public. It will be held at the Seventy-first Regiment Armory, Thursday evenings, beginning Oct. 4. Captain John Wesley Lyon, a veteran in the National Guard and army service, one of the first instructors of the New York State Cadets, under the State act, will be in charge. Additional instruction and lectures will be given by officers returned from the war. The course will be practical and theoretical.

Apartment house janitors and superintendents, operating engineers, foremen, public school engineers, and library janitors will receive instruction in the City College this year in boiler and fuel economy. The course will begin this Thursday night, at 7:30 o'clock, and will be given by J. Baum, efficiency engineer. During the coming Winter there will be a cry louder than ever for conservation of coal and efficiency in its use, and in hardly any other place will the need of savings to be so great as in coal. Men who have had no technical training, but who are interested in the subject should apply for further information to Dr. F. B. Robinson, director, Main Building, City College. Another new, practical course, entitled Textiles, is intended for sales people and others engaged in silk, cotton, wool, and the retail and wholesale dry goods trades. Dr. I. M. Rubinow will give two new courses, one social insurance, outlining workmen's insurance schemes, and another treating of the economic relations between America and Russia. To meet the demand for a knowledge of Russian life and conditions new courses in the Russian language and literature have been added to the curriculum.

In his report to the Board of Education, District Superintendent Taylor says that children in The Bronx public schools, under the Gary plan, have made higher averages in examinations than those taught in the other schools.

The Brooklyn Teachers' Association has begun an investigation of the salary refunds allowed to public school teachers for excused absences. It is claimed that the allowance made by the Board of Superintendents is too small.

The annual meeting of the Interborough Association of Women Teachers will be held at 4:15 P. M., on Oct. 5, at the Hotel Waldorf-Astoria.

Wallace ADJUSTABLE Lamp

$3.50 in Brass

Nickel $3.75

Bronze $4.00

IMAGINE a lamp which can be affixed in a second to the back of your chair—to the head-board of your bed—to the frame of your mirror—to a hook on the wall—to the edge of a shelf—to the side of a door.

A lamp that can be set on your desk—on the table—on the window sill—on the sewing machine—on the ironing board—on the dressing table—on the telephone stand—on the book-case.

A lamp which can be tilted in any desired position. A lamp which gives you all the light there is in the bulb—by concentrating the light just where you want it—not scattering it all over the room.

A lamp, furthermore, which can be folded up into a space not much bigger than an orange, tucked into your grip and carried with you when traveling.

Wherever there is electric current, the handiness of this lamp comes in. Nearly half a million are used today in homes, in offices, in restaurants, in hotels, in actors' dressing rooms. Valued by business men, by housewives, travelers, professional people.

WHAT IS THE WALLACE LAMP?

It is an ingeniously built solid brass stand in which is concealed a spiral spring for use in clamping. To this stand is attached a push-button socket, connected, by eight feet of flexible cord, to a patent plug. A hemispherical brass shade fits firmly over any bulb of ordinary size, in any position desired. The lamp "stays put" anywhere. Clamps or stands wherever you want it. Adjusts to any angle.

Take home a Wallace Lamp today. You'll find a dozen handy uses the very first thing. For dressing—for reading—for writing—for reaching dark nooks. It will save your eyesight. It will save your temper.

Examine it at your favorite store. The Wallace is sold everywhere, by most of the good Hardware, Electrical, Sporting Goods, Drug and Department Stores.

HANDSOME BOOKLET: If unable to inspect the Wallace Lamp itself, write for free booklet showing its uses in colored pictures

MITCHEL RENEWS ATTACK ON HEARST AND TAMMANY BOSS

TAKES SECOND NOMINATION

ASSAILS UNTERMYER AGAIN

Accepting a nomination for Mayor from the City Democracy, an organization of independent Democrats working for the overthrow of Charles F. Murphy's leadership of Tammany Hall, Mayor Mitchel at Cooper Union last night continued his attacks upon Murphy, William R. Hearst, Judge Hylan, the Tammany Mayoralty candidate, and Samuel Untermyer. The Mayor dwelt upon patriotism as being the keynote of the municipal campaign, and said that the forces behind Hylan's candidacy were not in sympathy with the Government's war policy.

The Mayor devoted most of his speech to assailing Murphy and Hearst, who, he said, are really the twin candidates for Mayor against him. The Tammany ticket, he said, had been put forward falsely in the name of Democracy, and in referring to Mr. Untermyer's denial that he had associated with Dumba or von Bernstorff, as charged by the Mayor in his City Hall speech on Monday, the Mayor wanted to know about conferences between Mr. Untermyer, Dumba, and von Bernstorff at the former's home. He also quoted an alleged newspaper interview in which Mr. Untermyer was quoted as saying he was opposed to the United States declaring war, had termed the German submarine sons a battlefield where people could not go without being hurt, and was opposed to sending young men to "fight for England, which has injured us as much as Germany has."

"Gentlemen," shouted Mr. Mitchel with deep earnestness, "that is Hearst's doctrine. Don't help England. Keep our men for Japan. Be fearful of Japan. The jingoism that tries to stir up trouble between the United States and one of her allies in this war."

The Mayor's remark was greeted with great applause from the crowd that filled the hall to capacity. After it had subsided, the Mayor continued:

"And any Jingoism that tries to stir up trouble between America and one of her Allies strikes at America in a vital interest. Yes, the submarine zone a battlefield. That is the German doctrine in good truth—the doctrine that justifies the sinking of the Lusitania with her American lives aboard, the doctrine that justifies striking at the merchant ships, that justifies the sinking of the defenseless—that is the German doctrine, the high seas a battlefield. Don't send our young men abroad. Don't help to win this war for democracy and liberty. Oh, no! Remain prostrate and let Germany succeed. This is the doctrine that inspires the men who stand behind this ticket which is headed by Mr. Hylan, and that is one reason why every decent self-respecting American must be against it."

The crowd was noisy in its enthusiasm and was plainly sympathetic. Every reference the Mayor made to the war was cheered, and when he denounced Murphy's methods of leadership the people jumped to their feet and shouted while two bands added to the racket.

Begins Attack on Murphy.

Delegations of Democrats from every Assembly district in the five boroughs were at the meeting and ratified not only the nomination of the Mayor but the entire Fusion ticket. The meeting was presided over by Martin W. Littleton, who offered resolutions denouncing the leadership of Murphy, which were adopted with a shout. The Mayor jumped right into his attack upon Murphy, saying:

"I remember a meting held in this hall four years ago, when Democrats, unbossed, gathered here to protest against the shame of Murphy that had come upon the Democratic Party of the nation, and to declare themselves free of his bondage and devoted to a Government for the service of the people without relation to a boss. That meeting was held to support the Fusion ticket of four years ago. The campaign was successful, the ticket was elected, and tonight again Democrats gather here in this meeting to protest against the re-establishment of the reproach of Murphy in New York, to protest in the name of the Democratic Party of the country against re-establishing in New York a control that has been repudiated by the national party, and that has done nothing but bring shame upon it wherever it has gone.

"I have come here tonight as an independent to talk to independents. The City Democracy represents to my mind a great forward step, both in independence in politics and in the purging of the Democratic Party in this part of the country of the thing that has been its greatest reproach.

"It seems to me that it is clear that the reason that men in thousands are leaving the organization of Tammany Hall today, and are affiliating themselves with this City Democracy, or are declaring their independence of Mr. Murphy, is that they are ashamed to be led by that kind of leadership. They look back and they remember how at the Baltimore convention of 1912 the Democracy of the nation slapped in the face and repudiated the Democracy of the City of New York, because of the shame of Murphyism. I notice that Mr. Murphy, one of the Tammany candidates upon the ticket for Mayor, one of the twin candidates, in making a re-

THREAT TO CHANGE AUSTRIA'S TERMS

Will Demand Indemnity if War Goes On, Says Czernin in Budapest Speech.

REJECTS AN ECONOMIC WAR

Teutonic Powers Must Be Assured Against Trade Boycott, He Asserts.

AMSTERDAM, Oct. 3.—Budapest dispatches received here say that at a dinner given by the Hungarian Premier, Dr. Alexander Wekerle, in honor of Count Czernin, the Austro-Hungarian Minister of Foreign Affairs, the latter, in reply to an invitation to make a statement concerning his peace policy, said:

"To Talleyrand has been ascribed the saying that words are given to conceal thoughts. It may be that this saying was true for the diplomacy of his century. But for the present time I hardly can conceive a phrase less accurate.

"The millions who are fighting in the trenches or behind the lines wish to know why and for what they are fighting. They have a right to learn why peace, which the entire world desires, has not yet come. When I was appointed to my post I utilized the first opportunity openly to declare that we did not want to oppress any one, but that on the other hand we would not suffer any oppression, and that we were prepared to enter upon peace negotiations as soon as our enemies accepted the standpoint of peace by agreement."

Count Czernin said a plain statement of war aims was indispensable. He explained the conversion of the Central Powers to the doctrine of disarmament by declaring that armaments were necessary until the world was convinced that Austria-Hungary was not a dying State, subject to dismemberment.

Threat to Revise Terms.

In conclusion, Count Czernin threatened that unless peace without annexations or indemnities were immediately accepted it would be necessary for Austria-Hungary to revise its program and seek compensation for further costs of the war.

Arguing that competition in armaments after the war would mean economic ruin for all States and declaring that Austria-Hungary had not been prepared for war and had only made up during the conflict for her former neglected military equipment, Count Czernin continued:

"This war taught us that we must reckon on a great increase in former armaments. With unrestricted armaments the nations would be compelled to increase everything tenfold and the military estimates of the great powers would amount to billions.

"That is impossible. It would mean complete ruin. To return to the armament status of 1914 would be a great reduction, but there would be no meaning in not going further and actually disarming. Hence complete disarmament is the only issue from the difficulty.

"Gigantic fleets will have no further purpose when the nations of the world guarantee the freedom of the seas, and land armies will be reduced to the level required for the maintenance of internal order. Every State will have to give up something of its independence for the purpose of insuring the world peace.

"Probably the present generation will not live to see the completion of this great pacific movement. It can only be realized slowly, but I consider it our duty to place ourselves at the head of the movement to do everything humanly possible to accelerate its materialization."

Disarmament on High Seas Only.

Strongly emphasizing the necessity for naval disarmament on the high seas, Count Czernin said:

"I purposely say the high seas, for I do not extend the idea to narrow seas, and I freely admit that for sea communications special rules and regulations must obtain. With these factors made clear every ground for territorial guarantees disappears.

"This is the basic idea of the beautiful and sublime note which the Pope addressed to the whole world. If this basis is accepted by our enemies we can renounce the enlargement of the Austro-Hungarian Monarchy, always provided that the enemy completely evacuates our territory."

Count Czernin then came to the final principle which he said it was necessary to observe to insure the free and pacific development of the world, namely, economic freedom. He said economic war must absolutely be eliminated from every future arrangement.

"Before we conclude peace," said Count Czernin, "we must have the positive certainty that our present opponents have relinquished the idea of economic war. These, gentlemen, are the basic principles of the new world order, as they present themselves to my mind, and they are all founded on all-around disarmament.

Accuses Allies of Devastation.

"Even Germany in her answer to the Pope's note most emphatically professes adherence to all-around disarmament, and our present opponents also have made these principles, at least in part, their own.

"The question of indemnities which the Entente has always advancing assumes remarkable completion when one considers the devastation their armies have wrought in Galicia, Bukowina, Tyrol, the Isonzo, East Prussia, in Turkish territories, and the German colonies. Does the Entente intend to compensate us for all this, or is it so completely mistaken in its judgment of our psychology that it hopes for a one-sided indemnification?

"This war will not be decided with high-flown phrases. First we heard that Germany was to be annihilated and Austria-Hungary dismembered. Then the tone became more reasonable. Then it was to be sufficient to reform our internal conditions. Our enemies appear now to be in the third phase, they demand neither our life nor our right to decide our destinies as a State, but

ALL THE ALLIES EXPECTED TO JOIN EMBARGO MOVE

AIMS AT WORLDWIDE BAN

Will Use Pressure in South America and Elsewhere to Stop Aid to Teutons.

TRADE AGREEMENTS TO END

United States Undertakes to Replace Supplies Now Drawn by Entents from Neutrals.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 3.—Officials here see in the action taken by Great Britain in announcing a complete embargo on shipments to the northern neutrals of Europe one of the most important developments since the United States entered the world war and shut the doors of its commerce to the Central Powers and to nations like Holland, Sweden, Denmark, and Norway, which have been accused of helping to feed and arm the Germans.

It is understood here that the United States had urged upon Great Britain for some time the necessity for taking this step and that negotiations have been carried on by this Government with France, Italy, and other countries in the alliance against Germany to induce them to take a similar course.

Great Britain, according to the understanding in official circles, has consented to abrogate all of its trade agreements with the northern neutrals, thus probably forfeiting the share of their products which it has heretofore obtained. This share in almost every instance was far below the quantity received from the same neutral countries by Germany, while Germany has to depend almost entirely upon these neutrals for essentials. Great Britain and the other allies of the United States will be able to obtain them from other fields.

The United States Government has agreed to bend every effort to aid its allies in obtaining those supplies which may be cut off by the abrogation of the agreements with the neutrals of Europe. Shipping will be directed and the commerce of the United States regulated with this point in view.

Aim to Present United Front.

By such concerted action a clean slate will be presented in so far as trade agreements between any of the countries allied against Germany and the northern neutral nations of Europe are concerned. Further negotiations with these neutrals will be carried on only upon the theory that the underlying principle will be the starving of Germany into submission.

This weapon, which many officials here are convinced is one of the most powerful in the hands of the United States, will be exercised to the full to isolate Germany. No new policies for the shipment of supplies to the northern neutrals of Europe will be approved, it is understood, without the agreement of all of the allied nations.

It is realized that an embargo on the drastic lines now adopted by the United States and Great Britain will involve many international questions of great scope. As a basis of its action the United States Government, it is understood, has arrived at the conclusion that, as a belligerent nation, called upon to conserve its food and other commodities, it cannot be expected to release any of its products if Germany gains by that process.

The abrogation of trade agreements by Great Britain and the embargo measures adopted come practically as a death blow to certain hopes of neutral nations. The action taken has ended their last chance, that, because of these agreements, they might obtain a portion of essential materials sent by this country to England and the other allies.

Pressure on South America.

Coupled with the action of Great Britain comes the information that the United States has practically decided upon a drastic course in connection with exports from South America to the northern neutrals which will effectively close that door of trade. In this connection, it is understood tonight that should any of the South American countries attempt to get their wheat or other materials to Germany or the northern neutrals, American coal, absolutely essential to the life of South America, will be refused, both in the shape of bunker coal to operate ships and coal needed for the operation of public utilities and manufactories.

Under such a ruling pro-German interests in South America or any interests which seek to take advantage of high prices that neutral nations might be willing to pay for the crops which are shortly to be available would find themselves in an impossible position. They would also find American and allied interests prepared to bargain for the wheat and supplies to relieve the shortage which those countries find confronting them.

The position now taken in regard to all of these phases of the embargo situation has been the subject of careful consideration and investigation. Surveys have been made and tables prepared which show the full extent of the traffic between Germany and the neutrals. Various trade agreements have been inspected, with the result that high officials became convinced that Germany was profiting in the trade with neutrals to an extent that could

LOAN SALES HERE NOW $135,000,000

Subscriptions Continue to Pour In as Campaign Gains Momentum.

CITY QUOTA $1,075,861,500

U. S. Steel and Mutual Life Each Take $10,000,000 and First National Bank $5,000,000.

The vast machinery that has been organized to push the campaign for subscriptions to the second Liberty Loan is working at high speed and the momentum is increasing daily. At the close of business yesterday—the third day of the drive—the Federal Reserve Bank of New York reported that it had in hand notifications of subscriptions filed with the various banks of the district amounting to $48,602,850. The total of subscriptions reported thus far by the applicants themselves or through other mediums is in excess of $105,000,000, and it is estimated that there are in transit further applications which would bring the total for the three days up to at least $135,000,000, and in all probability considerably more.

| United States Steel Corporation, (through First National) | $10,000,000 |
| Mutual Life Insurance Co., (through First National) | 10,000,000 |
| First National Bank of New York | 5,000,000 |
| Western Union Telegraph Co., (through Kuhn, Loeb & Co.) | 2,500,000 |
| Alaska Packers' Association | 2,500,000 |
| American Sugar Refining Co. | 2,000,000 |
| Importers and Traders' National Bank | 2,171,000 |
| National Surety Co. | 1,000,000 |
| Hallgarten & Co., (through American Exchange National and Hanover National) | 1,000,000 |
| Jewelers' Trade Committee, (additional) | 510,000 |
| California Packing Corporation | 500,000 |
| Nassau National Bank of Brklyn | 400,000 |
| Associated Press | 200,000 |
| Bloomfield Textile Corporation | 150,000 |
| H. G. S. Noble, (through Corn Exchange Bank) | 100,000 |
| Men's Clothing Trade Committee, (additional) | 100,000 |

Confirming the statement in yesterday's TIMES that Banks and trust companies would make loans to Liberty Loan subscribers at 4 per cent., the rate of interest which the bonds will bear, Everett B. Sweezy, Chairman of the Executive Committee of the Distribution Committee, issued a formal announcement that institutions had agreed to make advances at 4 per cent. In order to encourage persons to buy bonds with borrowed money if they did not have the ready cash. These loans, in most cases, will be made for a period of 90 days, and upon maturity it is expected that the borrower will pay off part of the principal, and gradually liquidate his indebtedness. The notes taken by the banks will in turn be rediscounted at the Federal Reserve Bank.

No Change in Discount Rates.

Directors of the Federal Reserve Bank, at their regular weekly meeting yesterday, decided to make no change in the current discount rates for various classes of paper, and it was determined to continue the special rate of 3½ per cent. applicable to notes of Liberty Loan subscribers rediscounted by member banks. The action of the bank Directors is important for the reason that it removes the objection of institutions demanding more than ¾ per cent. on advances made to Liberty Loan subscribers. This difference of one-half of 1 per cent. is suf-

CONGRESS SESSION TO END THIS WEEK

Senate Passes 8-Billion War Bill —Insurance Measure Scheduled to Pass Today.

MAY ADJOURN ON FRIDAY

Soldiers and Sailors' Civil Rights Bill Likely to Go Over to December.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 3.—Congress will end its extraordinary war session, which began April 2, on Saturday, or possibly on Friday.

Agreement of the Senate today to take a final vote at 5 o'clock tomorrow on the Administration Soldiers' and Sailors' Insurance bill and the adoption, with record-breaking speed, of the conference report on the War Deficiency Appropriation bill paved the way for adjournment until the regular December session.

Arrangements for the final formalities were made by Senator Martin and Representative Kitchin, majority leaders. Mr. Kitchin prepared to introduce in the House tomorrow a resolution proposing adjournment at 5 o'clock on Saturday. Such speed was made on legislation in the Senate late in the day, however, that Senator Martin said tonight that it might be possible to finish on Friday.

The military insurance and deficiency appropriation measures are the only important bills awaiting final action which will get through at this session. Leaders are determined to pass over all other legislation until December, including the Soldiers' and Sailors' Civil Rights bill, which the House took up today and probably will pass tomorrow.

It is believed that only a short time will be required for conference agreement on the insurance measure after the final vote in the Senate tomorrow, and prompt approval by the House of the deficiency appropriation final draft also is scheduled.

Before adjourning both houses will send a committee to President Wilson to inquire formally if he wishes any other matters disposed of, but so many members of both bodies have already left this city, and the demand for immediate adjournment is so insistent, that the program for adjournment not later than Saturday is regarded as certain to be carried out.

Quickly Passes War Bill.

Within less than three minutes today the Senate adopted the conference report on the Deficiency Appropriation bill, carrying $7,757,434,410 in cash and authorized contracts. Tomorrow the House is expected to adopt it and send it to President Wilson.

The measure is said to be the greatest of the kind in the history of any government. It emerged this afternoon from conference between the two houses in which items involving over $780,000,000 had been in dispute, and went through the Senate without the formality of a call.

The bill carries $5,355,976,016.93 of direct appropriation and authorizes the Government to enter into contracts for $2,401,458,393.75 more, almost entirely for war purposes, including the Navy's great destroyer program.

The largest appropriation is for the Ordnance Department of the army, which gets $695,100,000 for purchase, manufacture and test of mountain, siege and field cannon, and $225,000,000 more of contract obligations authorized, together with $663,000,000 of cash and $777,000,000 of contract obligations authorized for ammunition.

When Chairman Martin of the Appropriations Committee called up the conference report late today, Senator Robinson asked what had been done with the proposed $500,000 appropriation for an employment bureau in the Department of Labor. Senator Martin replied

Air Ministry Forming for British Reprisals; Lloyd George Makes Promise to London Poor

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Oct. 3.—The Daily Chronicle says that the War Cabinet has practically decided in favor of creating an Air Ministry with a separate war service, and it comments upon this news as follows:

"There has long been a demand for an Air Ministry, as well as for reprisals. The former is a question of evolution; the latter of equipment. The war started with two distinct air services and these could not be co-ordinated and the existing organizations disturbed until the problem of supply had been solved. The airplanes had first to be supplied for the army to maintain our ascendency in the air at the front. Engines and guns had to be supplied in great numbers to our allies. The needs of the navy were imperative and had to be met. Machines and guns for home defense came last.

"Now munitions of all kinds are abundant for all purposes. Fighting and bombing machines are being turned out at a far greater rate than the enemy can produce them. Reprisals will come in due course, as the enemy is no doubt expecting, and he will know to his cost that the strategical advantage which he has in Belgium as a jumping-off place will be more than balanced by the superiority of our fighting machines and the greater daring of our men.

Lloyd George has brought about unity of production in airplanes under Lord Cowdray. He will before long be able to announce a new development in aerial warfare. Captious critics may say, 'Why was it not achieved a year or more ago?' The answer is that we could not fight with inferior weapons. Just as in 1915 the army had to mark time in offensive artillery action owing to the shortage of guns and munitions, so we had to postpone aggressive air warfare in the form of long distance raids until we were fully equipped. The enemy is now finding himself outmatched on the western front in artillery and in fighting power. Before long he will find himself outmatched in the air. The war in the air is only beginning."

LONDON, Oct. 3.—A crowd of poor people in the southwest district of London appealed yesterday to Premier Lloyd George, says The Daily Mail, for [illegible] Germany. He [illegible] raids on London. The Premier shouted to the crowd:

"We will give it all back to them and we will give it to them soon. We shall bomb Germany with compound interest."

The crowd cheered the promise of the Premier, whoh ad just completed a tour of the area damaged in the raids with Viscount French, Commander of the Home Forces.

The air raids of the last ten days have virtually convinced the entire British press and public that the policy of passive defense for England must be dropped, and that a strong air offensive against Germany must be waged immediately. Even papers like The Manchester Guardian, which took the line that air raids accomplished little, have changed their policy.

The Germans, by the employment of some fifty machines and at the most 200 men, including aviators and mechanics, have forced England to detach several hundred valuable guns and several thousand men, including skilled gunners, for home defense.

The direct results of this campaign, apart from these military factors, have been the killing or wounding of fewer civilians and the damaging of property to a much smaller degree than the German people believe. But the indirect damages cannot be taken lightly.

The normal life of the largest city in the world and of important coast cities has been disturbed for ten days and the industries and working capacity of the people of London have been seriously handicapped. For an average of more than two hours on six nights the majority of Londoners have been forced to give up their pursuits and take shelter in basements, public buildings, and underground railways, while the guns were roaring in battle above. Railway travel has been largely at a standstill during these periods and all classes of nightwork have been interfered with, while day work has been curtailed.

The prolonged bombardments of heavy guns would be trying to the nerves of all but the strongest, and physicians say the nervous strain and loss of sleep has had a serious effect upon women and children. What the people of London are asking now is why they should undergo these attacks without the Ger- [illegible] having to suffer similarly.

8% EXTRA TAX ON ALL EARNINGS EXCEEDING $6,000

"Joker" in War Revenue Bill Adds Heavily to Individual Income Taxes.

INSERTED IN CONFERENCE

Ascribed to Secret, Hurried Procedure—Hits Salaried and Professional Men.

PRESIDENT SIGNS MEASURE

No Ceremony Attends Final Stage of Greatest Taxation Bill in History.

The Joker That Adds 8% to the Tax on Many Incomes

Sec. 209. That, in addition to the taxes imposed by existing law and by this act, in case of a business or trade having no invested capital or not more than a nominal invested capital, there shall be levied, assessed, and paid in lieu of the tax imposed by this tiele, [the excess war profits tax on corporations,] a tax of 8 per centum of the net income only of such business or trade, in excess of $3,000 in case of a corporation and $6,000 in case of a partnership or individual.

From Section 200 of the "War Profits Tax" Division.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 3.—With the signing today by the President of the $2,534,870,000 War Revenue bill, members of both houses of Congress are awakening to the fact that the individual excess profits tax, written into the bill in the secret sessions of the conference between the two houses, will provoke great criticism and, they fear, bring about widespread injustice.

While it does not seem to have been the intention to bring about that result, a literal reading of the law apparently imposes upon every person in the United States engaged in an "occupation," whether an independent profession like that of the doctor or the lawyer, or the occupation of a salaried subordinate, a tax of 8 per cent. upon all his earnings above $6,000 a year, and this in addition to the heavy income tax.

This section, which has all the earmarks of a legislative "joker," is No. 209, levying an 8 per cent. "excess profits tax on the incomes of men in professions and occupations on all money above $6,000 a year. The conferees had in mind lawyers making large fees, contending that the $100,000-a-year corporation attorney should pay no excess profits tax as well as a corporation earning that money; but the effect of the measure is to discriminate heavily in favor of the man who receives an income from invested money, the remittance man, and the idle rich with plenty of income and no occupation.

This bit of legislation is the result of the nervous worry of the last hours of the conference and the determined effort to get a bill before both houses raising a certain amount of money. Many members of Congress now look upon it as an example of the evils to be expected from legislation framed in secret proceedings and then suddenly thrown into each branch of Congress to be adopted at high speed.

Owing to the insistence of Representative Kitchin, Chairman of the Ways and Means Committee of the House, a cloak of secrecy was thrown around the proceedings of the conference, and inquiries for the most part were treated with scant courtesy or a gruff refusal. Behind this barbed wire the conferees sat down to their work in the last hours and framed an excess profits tax for individuals which will work out as a penalization upon industry and talent.

A Round-Table Product.

No member of the Conference Committee claims authorship of this section. It appears that it was the outgrowth of a round-table conference. As nearly as can be gathered from the reluctant conferees this outgrowth of ideas happened in this way:

After long and tiring sessions, the conference reached an agreement on the taxes for incomes and corporations. This was fairly well worked out, after many hours of give and take. When these taxes were agreed upon, the question of individuals making large fees was brought up. This produced a long wrangle. The Senators on the Conference Committee seemed to put the greatest obstacles in the way of any such tax, while the House members were all for it.

At this period of the discussions the question of the tax on farmers, or taxes which would reach farmers, was up for debate. The experts of the Treasury Department already had prepared a tentative section for levying an excess tax upon individuals and proposed that one-fifth of a man's income be taxed at an extra rate.

The conferees took this proposition, and, after a long session, in which all hands took part, Section 209 emerged, providing for an 8 per cent. tax on professional and business men, allowing them an exemption of $6,000. It was first aimed at individuals doing a large business, but after the conferees began to talk with one another about the large fees some lawyers and some surgeons and consulting engineers receive, they fixed it so as to hit professional men.

It is almost humorous to contemplate, but talks with members of the committee indicate that they resented attorneys lobbying in connection with the war tax measure and charging presumably large fees for doing very little. This circumstance, real or imaginary, seems to have had considerable influence in the framing of this discriminatory section.

J. Hampton Moore's Explanation.

The only member of the conference committee who could be found to talk for publication tonight was Representative J. Hampton Moore of Philadelphia, who said:

"The excess profits tax on individuals is due to the fact that corporations were heavily taxed, and many individuals in professional and business life are obvi-

Only 13 British Ships Sunk; Week's Record Lowest of War

LONDON, Oct. 3.—Eleven British merchantmen of more than 1,600 tons each and two vessels under 1,600 tons were sunk by mines or submarines last week, according to the British Admiralty statement made public this evening.

The ship arrivals were, 2,680, and the sailings, 2,742. The merchant vessels unsuccessfully attacked, including seven previously, were sixteen.

This statement of the Admiralty again shows a new low record of sinkings of British merchantmen since Germany began her intensified submarine campaign. The total of fifteen vessels sunk the previous week was the previous low record.

U-BOAT CAPTAINS MISLEAD BERLIN

ESTIMATES 50% TOO HIGH

Washington Cautions Optimists, but Says Convoying Policy Has Reduced the Losses.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Oct. 3.—A high naval authority, discussing Admiral von Tirpitz's recent statement, with its grotesque confidence in U-boats, suggested today that his optimism was based on German official figures, which were demonstrably wrong.

Submarine officers misled their superiors in reports, he explained. These probably enter as sunk many vessels which are torpedoed but reach port, and also exaggerate the size of the victims. Even if German officers tried to be accurate, the authority said, errors were inevitable, as submarines must submerge and make a quick getaway for their own safety.

Official German estimates of sinkings of enemy and neutral vessels since the beginning of unrestricted ruthlessness have just been received here. A little under a million tons a month is the total alleged. As an actual fact, the estimates are just 50 per cent. too high. This explains the extraordinary continuance of faith among the German people in the efficiency of U-boat warfare.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 3.—A warning not to take things too much for granted one way or another in the submarine campaign was voiced by high naval officials today. The German plan to starve England and France by unrestricted submarine warfare had failed, it was declared, but it was insisted that there was still a real job ahead of this country and the Entente in dealing with the menace.

In every possible way the fight against the U-boat was being pushed, it was insisted, and magnificent results had been accomplished, but this did not mean that the menace had been sufficiently overcome to warrant any let-up in the campaign of the destroyers and the efforts to supply more ships to take the place of lost tonnage.

The views of high officials as obtained today may be summarized as follows:

"The measures taken to meet the submarine issue are having effect. Last year no ships were convoyed, but now nearly every ship has a convoy. A year ago nearly all the naval authorities of foreign countries as well as of this country said that convoys would not do; that they would simply furnish more targets for the submarines. We have disproved that.

"It will not do, when things go bad, when sinkings increase, to lose our nerve, and say everything is going to pieces. We expect submarine losses to be lessened, but it is wrong to be either too optimistic or too pessimistic. Of course, we are going to win, but neither extreme of feeling is now justified. We will win because we have everything Germany has not, and our advantage will tell in the end.

"Submarine sinkings fluctuate. One week they may be way down, and it might not be accurate to say that measures taken by Germany's enemies are responsible for the decrease. The next week the sinkings may rise sensationally, and it might not be accurate to say that there has been any less efficiency on the part of the patrols. The reason for the fewer sinkings might be that Germany is short of torpedoes, and is holding up the submarines until sufficient torpedoes may be furnished, and when the submarines reappear better equipped they might have a greater success, coming out in squadrons.

"The United States is making magnificent headway in the construction of new naval vessels. Before we entered the war the shortest time in which a torpedo boat destroyer had been built was twenty-two months. We are turning them out in eight months. Every one that is now building will be delivered next year or before.

"We have got the money and the authority of Congress to build everything that can possibly be built with our resources, and the Navy Department itself will erect plants so that it can build ships. In twelve months the United States will turn out more naval tonnage than any other country has ever done in a similar period and more than it was ever dreamed that the United States could build."

U-BOATS REPULSED, CHURCHILL DECLARES

LONDON, Oct. 3.—Winston Spencer Churchill, Minister of Munitions, speaking at a luncheon in London today, said it was too early to say that the submarine campaign had been defeated, but it was not too soon to say that no vital attack on the country had been checked, even repulsed.

The capacity of the country to wage war, declared the Minister, was unimpaired; the armies had been supplied on an ever-increasing high level of equipment and the reserves of food were greater than before the attack began. During the twenty-three weeks of the present offensive the tonnage of shells hurled against the German positions had doubled that of the whole Somme battle, while during the last and culminating week it had been four times that of the same period in the Somme operations. Next year, unless some extraordinary development took place, he said, the power of the British artillery would undergo another great [illegible].

SOURCE OF IT CONCEALED

HEARST DINED WITH BOLO

Hint That the Entire Web of German Plottings in America May Be Uncovered.

Attorney General Merton E. Lewis of New York, with the approval of Secretary of State Lansing and Jules J. Jusserand, the French Ambassador, disclosed last night the secret of the traitorous activities in this country of Paul Bolo Pacha, the Levantine financier of Paris, now under arrest in France as a German spy.

Evidence in the possession of the Attorney General shows that the man who was behind the scheme by which Bolo proposed to betray France by corrupting its public press in favor of Germany was Count von Bernstorff, then the German Ambassador at Washington, who eagerly fell in with the plans of the traitor and advanced him nearly $1,700,000 with which to finance the plot in France.

The evidence also shows that it was through Hugo Schmidt, prominent before the war in New York banking circles, as the agent of the Deutsches Bank of Berlin, that Bernstorff advanced the money to the Levantine plotter, Adolph Pavenstedt, another former New York banker of German origin, appears as a go-between for the plotting Ambassador and the spy.

Bolo arrived in New York on Feb. 22, 1916, and left on March 17 following. He had rooms at the Plaza Hotel, and was careful not to be seen in public with German agents. He saw Bernstorff secretly in Washington. According to one of the witnesses in the case, he attended a large dinner at Sherry's, where he met, with others, William Randolph Hearst, whom, he told a bank employe, he hoped to "convert."

The documents in the possession of the Attorney General show the roundabout way which Bernstorff employed to get the corruption money into the hands of Bolo. Four banks were made use of in the relay.

As soon as the money reached the Royal Bank of Canada New York branch, in which it was deposited to the credit of Bolo, the latter began to check it out. The first check, for $170,000, was deposited with J. P. Morgan & Co. to the credit of Senator Charles Humbert, owner of Le Journal of Paris. The sum of $524,000 was transferred to Mme. Bolo in Paris, and $5,000 was placed to the credit of Jules Bois, a French lecturer then in the United States. About $1,000,000 was transferred to Paris and placed to Bolo's credit in a French bank.

Actors in the Drama.

The story given out by Mr. Lewis brings into the affair Count Johann Heinrich von Bernstorff, the ex-German Ambassador to the United States; Hugo Schmidt, the German banker and agent in New York, up to the break with Germany, of the Deustches Bank of Berlin; Adolph Pavenstedt, former head of the New York banking house of G. Amsinck & Co., and a number of other persons whose names are for the present withheld from publication.

A great mass of documents, including letters, cablegrams, and photographs of checks will be turned over to Ambassador Jusserand today. M. Jusserand had an opportunity last week to inspect the evidence in the possession of Attorney General Lewis. Bolo Pacha's arrest immediately followed a cabled synopsis of that evidence transmitted to Paris by the Ambassador. There are indications that the revelations in the case will go far to uncover the whole structure of German plotting in the United States.

The investigation by Attorney General Lewis began eleven days ago, and at the end of a week the case was in such shape that the main features could be cabled to Paris. The amount of money which Bernstorff, through his financial agent, Schmidt, turned over to Bolo totaled $1,683,500, the money coming into possession of Bolo after it had passed through a carefully prearranged system of transfers from one bank to another, the transfer of the money being made by cashier's checks and in such a way as to hide the origin of the money and to make it impossible for one bank to know what part the other institutions had in the transfer.

Banks in "the Circle."

The banking institutions which formed what the Attorney General termed "the circle around which the money traveled on its way to Bolo" were the Deutsches Bank, the National Park Bank, the Guaranty Trust Company, J. P. Morgan & Co., and the Royal Bank of Canada. With the exception of Pavenstedt, none of the New York bankers had any reason to believe that there was anything strange in the transactions. Pavenstedt, who was examined yesterday by Mr. Lewis, is said to have been fully cognizant of the purpose Bolo had in mind, which was the creation of discontent in France through the buying up, on behalf of Germany, of various influential publications, such as Le Journal of Paris.

Charles Humbert, owner of Le Journal, the documents in the possession of Attorney General Lewis show, had deposited to his account in the Morgan bank, by Bolo, 1,000,000 francs, which at the then rate of exchange amounted in American money to $170,000.00. The papers in the case show that on Feb. 14 of last year Humbert wrote J. P. Morgan & Co. in New York that Bolo would deposit "to my account the sum of 1,000,000 francs, converted into dollars." The letter was written twelve days before Bolo arrived in New York, indicating that the deal to acquire an interest in Le Journal was practically completed several weeks in advance of the transfer of the money by Bernstorff through Schmidt to Bolo.

The name of Jules Bois, the French lecturer and poet, who was lecturing in this country in the interest of France, also appears in the Bolo papers. The German agent, it appears, placed $5,000 in the Royal Bank of Canada to the credit of M. Bois. Attorney General Lewis says the disclosures in no way reflect on M. Bois, who, he adds, "was one of several decent men used by Bernstorff and Bolo as a cloak to hide the real nature of the work they were engaged in."

Pavenstedt's Secret.

Attorney General Lewis emphasized the statement that the developments in nowise reflect on any of the banks named, the Deutsches Bank, of course, excepted. Adolph Pavenstedt, he added, was the only member of the banking firm of G. Amsinck & Co. as that bank was then organized who knew the Bernstorff-Bolo-Schmidt secret. The money transferred to G. Amsinck & Co., he said, was not entered on the books of that concern, and Pavenstedt was the only official who knew of the transfers. A few employes who knew that hundreds of thousands of dollars were coming into the bank in the form of cashier's checks from the National Park Bank and the Guaranty Trust Company were enjoined by Pavenstedt to remain silent, and they did until brought before the Attorney General a few days ago.

The investigation which has revealed Bolo in his true status was made by Perley Morse & Co., certified accountants of 61 Broadway, to whom was given the necessary legal authority to examine the books of the various banks with which Bolo had dealings during the short time he was in the United States. It was a week before the accountants solved the secret of "the circle" and began to get results.

Not a word of what was going on was made public until 6 o'clock last night, when Attorney General Lewis met reporters from the New York newspapers at his rooms in the Murray Hill Hotel.

"I have sent for you, gentlemen," he said, "to give you certain facts having to do with the activities in the United States, last year, of the man, Paul Bolo Pacha, now under arrest in Paris. The conclusions, not all of which will be made public tonight, will be substantiated by a mass of documentary evidence and other proofs of the disposition of the money furnished to Bolo Pacha in this country by the former German Ambassador, von Bernstorff.

"Several weeks ago the French Ambassador sought the assistance of Governor Whitman in the effort to obtain information as to the activities of Bolo Pacha in this country. This Governor requested Attorney General Lewis to render such assistance as might be possible, and the Attorney General immediately began an investigation. He directed Perley Morse of New York City, certified public accountant, to make an examination of the accounts of Bolo Pacha in the banks of G. Amsinck & Co., the Royal Bank of Canada, New York branch, and J. P. Morgan & Co. Mr. Morse made such an examination and early last week submitted his preliminary report to the Attorney General.

"After he had inspected the report Attorney General Lewis, realizing that the information should first be submitted to the State Department, requested Robert C. Morris of this city, who has been assisting the Attorney General in the matter, to take the report to Washington and permit the Secretary of State to examine it first, and later on, if agreeable to the State Department, Ambassador Jusserand. Mr. Morris submitted the report to the Ambassador with the consent of Secretary Lansing. The Ambassador declared that the report provided him with valuable information which would be of much aid to his Government. He said that he wished the Attorney General to sift the affair to the bottom, no matter whom it might affect."

Mr. Lewis permitted an inspection of the records and documents in the case by the reporters. The most important of the documents is a letter written by Bolo Pasha to the New York City branch of the Royal Bank of Canada on March 14, 1916, three days before he sailed to return to France. That letter reads:

Disposes of $1,700,000.

New York, March 14, 1916.

Gentlemen—You will receive from Messrs. G. Amsinck & Co. deposits for the credit of my account with you, which deposits will reach the aggregate amount of about $1,700,000, which I wish you to utilize in the following manner:

First—Immediately on receipt of the first amount on account of this sum pay to Messrs. J. P. Morgan & Co., New York City, the sum of $170,068.03, to be placed to the credit of the account with them of Senator Charles Humbert, Paris.

Second—Establish on your books a credit of $5,000, good until the 31st of May, in favor of Jules Bois, Biltmore Hotel, this amount to be utilized by him at the debit of my account according to his needs, and the unused balance to be returned to me.

Third—Transfer to the credit of my wife, Mme. Bolo, with agency T of Comptoir National d'Escompte de Paris a sum of about $524,000, to be debited to my account as such transfers are made by you at best rate and by small amounts.

Fourth—You will hold, subject to my instructions, when all payments are complete, a balance of not less than $1,000,000.

Yours truly, BOLO PACHA.

This is how the $1,683,500, which was the exact amount Bernstorff ordered Schmidt to place at the service of Bolo, came into the latter's actual possession.

Found Bernstorff Sympathetic.

Bolo arrived in New York on a French liner on Washington's Birthday of last year. He is said to have immediately sought out Pavenstedt, and to have outlined to that banker his scheme for creating an opinion favorable to Germany in France. Pavenstedt told Bolo that he was not in a position to get the money for him, and is said to have advised him to get in touch immediately with Bernstorff. This Bolo did. Bernstorff told Bolo he would consider the proposition and let him know his decision in a few days. His decision was that the scheme was a splendid one for Germany, and he sent word to Bolo that he would back him.

Bernstorff then instructed Hugo Schmidt, the Deutches Bank representative in New York, to give Bolo the money needed to carry out the plan to "buy up" the French press and to start other pro-German propaganda in France. Schmidt transferred the money in six payments, all by cashier's checks of the National Park Bank and the Guaranty Trust Company. Both of these institutions were correspondents at that time of the Deutches Bank. The six payments, all by cashier's checks to G. Amsinck & Co., were:

| March 18, from Guaranty Trust Co.. | $500,000 |
| March 17, from Guaranty Trust Co.. | 200,000 |
| April 1, from Guaranty Trust Co.... | 200,000 |
| April 1, from National Park Bank.. | 283,500 |
| Total | $1,683,500 |

All of these checks were transferred by Pavenstedt to the Royal Bank of Canada to the credit of Bolo Pacha, the name of the Levantine not appearing in any of the transactions until the money reached the Canadian institution. Not one reference occurs in any of the books of G. Amsinck & Co. to show that the money was ever in that bank. The fact that it did pass through G. Amsinck & Co. without the official knowledge of any one but Pavenstedt, was revealed by certain check stubs which have come into the possession of the Attorney General.

| March 14 | $500,000 |
| March 21 | 300,000 |
| March 25 | 200,000 |
| April 3 | 483,500 |
| Total | $1,683,500 |

"In tracing the transit of the above sums of money," said Mr. Morse last night, "we lost the trail several times in the 'circle' around which the money passed. None of the banks concerned knew what part any of the others had in the transactions."

As soon as the money had reached the Canadian bank and had been placed to his credit, Bolo Pacha began to check on it. One of the first checks was for the $170,000 concerning which M. Humbert wrote J. P. Morgan & Co. under date of Feb. 10, 1916, as follows:

(Translation.)

Direction. Paris, 10 February, 1916.

Gentlemen: Mr. Paul Bolo-Pacha will deposit to my account with your bank in New York the sum of 1,000,000 francs, converted into dollars, (average rate of exchange as of Jan. 31 last.) Very truly yours, CH. HUMBERT.

To Messrs. J. P. Morgan & Co.

Mme. Bolo, as per instruction from Bolo, received $170,000. She thanked being paid to her through the Comptoir National d'Escompte of Paris. The $5,000 ordered deposited to the credit of Jules Bois was placed at Bois's disposal. The balance, $1,000,000, which Bolo was to use on his return to France, was checked from the Royal Bank of Canada to J. P. Morgan & Co., and transferred by the latter to the banking house of Perrier & Co. in Paris.

One of the men examined by the Attorney General was E. C. Pignatel, an employe of the New York branch of the Royal Bank of Canada. Mr. Pignatel stated that he saw Bolo several times and came to know him quite well.

Mr. Pignatel said he had been led to believe that Bolo Pacha was active in creating anti-German feeling in France, and that one of the reasons he had come to the United States was "to convert," as Mr. Pignatel put it. "William Randolph Hearst, who, Bolo said he understood, was pro-German in his views." Mr. Pignatel said he understood that Mr. Hearst and Bolo Pacha had attended a dinner at Sherry's, which was a very large affair. He did not give the names of any of the other guests.

Hugo Schmidt, who is one one of the prominent figures in the disclosures made, was arrested by agents of the Department of Justice the day after Congress declared war on Germany. He was subsequently paroled on his promise to strictly observe the war regulations of the United States.

G. Amsinck & Co., when Pavenstedt was its senior member, was the bank through which Captain von Papen transacted a large part of his business as chief assistant to Bernstorff.

BOLO PACHA FORCIBLY FED.

Questioned by Judge After a Meal of Milk and Vichy.

PARIS, Oct. 3.—The authorities apparently have carried out their decision to Feed forcibly Bolo Pacha, who, since he was taken to prison recently on the charge of having relations with the enemy, had refused all nourishment. It was believed he was undertaking a hunger strike.

A bulletin issued this morning says that he has improved, that his general condition is good, and that he had taken sufficient milk and vichy to allow the Prosecuting Judge to interrogate him.

FRENCH AIRMEN RAID BADEN.

Watering Place Attacked in Reprisal for Bombing Bar-Le-Duc.

PARIS, Oct. 3.—Continuing their reprisals for attacks of German airmen on French cities, French aviators last night dropped bombs on the German town of Baden, the War Office announces. The statement follows:

"In reprisal for the bombardment of Bar-le-Duc two of our aviators dropped several bombs on the town of Baden.

"On the night or Oct. 1-2 and during the day of Oct. 2 our aviators bombarded the railway station at Fribourg, factories at Volklegen and Hoftenbach, and railway stations at Brieulles, Longuyon, Metz-Woippy, Arnaville, Metz-lereas-les-Metz, Thionville, and Sarrebourg. In the course of these various expeditions projectiles to the amount of 7,000 kilograms (15,400 pounds) were dropped."

The town of Baden, in the Grand Duchy of the same name, is one of the most famous and beautiful watering places of Europe, best known for its medicinal baths. It has 15,000 inhabitants, and is about fifty-five miles from the French border.

Airmen Appear Over Cologne.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

AMSTERDAM, Oct. 3, (Dispatch to The London Morning Post.)—According to a message from Cologne, aviators appeared over that city last night. No bombs were dropped.

The anti-aircraft guns shelled the airplanes, but none of them was hit.

GERMANS DARKEN TOWNS.

Precautions Against Air Raids in Western Districts of Empire.

AMSTERDAM, Oct. 3.—The German military authorities have issued orders that all lights in the governmental district of Düsseldorf and a great portion of Westphalia must be darkened at night, according to the General Anzeiger of Essen.

Similar precautions against air raids are being taken at other places in Western Germany.

EVICT GERMAN EDITORS.

Must Leave Guatemala in 48 Hours —One the Husband of American.

GUATEMALA CITY, Guatemala, Oct. 3.—Dr. H. Shnitzler and M. G. Stabler, editor and publisher respectively of a German daily newspaper which was suppressed some time ago but resumed publication under another name, have received forty-eight hours in which to leave the country.

Table of Payments Under Income Tax Schedules As Revised in New War Revenue Act, Just Made Law

Details of the income tax, as provided in the new Revenue act, are presented below as they apply to the income of a married man. The only alteration necessary in applying the figures to the income of a single man is to make the exemption $1,000 instead of $2,000, as in case of a married man.

It is to be noted, however, that, according to the "joker" discovered in the Revenue bill, 8 per cent. must be added on all earned incomes above $6,000.

8% ON EARNINGS EXCEEDING $6,000

ble of earning as much as some corporations. It was felt that farmers, speculators in foodstuffs, cotton planters, surgeons, lawyers, editors, engineers, and other professional men should be taxed for excess profits, but be given an exemption of $6,000 before the excess profits tax begins.

"There were many cases pointed out where professional men without capital absorb the business of other men, and charge as much as the traffic will bear. It was felt they should share in payment of an excess profits tax, along with the corporations."

Members of the Conference Committee admit this section will provoke an angry outcry from salaried men who see themselves taxed an extra 8 per cent. while their neighbors who have incomes from invested money and do no work escape this burden. They seem to think, however, that there will be few of these cases.

How It Would Work Out.

A typical instance would be the comparison between a professional man with a $10,000 income and an idler with an income of $50,000 from 3½ per cent. tax exempt bonds. Upon his $10,000 the first man now pays a total income tax of $355, and under the excess profits tax he pays 8 per cent on $4,000, which is $320—a total of $675. The $50,000 man, who does no work, pays no taxes on his tax exempt bond income.

Members of Congress have little chance to scrutinize thoroughly the contents of a conference report. Consequently many things are slipped into the statute books by the subterranean passages of a conference committee and are never understood until too late. Conferences have a sacred aspect to Congress. The members become imbued with the atmosphere of a plane a little high than that of the ordinary legislator, and it seems to be bad form to criticise a confe ee.

After the conference has agreed on something it makes a formal report to the Senate and House, and under the rules the report lies upon the table for one day. During this time it is printed, and usually, on the day following, if the measure be a big and important one, the managers in charge of the legislation take it up, make brief explanations, and show all signs of a desire to close up with a vote and conclude business. It is in this rush atmosphere, where men rarely exhibit the firmness necessary to uncover a "joker," that ludicrous and dangerous and unfair legislation is cultivated.

No formalities attended the signing of the war tax measure. One of the immediate effects of the signing of the bill will be an increase in distilled beverage prices to meet the new tax of $2.10 a gallon, which reaches even the stocks of retailers in excess of fifty gallons.

Final official estimates of Treasury Department and Senate Finance Committee experts of revenue expected from the bill during the first year of its operation follow:

| Incomes, individual and corporate | $831,000,000 |
| Excess profits | 1,000,000,000 |
| Distilled spirits | 135,000,000 |
| Rectified spirits | 5,000,000 |
| Fermented liquors | 46,000,000 |
| Wines, liquors, &c. | 7,000,000 |
| Syrups, soft drinks, &c. | 13,000,000 |
| Cigars | 10,000,000 |
| Cigarettes | 21,500,000 |
| Tobacco | 30,000,000 |
| Snuff | 1,800,000 |
| Cigarette papers | 100,000 |
| Freight transportation | 77,500,000 |
| Express packages | 10,800,000 |
| Passenger transportation | 60,000,000 |
| Parlor car transportation | 4,500,000 |
| Seats and berths | 4,500,000 |
| Telegraph and telephone messages | 7,000,000 |
| Insurance | 5,000,000 |
| Automobiles and motor cycles | 40,000,000 |
| Musical instruments, phonographs, records, &c. | 3,000,000 |
| Motion picture films | 3,000,000 |
| Jewelry | 6,500,000 |
| Sporting goods | 1,200,000 |
| Pleasure boats | 500,000 |
| Perfumery and cosmetics | 1,800,000 |
| Chewing gum | 460,000 |
| Cameras | 750,000 |
| Amusement admissions | 50,000,000 |
| Club dues | 1,500,000 |
| Stamp taxes, including playing cards and parcel post | 29,000,000 |
| Inheritance taxes | 5,000,000 |
| Virgin Islands products | 20,000 |
| First-class mail matter | 70,000,000 |
| Second-class mail matter | 6,000,000 |
| Munitions manufacturers' tax | 25,000,000 |

When New Taxes Take Effect.

All new taxes in the bill become effective with the signing of the bill by the President, except certain specified rates. The one-cent letter and postcard tax becomes operative in thirty days and the second class mail increases July 1. All stamp taxes, including those on parcel post packages, become effective December 1. Amusement admissions and club dues taxes go into effect November 1, as do taxes on freight and passenger transportation, sleeping car, drawing room and steamship berths; pipe line transportation, insurance policies and telegraph and telephone messages costing fifteen cents or more.

Postmaster General Burleson has assured Congress that before the new increased second class mail rates become effective next July he will use his influence to have the entire subject reopened by the Senate and House Postal Committees and a modified system established as a substitute. The conferees accepted the compromise in the Revenue bill, it was stated today, with the express understanding that the department and Congressional committees would take up the question before the rates become effective and present some new plan.

Members of Congress prominent in the fight for increasing the rates said today that they did not expect the Revenue bill's rates to go into effect. Postmaster General Burleson is said by Congressmen to oppose increasing the rates on reading matter, especially that on newspapers.

they demand more or less large frontier rectifications.

"Further phases will follow, although a majority of the population of all the enemy countries already definitely take their stand on the basis of peace by agreement, which we were the first to propose six months ago and the fundamental principles of which I have just stated.

Does Not "Demand Utopia."

"We do not seek strength in big words, but in our glorious armies, the firmness of our alliances, the steadfastness of our people and the wisdom of our war aims. We do not demand a Utopia. We can neither be bent nor destroyed. Conscious of our power and clear as to what we must attain, we go our ways."

Saying that he had been blamed both at home and in unfriendly countries for plain speaking with regard to the Austro-Hungarian peace terms, Count Czernin proceeded:

"I withdraw nothing, being convinced that an overwhelming majority of the people approve my viewpoint. I feel compelled to say something publicly regarding the Government's ideas as to the restoration of Europe's shattered relationships.

"In broad outline our program for the re-establishment of order in the world has been laid down in our reply to the Pope's note. It may appear to be inconceivable to any people that the Central Powers desire to make renunciation with respect to military armaments, but the war has produced new facts, conditions, and conceptions which have shaken the foundation of European politics as they previously existed.

"Especially has the idea crumbled which held that Austria-Hungary was a moribund State. It was the dogma of impending dissolution of the monarchy which made our position in Europe difficult. By proving ourselves in this war thoroughly sound, and, at least, equal to the others, we destroyed the hopes that we could be overthrown by force of arms.

"Now that this proof has been given, we are in a position simultaneously with our allies to lay aside arms and regulate future conflicts by arbitration.

"This new competition which has forced its way into the world war affords us the opportunity not only of accepting the idea of disarmament and arbitration, but also of working with our whole energy toward its realization. Europe, after the war, must be placed on a basis of right, offering a guarantee of permanence. This basis must offer security against any future war of revenge. We must bequeath to our children's children as a legacy that they will be spared such a terrible war as this, and that is only possible through disarmament and arbitration.

"It is superfluous to say that disarmament is never directed against any particular State or group of powers, and that it must comprise land, sea, and air in the same degree.

"On an international basis and under international control universal equal and gradual disarmament in all States of the world must occur and the defensive force must be limited to what is absolutely necessary. I know this goal is extraordinarily difficult to reach and its pathway is long and thorny, but it must and shall be trodden, no matter whether individuals consider it desirable or not.

Free Hand if Conflict Goes On.

"We have from the beginning stated our aim and adhered to it. But let no one cherish the delusion that this pacific and moderate program of ours can and will hold good forever. If our enemies compel us to continue the war we shall be obliged to revise our program and demand compensation.

"I speak for the present moment, because I am convinced that world peace can now come on the basis which I have set forth. If the war, however, continues we reserve for ourselves a free hand. I am absolutely convinced that our position a year hence will be incomparably better than today. But I would consider it a crime to carry on the war for any material or territorial advantages for a single day longer than is necessary for the integrity of the monarchy and our future safety.

"If our enemies refuse to listen and compel us to continue this murder, then we reserve the right to revise our terms. I am not very optimistic of the disposition of the Entente to conclude peace by agreement on the above basis. An overwhelming majority of the entire world wants peace by agreement, but some few men are preventing it.

"We shall in this case pursue our way with sang froid and steady nerves. We know that we can hold out at the front and at home. Our hour will come, and with it a sure guarantee of the free and peaceful development of Austria-Hungary."

Minister's Speech Commended.

Count Czernin's speech, which was received here by way of Berlin, was very considerably delayed. Commenting on it, the Fremdenblatt says:

"Our enemies must recognize that their continuous refusal to terminate the war in a manner satisfactory to both parties is not without danger, and they must not continue the war indefinitely."

The Freie Presse says:

"Count Czernin loosely sketched a peace treaty, which almost only requires a sharp division into articles."

The Neuc Wiener Tageblatt says:

"Entente politicians may cast suspicion on our readiness for peace, but among the people the speech, if received undistorted, will create the impression that it springs from an honest conviction."

The Arbeiter Zeitung believes that it is Count Czernin's desire to serve peace and to remove the obstacles opposing it. The Zeitung says:

"He has pushed the peace car a bit further along."

The papers report from Budapest that the speech was favorably received and vigorously applauded.

OUTBURST IN AUSTRIA AGAINST MICHAELIS

His Speech and Kuehlmann's Are Denounced as Futile and Treacherous.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

THE HAGUE, Oct. 3.—Information reaching The Hague tonight from Austria shows that fury and bitter disappointment in Austria and Hungary followed the speeches on peace of Michaelis and Kühlmann to the Reichstag Main Committee. With the sole exception of the inspired semi-official papers, including only two in Hungary, the speeches were denounced as futile and treacherous.

The Vienna Arbeiter Zeitung printed on Saturday the angriest outburst about Germany yet published in an Austrian paper. It said:

"Every expectation built upon this Mr. Michaelis is an error. The man lacks any trace of warmth, any ounce of personality. Everything he says is so wooden and stiff that his speech was condemned in advance to futility.

"The Foreign Secretary, who followed, produced little more than poetical flummery. He talked about the desire of Germany, in reply to the Pope's note, of producing an atmosphere favorable to peace negotiations, but how is such an atmosphere to be created when the Chancellor refuses to specify the German terms and talks about having a free hand as regards Belgium?

"Political conditions in Germany are so miserable that it is possible Michaelis meant only to say something pleasing to the Pan Germans, and if his words really were meant to convey any serious annexationist program, all the chatter about honorable peace would be a pure and simple swindle. Even if he did not mean annexation, such ambiguous words must necessarily extinguish the last flickering hopes of peace.

"Too often we have seen Germany take a half step forward and a whole step backward. After every moderately intelligent utterance the row begins afresh and the so-called authorities promptly retract. It looks just as if all this peace talk were nothing whatever but a convenient alibi intended to appease popular opinion and pacify the Socialists."

The same issue of the paper contains a frank article on Austrian finances, which are represented to be in desperate straits.

DENIES SEPARATE PEACE BID.

No Proposals Made to France or Great Britain, Says Kuehlmann.

AMSTERDAM, Oct. 3.—Germany has made no proposals whatever for a separate peace, either to France or Great Britain, Dr. von Kühlmann, the German Foreign Secretary, announced, according to an official statement received here from Berlin, in answering the speech made by General Verkhovsky, the Russian Minister of War, before the Democratic Congress in Petrograd.

The statement reads:

"The Russian War Minister, General Verkhovsky, asserted at the Petrograd Democratic Congress that the Imperial Chancellor (Dr. Michaelis) had stated among other things at Stuttgart that Germany was ready to return Alsace-Lorraine to France. The Imperial Chancellor's utterances at Stuttgart are generally known, and the assertion of the Russian War Minister is an invention.

"General Verkhovsky further stated that it was Germany's intention to make a separate peace with Great Britain and France at the cost of Russia, and that Great Britain and France had informed the Russian Government that they would not be parties to any such proposal. I herewith state that Germany has made no proposals whatever for a separate peace, either to France or Great Britain."

ANNOUNCES CAPTURE OF AMERICAN AVIATOR

Dnesseldorf Paper Tells of It to Throw Ridicule on Kaiser Reward Story.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

THE HAGUE, Oct. 3.—The Düsseldorf General-Anzeiger announces the capture of the first American prisoner, an aviator who landed within the German lines. The paper says that this fact puts an end to the story that the Kaiser was to give 300 marks reward and three weeks' holiday for the first American captured. It says:

"This prize is in every respect a fantastic one, as no American is worth 300 marks and morover the whole story is an invention." * * * The best part of the story is that the first American was captured long ago when an American aviator landed within the German lines."

This dispatch may refer to Harold Willis of Boston, a Corporal of the Lafayette Escadrille, who was originally reported missing in early August after a big raid on German bases.

It was first thought he was dead, but a month afterward word reached Paris that he had been taken prisoner. He is a young Harvard graduate, and had received the war cross.

that the conferees had felt compelled to cut it to $250,000. Then the report was adopted.

The proposal to examine for military service all men registered for the army draft and not yet called was killed for the present, at least, today when the House and Senate conferees eliminated the appropriation for that purpose from the War Deficiency bill.

Most of the Senate's time today was devoted to an explanation of the Insurance bill by Senator Williams and debate over the advisability of continuing the insurance plan after the war. Senator Weeks opposed this feature of the bill and Senator Smoot introduced an amendment providing for turning over to private companies all insurance policies held by enlisted men, the Government paying the difference in cost.

Another amendment by the Utah Senator would establish the same family allowances as were operative during the Spanish-American war.

All committee amendments to the House bill were accepted except one reducing the maximum amount of insurance to a man to $7,500, on which there will be a vote tomorrow.

ficient to compensate the banks for their overhead expenses in connection with loans made to their customers.

It will be recalled that during the first Liberty Loan campaign for the sale of 3½ per cent. bonds, the Reserve Bank's special discount rate was 3½ per cent., and that the few institutions which agreed to carry the purchases of bonds by their customers at the same rate received no compensation whatever, and that consequently the 3½ per cent. rate was criticised, and most institutions refused to grant it, excepting in certain special cases. The action of the Reserve Bank in making the rate 3½ instead of 4 per cent. will, it is expected, greatly facilitate the flotation of the second Liberty Loan. The Federal Reserve Bank issued this statement in connection with the announcement of the rate:

"It should not be understood that the rates now in force will necessarily remain so for any fixed period of time. The rates established by the bank must be governed by business and monetary conditions, but the Directors of this bank see nothing in the present situation and outlook requiring any changes in the rates now established."

Further evidence of the disposition of financial institutions to help the public in every reasonable way in financing Liberty bond purchases was given yesterday when the committee announced that thirty of the thirty-two trust companies in New York City had agreed to sell bonds on a partial payment plan of $1 down on the filing of subscriptions and a dollar a week until the bonds are paid for.

On the basis of subscriptions totaling $5,000,000,000 for the whole country, the New York Federal Reserve District, which is composed of the whole of the Empire State, Fairfield County, Conn., and twelve northern counties of New Jersey, is expected to raise 30 per cent., or $1,500,000,000. The apportionment for the five boroughs of New York City is $1,075,861,500, and the rest of the district is expected to send in subscriptions amounting to $424,138,500. The following figures give the quota for this city:

| Borough of Manhattan | $1,012,813,500 |
| Borough of Brooklyn | 54,148,500 |
| Borough of Queens | 5,487,000 |
| Borough of the Bronx | 2,511,000 |
| Borough of Richmond | 901,500 |
| Total, New York City | $1,075,861,500 |

The apportionments have been made on the basis of banking resources and population. The territory outside of New York City has been divided into eight districts, and these in turn into 550 communities. Each community and each district is organized, and encouraging reports are arriving from all points. That the farming districts are taking a great interest in the loan campaign is indicated by the telegrams received at the Liberty Loan headquarters from thirty-two of the forty-five farm bureaus, all of which report satisfactory responses to the appeal for subscriptions.

The Directors of The Associated Press, in session here yesterday, unanimously resolved to transfer the sum of $300,000 which the association has in its Emergency Reserve Fund to an investment in Liberty Loan registered bonds, as was done in the case of the first issue. In addition it was unanimously resolved that the executive officers be authorized to encourage the subscription for Liberty Loan bonds by employes on a partial payment plan, the association to carry the bonds and deferred payments until fully paid for by employes.

At a meeting of representatives of various organizations held yesterday at the Seventy-first Regiment Armory plans were formulated for a monster Liberty Loan pageant and parade which is scheduled for Wednesday, Oct. 24. The parade is expected to visualize the participation of every class of citizenship in the service of the country, whether that consists of military duty, work in factories or on farms, or the purchase of bonds for the purpose of helping to finance the struggle. Major Lorillard Spencer of the Fifteenth (Negro) Federalized National Guard will assist in perfecting the military features of the demonstration.

The Liberty Loan Committee is also making plans for a Navy Day, when the city can line the sidewalks to cheer marching battalions of bluejackets of the regular service, drawn from ships in the immediate vicinity, applaud the "First to Fight" corps of marines and acclaim the men of the Naval Reserve, some three or four thousand of whom are in nearby cantonments. One of the features will be the naval flags of all our Allies, carried by men of the various nationalities, clad in their respective uniforms. There will also be a float carrying a lifeboat filled with survivors of the Lusitania, and there will be another float carrying one of the naval rapid-fire guns with which our merchantmen are now armed.

A Liberty Loan drive, the purpose of which is to enlist the active co-operation of every hotel in the United States, is to be started by four New York hotels, the Park Avenue, Majestic, Martha Washington, and the Hargrave, next week. According to the announcement of George C. Brown and Copeland Townsend, proprietor of these hotels, every cent taken in the restaurant departments for seven days, beginning Monday, will be invested in Liberty Bonds.

ORDERS ARMY TO HELP LOAN.

Gen. Bliss Directs That All Officers Join in Bond Campaign.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 3.—Major Gen. Bliss, Chief of Staff, issued a general order today directing army officers to institute an "aggressive campaign" for voluntary subscriptions to the Liberty Loan.

The order is addressed to Major Gen. Pershing, commanding the American expeditionary forces in Europe, and to the commanding officer of each territorial department, tactical division, coast artillery district and separate brigade. Similar action is to be taken by bureau chiefs respecting officers, enlisted men, and civilian employes under their control at Army Headquarters and by commanding officers of arsenals, depots, hospitals, recruiting stations or other places under direct control of the War Department.

"This campaign," says General Bliss's order, "will be so thorough that every officer, enlisted man, and civilian employe, including also the members of the Marine Corps or other United States forces attached to the army, will be reached and his services utilized in this patriotic movement."

EXPECT REPUBLICANS TO SELECT MITCHEL

But Bennett Promises a Big Fight in County Committee Tonight.

'REGULARITY' TO BE ISSUE

Meanwhile Chairman Koenig Indicates That He Will Not Support the Mayor.

When the Republican County Committee of New York meets tonight at Bryant Hall to take action as a result of the recent primaries it is likely that Mayor Mitchel will be indorsed, notwithstanding the fact that William M. Bennett was the victor in the primaries over the Mayor. The Bennett and the Mitchel forces drew up their battlelines yesterday. It was predicted that the meeting would be one of the most tumultuous in the history of the local Republican organization.

The whole fight is to be made upon the question of party regularity. The Bennett forces will insist that the County Committe cannot do other than formally indorse the regular party candidate, while the Mitchel supporters will make the plea that the present municipal situation far transcends party lines, and that the primary vote was not representative of the true party feeling. The Bennett forces will be led by Albert E. Ottinger, leader of the Seventh District, who has been a Bennett enthusiast, while the Mitchel leaders will be Job E. Hedges, James R. Sheffield, former President of the Republican Club, and others.

That the Mitchel sentiment within the organization is overwhelming was admitted by all sides yesterday, but whether the members of the County Committee will throw regularity overboard is another matter. The indications yesterday were that the Mitchel men would carry their point, and that for the first time in its history the New York organization would refuse to indorse its regularly accredited candidate. It was admitted that much will depend upon the attitude of County Chairman Samuel S. Koenig. Mr. Koenig said yesterday that he considered it his duty to remain "regular," despite all other considerations. Mr. Koenig, it is expected, will insist that the organization must support the nominee of the primaries, but that it can be left to the individual members to decide what to do on election day. If the indorsement of Bennett goes through, it is expected that many of the various district organizations will "revolt and declare for Mitchel.

The whole matter will be considered first at a meeting of the Executive Committee of the County Committee during the afternoon. This committee is composed of the district leaders. Should it be shown at this meeting that the majority of the district leaders are in favor of Mitchel's indorsement, it is expected that the fight will be all one-sided in the meeting tonight. On the other hand, a compromise may be effected whereby the organization will not go on record in favor of either candidate. Much depends upon the action taken by the New York Committee. The County Committee of the other boroughs are holding off to see what Chairman Koenig's organization will do. The Queens and the Richmond County committees have already met, but adjourned without taking action. The Kings County Committee will meet next Tuesday.

It is expected that at tonight's meeting the Mitchel resolution will be presented by Clarence Schmelzel, leader of the Seventeenth Assembly District, which is known as the "Diamond Back" district, because of the number of wealthy and prominent Republicans living there. Job Hedges, who had already advised that the organization support Mayor Mitchel, is a resident of the district. That there is strong anti-Bennett feeling in the Republican party in New York is shown by the fact that no county chairman in any borough has consulted with Mr. Bennett since the recount of the primary votes showed that he had defeated Mayor Mitchel. It is customary for the local organization of the various boroughs to meet after the selection of candidates and arrange for the campaign. Apparently no official attention has been paid to Mr. Bennett by the Republican leaders in any way.

Americanism the Issue.

Emory R. Buckner, campaign manager of the Fusion Committee, declared yesterday that Americanism was the big issue in the Mayoralty campaign, notwithstanding what Charles F. Murphy said to the contrary. He said that Mr. Murphy was simply patterning after Mayor Thompson of Chicago.

"The best proof in the world that Americanism is a paramount issue in this campaign," said Mr. Buckner, "is because Murphy says it is not. So does Mayor Thompson of Chicago. Murphy doesn't want Americanism to be an issue, because Tammany Hall's representatives in the Board of Elections have given the election advertising, which they control, to newspapers, some of which are pronouncedly pro-German in their sympathies. This shows that Murphy is going fifty-fifty in his public statements. He bids for the patriotic vote in his statements and in the distribution of patronage he seeks to get unpatriotic votes.

"Patriotism must be the paramount issue in the greatest city in the United States at a time when we are engaged in the greatest war in history. Mr. Murphy will not obtain votes by calling a former Democratic candidate for President of the United States a 'boob.' Murphy's statement for patriotism reads like a carbon copy of one of Mayor Thomnson's speeches. Thompson would agree with Murphy that patriotism should have no place in a campaign either in New York or in Chicago. If the people of New York do not want in the City Hall the Siamese twin of William Hale Thompson, they should vote for Mitchel. Every man who wants America to take a strong, patriotic stand in this war, now we are in it, wants an American issue in the campaign. No man who believes in Americanism in this war is afraid to have Americanism made an issue. When Murphy says Americanism has no place in this campaign, it shows that they want un-American votes. We don't want un-American votes, therefore we want it to be an issue."

In speaking of the progress of the work of building up a machine to carry on the Mitchel campaign and the work to be done on election day, Mr. Buckner said that yesterday he had received 100 letters from men who want to be Mitchel minute men, and that only one of the hundred demanded pay for his services.

Mayor Mitchel sent a letter yesterday to Morris Hillquit, Socialist candidate for Mayor, refusing Mr. Hillquit's request that he be allowed to hold a mass meeting in his interest in City Hall Park. This is the Mayor's letter:

"The City Hall is and has been my official residence for the last four years. Several days ago I was advised that a group of citizens would call upon me there and present certain demands that I become a candidate for re-election to the office of Mayor. Because of the limited space inside City Hall it was necessary that I meet these citizens on the steps of the building, where I made answer to their demands. If you desire to receive a number of citizens who may call upon you at your official or business residence, and it is necessary for the police to make special traffic arrangements, I shall be very happy to ask the Commissioner to accommodate you in every way in his power.

You are in error in assuming that I have set a precedent in permitting City Hall steps and park to be used for political purposes. It would be most inadvisable to create any such precedent. For the Mayor to receive any and all who come to see him at his office is one thing. For political organizations to make of the steps of City Hall a hustings is quite another. Therefore, in spite of my high, personal regard for you, I am compelled to decline your request for permission to hold a public meeting in the City Hall Park on Saturday, Oct. 6, at 12 o'clock, noon.

The Mayor received a letter yesterday from the Rev. John P. Peters of St. Michael's Church, and Chairman of the Committee of Fourteen, indorsing his candidacy. Mr. Peters wrote:

"It seems to me essential to the welfare and progress of this city that you should serve a second term as Mayor. In view of your vote in the Republican primaries I understand that you will run only if a strong sentiment is expressed in some way for your re-election. Hence this letter to you to state what my opinion is on the matter."

Ministers for Mitchel.

The Mayor also received a letter from the Conference of Baptist Ministers, telling him that it was voted unanimously to request him to allow his name to be placed in nomination for Mayor for a second term, "in the interest of morality in civic government and of American patriotism." A letter was also received from Albert E. Selbert, a lawyer, of 49 Wall Street, which read:

"I am a lifelong Republican, and voted for you as the anti-Tammany candidate, but without enthusiasm. Your record as Mayor now abundantly entitles you to re-election, and I shall gladly vote for you again. Much, very much more important than your administrative achievements, however, is your uncompromising and aggressive Americanism, and that has made you necessary to America's greatest city."

Borough President Maurice E. Connolly of Queens, who is the Democratic candidate for re-election, has threatened to bring a libel suit against Robert W. Higbie, the Fusion and Republican candidate, unless the latter disavows or retracts statements purported to have been made by him, in which he accused the Borough President of malpractice in connection with the repaving of Metropolitan Avenue, Ridgewood. Higbie was quoted as stating in a speech before the Republican County Committee on Monday night that the repaving of Metropolitan Avenue was a "rotten job," and that Connolly knew it was to be so when he awarded the contract, but that he did it just the same.

Mr. Connolly wrote a letter to Mr. Higbie yesterday, in which he said that Mr. Higbie knew the utterances were a tissue of falsehood, and that unless Mr. Higbie stated publicly and in writing that he did not make the statement credited to him in the press, he would have his attorneys at once institute an action for libel, and that he would use as evidence against Mr. Higbie the records of the office of the Borough President, of the Board of Estimate, and of the Controller's office.

MITCHEL ON SEDITIOUS IRISH.

Tells Labor Men of His Contempt for Soapbox Revolutionists.

Mayor Mitchel had a "heart-to-heart" talk yesterday at his headquarters at the Manhattan Hotel with a labor committee representing nearly every sort of union in the city which called to offer their services to help re-elect him. The delegation was presented to the Mayor by Judge Emil E. Fuchs.

In reply the Mayor expressed his opinion of the group of Irishmen in the city who, he said, preached soapbox sedition. The Mayor said:

"I also noticed the other part of your communication, in which you referred to my own ancestry and the misinterpretation which has been put upon my position by a few Irishmen who, for purposes of their own, choose to attempt to create a misunderstanding in the community. I do not know, gentlemen, whether any of you are as well acquainted with the developments and the underlying motives in Irish politics in this city as I am. I was pretty active in them at one time, when Devlin, Denman, Redmond, and their colleagues were here to organize in the interest of the United Irish League for the fight in Ireland which resulted in the land and labor legislation, following Mr. Windham's Coercion act and the organization that was undertaken.

"We met then with precisely the same forces that are now preaching soapbox sedition on the sidewalks of New York. They were animated by the same purpose. There is a group of Irishmen in this city—thank God! just a small group—who have profited and promoted themselves in the political life of American communities, preaching Irish matters and practicing American profit. I understand their motives and their mental processes very well and allow me to say that I join in the feeling that every man of Irish blood has, who is worthy of it, that when, after this war, the nations sit down at the council table to consider terms of peace, the voice of the United States may be raised in behalf of a fair measure of autonomous government for Ireland. It won't be as a result of the work of the soapbox seditionist. It will be because the majority of the Irishmen in the United States have demonstrated that the great mass of Irish people of this country stand just where they always have in every other war—and that is with the Government and flag of the United States.

"Let me say further, as I said last night and today, that there is no group of people for whom I have more hearty and whole-hearted contempt than Irishmen who are disloyal to the United States, because it is predicated on the profoundest ingratitude; this country, that has offered the opportunity that England has denied at home, that has offered all that opportunity for wealth and prestige and happiness and comfort and development, that Irishmen should turn on this country in a struggle that involves our nationality, perhaps, certainly the lives of many of our men, surely our democratic institutions—is an ingratitude that is not typical of the Irish race, but is merely typical of that small group.

"I have a mighty profound contempt for these Irishmen who preach the impossible revolution. If there was an opportunity to achieve it, if they had a fighting chance, it would be well, but for men who preach that there is a chance for Irishmen in Ireland, while they remain smugly comfortable and safe in the United States holding public offices, sitting on the Supreme Court bench of the State, secure in their own persons and in their own property, and urging these unfortunate people to action that means that they will be shot down by machine guns on the streets of Dublin there can be only contempt."

MAYOR SPEAKS IN QUEENS

Opens Campaign by Recalling What Administration Did for Borough.

Mayor Mitchel started his campaign in Queens last evening at the headquarters in the Queens Plaza Court Building in Long Island City. Among those present were these Republicans, who announced their intention of supporting the Mayor: John W. Crawford, William T. Yale, Eugene N. L. Young Ira G. Darrin, Charles Lee Andrews the Rev. H. B. Belcher, the Rev. Lincoln H. Caswell, the Rev. Herman Lillienthal, John A. Rapelyea, David Oggins, Dr. William M. Stone, Charles A. Tipling, and R. P. Woodin. The Mayor said in part:

"The material development of your borough has been supported by the Board of Estimate and Apportionment. I remember when the delay occurred in obtaining the material for the construction of these transit lines which pass this building. Groups of citizens from your borough asked me to interest myself in that matter with the Public Service Commission. Though it was no obligation of the Mayor, a concern for the city's interests made it incumbent upon me to go with your committee, as I did to the Public Service Commission and call into conference the representatives of the Interborough who were delaying this matter, and secure from the Public Service Commission some pressure that finally resulted in the construction, opening, and operation of these lines.

"You have heard of Randall's Island and its Superintendent, Mrs. Dunphy. In the days when that institution was administered by her the little children were permitted to go half clothed, half fed, compelled to lie in the same room with children with contagious diseases, attended by the same nurses; cripples sleeping on the top story of firetraps without possible escape in case of conflagration, neglected and even beaten.

"Immediately after the removal of that Superintendent I made a trip to Randall's Island. We found the children afraid to talk to the visiting officials because they had learned it was not safe to tell the truth to visiting officials. We put in place of her a competent medical director to make it a real hospital. Today those children get healthful recreation, they are fed, they are clothed, and they are housed comfortably."

Mooney Witness Freed of Perjury.

SAN FRANCISCO, Cal., Oct. 3.—A complaint charging that Frank C. Oxman, an Oregon cattle dealer, perjured his testimony against Thomas J. Mooney, convicted of murder as an outgrowth of a Preparedness Day bomb explosion, was dismissed today by Superior Judge Franklin A. Griffin.

MITCHEL RENEWS ATTACK ON HEARST

joinder to something that I had to say, stated that I was not a National Democrat, that I had not voted for President Wilson, but had voted for Governor Hughes in the late campaign. Now, Mr. Murphy knows that what he said is false. I am not here to defend my Democracy, but I do not propose to let him get away with that falsehood."

Did Vote for Wilson.

The Mayor had difficulty in proceeding, so many of the delegates interrupted to cheer and shout for him to "Give it to Murphy." The Mayor went on:

"I have the utmost admiration and respect for Judge Hughes, a great American, but in the last election I supported and voted for President Wilson, and if the conduct of the national campaign in the City of New York had not been in the hands of Mr. Murphy and his friends to the extent that they excluded me from deliberation where the candidacy of President Wilson was presented to the people, I would have been in active support of him. The fact is that the only meeting at which they consented to permit me to appear was the meeting in Madison Square Garden, and there they were careful not to permit me to speak for him.

"That, gentlemen, is the kind of support that he got from Mr. Murphy and his organization in this city, carefully excluding the support that the President ought to have had in that campaign, with the result that you all know hat the vote in this city showed he treachery that Tammany Hall exercised then as it always has whenever it believes its own advantage is at stake. Why, the reason Democrats are leaving the ranks of Tammany, are abandoning Mr. Murphy, is because of the shame of association with Hearst.

"You will remember that back in 1905 Mr. Murphy was asking the electorate for the election of Mayor McClellan, a clean and upstanding young Democrat against whose record there was nothing material to criticise. But at that time Mr. Hearst, through the columns of his paper, took occasion to express his opinion of Mr. Murphy and of the organization, and to say what he thought would happen if a candidate elected by Murphy and his friends should come into power in the city. On Oct. 29 of that year Mr. Hearst, in a speech at Durland's, declared: 'If you elect Murphy and McClellan for four years more you surrender unconditionally to as brutal a lot of private speculators and public plunderers as ever banded together to rob an outraged and helpless people.'"

"And in an editorial on Oct. 13 he said: 'Murphy can be obeyed from the political organization whose leaders have made a secret alliance with open looters of the municipality.' That was his opinion of Murphy in 1905—yes, and it was his opinion of Murphy in later campaigns, when he pictured him in his cartoons in prison stripes, and denounced Murphy and those around him in Tammany Hall as looters, grafters, and dishonest men. Gentlemen, his opinion in those days was not far wrong, but today he is associated with Mr. Murphy, and the men in Tammany Hall have very little respect for a leader who will so far degrade and prostitute himself as to snap at the hand of any man and then take his hand and act with him in a movement.

"Prudence and sound policy demand a definite statement of our war aims and our terms upon which we will make peace. The question naturally arises as to why we are at war. The Congress says in the declaration of war that the German Government has committed many hostile acts against us amounting to a state of war, and that, therefore, we recognize and accept a state of war. If this means anything, it means that we have gone to war with Germany because she has sunk American ships, with loss of American lives, and has ordered her submarines to continue sinking American ships within the blockade zone she has drawn around England, France, and Italy.

Attacks Untermyer Again.

"That is Hearst's opinion of what our place in this war means to us and to the world. I say to you, gentlemen, that a Government guided by a man who has been put forward as the puppet of this man who preaches this doctrine will be inspired by principles and by a doctrine that is not loyal to the United States or to the flag. Another reason, it seems to me, why you men are unwilling to accept this ticket that has been put forward falsely in the name of Democracy is that he who heads it has taken his commission from the lips and hands of Samuel Untermyer.

"I said, down on the steps of the City Hall, and I repeat, 'New York is offered Hylan, the nominee of Murphy and Hearst, the candidate of Untermyer and of his kind, who, out of association with Dumba, von Bernstorff and their like, raise their heads to spit venom at any one who takes a strong stand for America and against Tammany, and I see by the newspapers that Mr. Untermyer says, "What does he mean by my association with Dumba and Bernstorff? I never met either of them more than three times in my life and never sustained any association or a professional relation to them."'

"What of the conferences at his home? The result of one of these conferences with Dumba and with Bernstorff is thus told by The Evening Telegram:

"'Mr. Untermyer also took occasion to declare that he was opposed to the United States declaring war, and termed the German submarine zone a battlefield, and said persons cannot go on a battlefield without being hurt. I do not think we should send our young men over to Europe to fight with England, which has injured us just as much as Germany has. We have troubles enough of our own with Mexico and Japan without getting into this.'

It was here that Mr. Mitchel made his reference to Jingoism that tried to stir up trouble between the United States and one of her Allies. The Mayor then recited the fact that Tammany had selected as the five Democratic newspapers for the election advertising this year The New York American, The Evening Journal, The Staats-Zeitung, Die Warheit, and The Morning Telegraph, and continued:

"Now, election advertising means $15,000 to each newspaper, and the four papers clearly German in their sympathies, I mean sympathetic with the German cause and with the German Nation, received $60,000 out of the $75,000 of that advertising. Straws sometimes show how the wind blows.

"Let me say this, and say it with the utmost emphasis lest there be some misapprehension concerning my position on this question. God knows I do not see how there could be, as I have made it clear so often before. The great body of our citizens of German birth and blood are just as loyal to the country and the flag as you and I. The great rank and file of the men of Tammany Hall are just as loyal to the flag as any other citizens. But we are at war with Germany, we are at war with the German Government, we are at war with the German Kaiser and the German military system, and those, whether they be of pure Anglo-Saxon stock of French stock, of German, or any other stock who sympathize with those forces against which we are arrayed in this war, are not loyal to the United States. Let that be clearly understood.

"There apparently have been primary frauds committed," the Mayor continued. "I would rather never hold a public office or a public trust than accept one that was predicated upon one single fraudulent vote. It was for that reason that I instituted the proceeding which has disclosed these frauds and has remedied them, and has handed over to Mr. Bennett the nomination, the nominal nomination, of the Republican Party, to which he is entitled by virtue of that scant vote. And now let me say that I trust that every man responsible for the perpetration of any one of those frauds, or any one of the other frauds that might not yet have come to light on either side, will be apprehended and punished; because if there is one thing in this country that we must keep free from suspicion of dishonesty it is our elections, for upon the honesty of elections rests the whole structure of democracy in this country."

HYLAN'S SILENCE EXPLAINED

Judge Refuses to Talk to Reporters of Opposing Papers.

Judge John J. Hylan, Tammany candidate for Mayor, will open his campaign tonight in Brooklyn, speaking at Prospect Hall. On Oct. 25 he will attend a dinner at the Hotel Biltmore, to be given the Democratic candidates by the Real Estate Men's League for Hylan.

Judge Hylan continued his silence yesterday, and refused to see reporters. It was said at the headquarters of the Democratic Fusion Committee, 50 East Forty-second Street, that the Tammany Mayoralty candidate had adopted a policy of silence so far as talking to newspaper men was concerned, which he would follow throughout the campaign.

In explaining the candidate's position, it was said that Judge Hylan took the ground that he did not intend to answer questions put to him by reporters of hostile newspapers. All that the candidate would have to say, it was stated, would be spoken from the platform.

Judge Hylan told the members of the Queens County Democratic Committee at its meeting in the Democratic Club in Long Island City last night that he did not wish to make a speech until he opened his campaign tonight. "Then I will have plenty to say," he added. Richard S. Newcombe and Edward Lazansky, candidates for Supreme Court Justice, spoke, and Maurice E. Connolly, Borough President of Queens, introduced Judge Hylan, who said that he would open his campaign tonight.

ALAN MUDIE KILLED IN WAR.

Word was received in this city yesterday of the death in battle of Alan Mudie, an English actor, who was also well known in this country. Mudie's last appearance on the stage was in "The White Feather," early in 1913, and in the Spring of that year he returned to England to enlist. He received a commission as a second lieutenant, and later won his promotion to a Captaincy. The news of his death in Flanders was received here by his cousin, Leonard Mudie, now appearing in "Out There."

Mudie was brought to this country by Charles Frohman for "The Arcadians," and later appeared in "The Girl from Montmartre," "The Sunshine Girl," and "The Debutante."

SEABURY COMES OUT FOR MAYOR MITCHEL

Former Democratic Candidate for Governor Attacks Murphy and Hearst.

Samuel Seabury, who resigned from the Court of Appeals last year to run as the Democratic candidate for Governor, came out yesterday in support of Mayor Mitchel. In a letter to Martin W. Littleton, Chairman of the City Democracy, Mr. Seabury wrote that not only as a Democrat but as an American citizen it gave him great pleasure to support the Mayor. He added that he took this action, first, because he considered it a patriotic duty; second, because the best interests of the city required it, and third, because his election will be a good thing for the Democratic Party in the State and nation. In his letter Mr. Seabury bitterly attacked Charles F. Murphy, and said William R. Hearst and Tammany co-operated last year to work against President Wilson and himself. In his letter announcing his support of the Mayor, Mr. Seabury said:

"It is not just to charge that all the supporters of Tammany are pro-German in their sympathies, and I make no such charge, but I do assert that the Tammany candidate is receiving the united support of pro-German sympathizers. I refuse to support any candidate whose position on this subject is in doubt. A victory for Tammany will be construed as an indorsement of Hearst and all the treasonable pro-German propaganda for which he stands. A victory for Mayor Mitchel will carry to the world the message that the great City of New York stands loyal and true to the American cause.

"I shall support Mayor Mitchel because his election will destroy the control which Tammany now has of the Democratic party in this State. The Tammany machine and Hearst co-operated last year to work against President Wilson and the Democratic candidate for Governor. This year they seek to intrench themselves in power by accomplishing the defeat of Mayor Mitchel.

"The Tammany ticket is largely a Hearst ticket. By virtue of what right does Hearst assume to dictate Democratic candidates? For the last six years he has consistently and persistently blackguarded the President of the United States. Today he stands as the most pronounced advocate of the pro-German cause who is still at large in the United States. I esteem him false not only to his own country, but to every ideal of decency."

INDICT 22 ON 2 COUNTS IN PRIMARY INQUIRY

Election Inspectors Charged With Filing False Canvass of Ballots and Neglect of Duty.

Acting on evidence presented by Assistant District Attorneys Neilson Olcott and James E. Wallace, the Grand Jury which has been investigating alleged frauds in the city primaries returned twenty-two indictments of two counts each yesterday against as many inspectors in six election districts of four uptown Assembly districts. The first count charged the defendants with violating section 766 of the Penal Code, which makes it a felony punishable by ten years' imprisonment to file with the Board of Elections a false canvass of ballots. The second count charged willful neglect of duty, punishable by an indeterminate sentence.

These indictments, in the opinion of District Attorney Swann, were the forerunner of four or five hundred more which he predicted would be found within a few weeks.

Four of the defendants surrendered at the District Attorney's office yesterday afternoon. Nearly all of the others notified Assistant District Attorney Olcott through counsel or personally by telephone that they would appear today. The four men who appeared, all of whom were released in $2,500 bail, were Frederick Tillman, Democrat, 427 East Seventy-fifth Street; Thomas F. Hayes, Democrat, 421 East Seventy-fifth Street; Arthur Treulich, Republican, 406 East Seventy-fifth Street, and William Klapper, Republican, 351 East Seventy-second Street. These men were inspectors in the Thirty-first Election District of the Fourteenth Assembly District.

The fact that Democrats were indicted in a Republican muddle is explained by the fact that under the election law the canvass of the votes of all parties in a primary election is made by a bipartisan board of four men, all of whom sign the tally sheets. It is understood that eleven of the men indicted yesterday are Democrats and the others Republicans.

Assistant District Attorneys Wallace and Olcott said that tomorrow they would present data to the Grand Jury upon which they believed that body would return at least one hundred indictments.

ASSAILS MITCHEL BEFORE THE HOUSE

CHARGES FRAUD AT PRIMARY

Denounces "Secret Sponsors" of the Mayor, Who, He Says, Is Displaying Selfishness.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 3.—National matters were laid aside in the House for a half hour this afternoon when Representative Hulbert of New York, Democrat, denounced what he termed "the secret sponsors" of Mayor Mitchel. He charged an attempt to steal the New York Republican Mayoralty nomination, a situation which, he said, "developed the most outrageous primary frauds which have distinguished an American community," and which "exposed the desperate plight of the clique which has fattened on the people of New York for the last four years."

Although several members attempted to stop Mr. Hulbert, on the ground that he was not following a national subject, on which he had obtained permission to address the House, Representative Hulbert maintained that the New York political situation was a national matter. He was upheld, and entered into a long explanation leading up to the recount of votes in New York City.

During this explanation, Representative Sloan, a Republican from Nebraska, said:

"I am interested in the politics of the village of New York. Tell me. Is Mayor Mitchel a Republican?"

"He is supposed to be an enrolled Democrat," answered Representative Hulbert.

"Does not the gentleman think he is making a mistake to make this speech on the floor of the House?" asked Representative Garrett of Tennessee.

Says Mayor Was Repudiated.

Representative Hulbert answered:

"The charge has been made by the present Mayor of New York City; it has been made by the man whom the gentlemen, and I, and every other loyal Democrat, supported in 1904 for the Presidency, and is being argued by every backer of Mayor Mitchel in this campaign, that any man who votes against Mr. Mitchel in this election is a traitor to his country; and that if the City of New York shall repudiate Mayor Mitchel upon Nov. 6, as the members of the party to whom he appealed for nomination repudiated him upon primary day, that New York will go down in history as a traitor city. I do not propose to let that statement go unchallenged.

"I do not propose to permit those who are associated with Mr. Mitchel, including those who tried to steal the primary, having failed in their endeavor, to wrap him in the protecting folds of the American flag and parade him as the greatest American in New York, and to charge me with being disloyal, if I undertake my right of franchise and cast my vote for the man who I believe will be the best candidate for Mayor, and who is not Mr. Furroy Mitchel."

Continuing, Representative Hulbert said:

"In his campaign for renomination, the Fusionist propagandists selected as their motto, 'The best administration the City of New York ever had.' The result of the primary was a distinct repudiation of that claim, and had the Mayor sought to contest the designation of Judge John F. Hylan in the Democratic primaries, he would have been completely annihilated.

Ridicules City Hall Meeting.

"But exclusive of those who have been humbugged, Mayor Mitchel's partisans of today may be put in two classes—those who are making money out of his personal and official friendship and those who hate to admit that they have been trumpeters for the cleverest hypocrite of modern times. So with that cleverness which has characterized the ingenuity of the Mayor's personal friends throughout his administration, a meeting was arranged for in the City Hall Plaza, where any street faker could attract a crowd of substantial numbers at the lunch hour. With Colonel Roosevelt and former Justice Hughes and brass bands as an added attraction, 10,000 people, we are informed, many without a vote in New York, tendered him the popular nomination upon a platform dedicated to 'a strong and active standing with America and against Germany.'

"Realizing that his repudiation at the primaries would be ratified at the general election upon issues arising out of his administration of the office to which he seeks re-election, he has wrapped about him the protecting folds of the American flag, seeks to force the administration into the uncompromising position that it must accept and indorse his candidacy or stand repudiated in the event of his defeat, and apparently believes he can establish a superior, if not exclusive, claim as a patriot and a martyr to duty and consign every one in disagreement with him into the oblivion of disloyalty.

Fears Socialist Victory.

"If petitions are filed independently placing John Purroy Mitchel in the field after his repudiation in the primary, there will be four major candidates, the fourth one being Morris Hillquit, the Socialist candidate. If Mr. Hillquit should poll 25 per cent. of the total vote cast, he may be elected. Mr. Mitchel's determination to become a candidate will again divide all of the ballots that will be cast against Hillquit, and it seems to me selfishness rather than patriotism which the Mayor typifies by his active participation in this campaign.

"Mayor Mitchel, the would-be beneficiary of a stolen primary election, posing as a patriotic martyr in a last desperate attempt to make political capital for himself, is a spectacle that affronts the intelligence and insults the ideals of every high thinking American citizen."

Mr. Hulbert referred to his service upon the Rivers and Harbors Committee and his work in developing the Port of New York, and said that he never had any assistance from the Mayor in legislation affecting the welfare of the city. He said the Mayor had been trying to accommodate the New York Central Railroad along the Hudson River.

REINSTATES ARMY OFFICER.

President Pardons Lieut. Brigham, Who Posed as a Bachelor.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 3.—President Wilson has remitted the sentence of dismissal from the army imposed on Second Lieutenant Arthur Brigham, Jr., Sixth Field Artillery, by a general court-martial following conviction of having represented himself as a bachelor when he was, in fact, married.

The officer was a corporal in his regiment, and when making application for examination for appointment as a Second Lieutenant was found guilty of having described himself as single on the official forms. No explanation accompanied the President's order remitting sentence.

ITALY HOPES TO SEE PRESIDENT IN ROME

Hope Expressed That Mr. Wilson Will "Consecrate Allies' Victory" at the Capitol.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

ROME, Oct. 2.—"President Wilson's messages represent a new charter of liberty for democracies and a new declaration of independence for humanity," said Premier Boselli in a toast at a banquet given to the Commission of the American Red Cross by the Italo-American Union, which was followed later by a farewell dinner given in their honor by Gorham Stevens, Director of Fine Arts at the American Academy here.

Senator Maggiorino Ferraris, President of the Italo-American Union, said: "I hope that President Wilson will be able to consecrate at the Capitol of Rome the victory of the Allies and the triumph of the society of nations. Italy wishes as soon as possible to admire on the battlefield and in the Mediterranean your gallant army and brave fleet, fighting side by side with our soldiers and sailors for the same aims and same ideals."

Ambassador Page said: "Between America and Italy exist many more ties as unseen as those currents which the genius of an Italian discovered, which though impalpable carry a message from the heart of Italy to the heart of America."

This allusion to Marconi, who was present, caused great enthusiasm.

ITALIANS DESTROY ATTACKING AUSTRIANS

Enemy Onslaughts on Gabriele Die Away in Fire of Defenders' Batteries.

ROME, Oct. 3.—The official report from headquarters today says:

At dawn yesterday the enemy attacked our positions on the western slopes of Monte San Gabriele. The attack failed completely. The assaulting company was destroyed, and a battalion following it was caught in turn under our batteries and dispersed. One officer and seventy-nine men remained in our hands.

On other parts of the Bainsizza Plateau front we captured in successful patrol actions some additional prisoners and three machine guns.

Activity in the air was very lively during the day. One of our squadrons bombarded the railway station of Grahovo. Last night there were two successful raids. Military objectives at Pola were bombarded with four tons of projectiles and badly damaged. Two enemy machines were brought down by our airmen. They fell north of Auzza and near Poldmeletz.

SENATE TO POSTPONE ACTION ON LA FOLLETTE

Committee Decides to Shelve Question of Expelling Him and Others Accused.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 3.—The accusations of disloyalty against Senators La Follette, Stone, and Gronna are to be left over by the Senate Committee on Privileges and Elections until the next session, according to a tentative agreement reached today.

No member of the committee favors making any report to the Senate either urging action against the three Senators or asking for a vote to dispose of the charges. The committee stands solidly against bringing before the Senate the accusations that have poured in during the last week urging the expulsion of the three Senators.

If any move is to be made against the trio it will have to be an individual matter taken up by some Senator. The committee has practically decided not to act. The sentiment of the Senate is strongly against decisive action now.

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., Oct. 3.—Resolutions directed at Senator La Follette, denouncing "all acts and utterances of a disloyal nature," were adopted by the Indiana State Council of Defense at its regular meeting today.

SANTA FE, N. M., Oct. 3.—Charles Springer, Chairman of the Executive Committee of the New Mexico State Council of Defense, today telegraphed Senator A. B. Fall urging him to introduce a resolution to expel Senator La Follette.

WAUSAU, Wis., Oct. 3.—Senator La Follette's expulsion from the Senate for "treasonable and seditious utterances and disloyalty to our Government" was asked in an appeal to the Senate sent in telegrams last night by W. B. Hennemann, Chairman of the Executive Committee of the Republican State Central Committee.

KAISER AND PEOPLE HONOR HINDENBURG

AVIATORS JOIN TRIBUTE

Drop Thousands of Reminders That Contributions to the War Loan Are the Best Gift to the Hero.

AMSTERDAM, Oct. 3.—The celebration of the birthday of Field Marshal von Hindenburg at German Main Headquarters yesterday began with a visit from Emperor William, who presented the Field Marshal with a marble bust of the "All Highest War Lord." The route from Hindenburg's house to Main Headquarters was lined with children, who strewed flowers in his path, while airmen dropped flowers and laurel wreaths.

At headquarters the Field Marshal was received by General von Ludendorff and the other officers of the General Staff. General Ludendorff greeted his chief as "the personification of the glorious development of the Prussian-German Fatherland." Hindenburg later reviewed veteran units and other soldiers in front of the headquarters and, in speaking of them, said:

"It is a special pleasure to me to know myself at one with the German people in their will to victory and their confidence in victory."

The Field Marshal praised the army and those who remained at home. He called for cheers for the Emperor, who invited to dinner all who had called to offer birthday congratulations.

In a speech the Emperor praised the Field Marshal as "the hero of the German people, to whom it is granted to accomplish deeds of world and historical greatness." The Emperor then thanked Field Marshal von Hindenburg in the name of the army and the people, and continued:

"Future centuries will weave legends around the beloved and honored personality of the Field Marshal. May God preserve him for further deeds until the victorious end of the war, out of which a strong, healthy and respected Germany will arise."

BERLIN, Tuesday, Oct. 2, (via London.)—Berlin dedicated today to the celebration of the seventieth birthday of Field Marshal von Hindenburg. Perhaps none of the previous war holidays has seen such a display of flags and bunting. Over the throngs in the streets flew a score of Albatross airplanes, whose aerial performances included the throwing down of thousands of printed reminders that cash contributions to the nation's war chest would be the best birthday gift to von Hindenburg.

The Berlin press dilates at length on von Hindenburg's influence on the conduct of the war, from the time he issued forth from oblivion to repulse the Russian invasion of East Prussia, until he was appointed chief of the German forces. His subsequent achievements also are described at length.

Up to last night the Field Marshal had been elected honorary citizen of thirty-six cities.

At Great Headquarters the day was marked by simple ceremonies, which did not halt the stern routine of war. The Field Marshal's wife and daughter went to headquarters from Hanover. Chancellor Michaelis also was a visitor.

The Bishop of Treves conducted special field services. Probably the most conspicuous part of the improvised shrine was the red silken altar cloth, one of many gifts to von Hindenburg. It is ornamented with an Iron Cross, from which myriads of rays radiate. Beneath the cross are embroidered these words of the prophet Isaiah:

"They that wait upon the Lord shall renew their strength; they shall mount up with wings as eagles; they shall run, and not be weary; and they shall walk, and not faint."

GERMANS SEEK RELIEF IN STRIFE OVER PEACE

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, Monday, Oct. 1, (via London, Oct. 3.)—In admiration of Field Marshal von Hindenburg, whose seventieth birthday is made the occasion of a grand national rally this week, all Germans from the feudal Junkers down to the proletarians meet on common ground. For a few days, therefore, it is hoped that the feud carried on by the Pan Germans against the Peace Germans may subside to normal conditions.

The whole German people are divided today, the Pan Germans demanding a continuation of the war until the enemy is compelled to accept what is called a "German peace," meaning the annexation of occupied territory and compensation for war expenses. The peace Germans are willing to continue the war only until the enemy is ready to come to terms on the basis of the Reichstag peace resolutions, which, they say, is not far from that of the Pope's message. Thus, though the Pan Germans and Peace Germans are determined to fight to the bitter end, they cannot possibly agree on what the end shall be, and consequently they cannot be satisfied with any peace note by the Chancellor.

With great relief all the Berlin papers which still place patriotism above party interests hail Hindenburg's birthday, hoping that it will help to unite Germans in a determination to follow the Field Marshal to the end of the war and to dismiss all strife as to how that end shall be exploited until it is victoriously achieved. Any competent observer cannot help realizing that neither the Entente's verbal artillery nor its terrific military attacks have convinced the Germans that they can be beaten, nor does it seem probable that they will be starved into submission, if for no other reason, because they have become used to privations of all kinds in these long years of war and will certainly hold out as long as Hindenburg leads the German armies successfully.

The rejection by the Entente of the Reichstag peace resolution had aroused some of the most peacefully inclined Germans to bitter resentment but, it happens, the Pan German organs and parties immediately turned the movement into a campaign against the parliamentarization of the German Government and the large democratic movement among the people. "Parliamentarization is nothing but the appeal by the enemy to the Socialist and democratic German elements, and an attempt to undermine our strength and thus defeat Germany by Germans," was the cry of the Pan Germans. This spirit soon seemed to pervade the ranks of the newly founded Fatherland Party to such an extent that both Pan Germans and Peace Germans and their organs, in the excitement over the bitter contest for and against democratisation have overlooked almost entirely the purpose for which the party had been nominally formed.

Recently the German Government's answer to the Pope's note somewhat assuaged the antagonism between the Pan Germans and the Peace Germans, both parties claiming to be satisfied. This attitude on the part of the Pan Germans seems to have been assumed only to permit a pause for gathering strength.

Thus, when all Germany seemed again caught by the spirit of August, 1914, junkerdom, with its characteristic tactlessness, began its agitation against all German elements that did not share its own view of world affairs in general and Germany's affairs in particular. The foundation of the Fatherland Party has had the effect of increasing the antagonism between junkerism and socialism.

SWEDISH KING CALLS LEADERS OF PARTIES

SOCIALISTS DISSATISFIED

Branting Unwilling to Compromise —Liberal Ministry Predicted If Attempt Fails.

STOCKHOLM, Oct. 3.—After the resignation of the Cabinet yesterday King Gustave summoned the leaders of the chief parties in the Riksdag, to urge them to use their best efforts to form a coalition Cabinet. Those summoned by the King were Admiral Lindman and M. Trygger, of the Right; M. Eden and M. Kvarnzelius, of the Liberals, and Hjalmar Branting and M. Thereon, of the Socialists.

The King told the leaders that in his opinion it would be most expedient to form a Cabinet representing the various parties, which would maintain the neutral policy of the country since the beginning of the war, safeguard the interests of the nation, and exercise a calming influence on the people during the present crisis. Saying that Sweden's difficulties were increasing daily, the King asserted that the greatest prudence would be necessary to maintain the position adopted. He appealed to the patriotism of the leaders, asking them not to let personal opinions and party platforms stand in the way of a successful solution of the question, but rather to have in view solely the welfare of the country.

The formation of a coalition Government is supported strongly by Conservatives. Many Liberals are not averse to this solution, but the Socialists generally are less disposed to co-operate with the Conservatives. They oppose the idea of compromise on various issues, such as woman suffrage and plural voting in municipalities, and are inclined to insist on summary acceptance and disposal of these questions along the lines indicated by the voters at the general election.

In the event that the formation of a three-party coalition is impossible, the construction of a cabinet doubtless will be intrusted to Professor Nils Eden, the Liberal leader.

Those under discussion for the foreign portfolio include Count Abrensvard, who was Foreign Minister in the cabinet of Premier Staff, was at one time at Washington and three years at Berne, and D. K. Bergstroem, Consul General at Montreal. Branting, the Socialist leader, probably will have the finance or interior portfolio.

GERMAN ASSAULTS VAIN ON WEST FRONT

FEW PASS THE BARRAGE

Both Sides Are Engaged in Heavy Gunfire Northeast of Verdun.

LONDON, Oct. 3.—Continued repulse of German attacks along the west front are chronicled in today's official bulletins of the British and French War Offices.

East of Ypres the German activity was especially violent. Following heavy gunfire, the foe advanced on the British lines, but British fire halted them, except north of the Menin road, where a few Germans passed the barrage. These were beaten back by the British infantry.

The night report of the British War Office says:

Shortly before dawn the enemy heavily bombarded our positions between Tower Hamlets and Polygon Wood. Afterward his infantry attempted to advance. Our artillery opened vigorously, and on the greater part of the front the assault broke down before reaching our lines.

In the area immediately north of the Menin road, where a few of the enemy succeeded in passing through the barrage, they were completely repulsed by our infantry. Our positions are intact.

There has been great artillery activity on both sides during the day east of Ypres.

Yesterday the weather was again misty, despite which much successful observation work was done and many photographs were taken, some showing damage by our bomb raids. Eight tons of bombs were dropped on various targets, and hits were observed on three airdromes in the Courtral area, near Cambrai. Huts and dumps near Douai and siddings at Roulers were also successfully attacked.

The enemy generally avoided our fighting airplanes, but attacked at long distance the bombing machines vigorously when far east of the line. Six German machines were brought down in the air fighting, and four others were driven down out of control. Six of our machines are missing.

The official communication issued by the French War Office tonight reads:

The day was relatively calm. It was marked only by artillery actions north of the Aisne and on both banks of the Meuse.

The day report from Paris says:

East of Rheims our artillery effectively shelled the German batteries and broke up preparations in the enemy trenches for an attack. West of Navarin French detachments penetrated the enemy lines and blew up several shelters, bringing back prisoners.

On the Verdun front the night was marked by violent artillery fighting on both banks of the Meuse, particularly in the region north of Hill 344, where spirited patrol engagements also occurred.

An incursion into the enemy lines in the region of the Casque gave us good results.

Everywhere else the night was quiet.

BERLIN, Oct. 3, (via London.)—German troops yesterday captured a section of French trenches 1,200 yards wide on the northern slope of Hill 344 to the east of the River Meuse, in the Verdun region, according to the General Staff. The official report says:

Army of Crown Prince Rupprecht—On the coast (Belgian) and between Langemarck and Zandvoorde yesterday the artillery duel again increased to great intensity. On the central sectors of the battlefront there occurred most intense outbursts of firing. In the morning the enemy again vainly made strenuous efforts to recapture the ground conquered by us the previous day north of the Menin-Ypres road. All the attacks were sanguinarily repulsed.

Army of the German Crown Prince—On both sides of the Laon-Soissons road the artilleries again have developed lively activity. On the Aisne, near Rheims, and in Champagne reconnoitring thrusts resulted in some prisoners and booty being brought in.

On the eastern bank of the Meuse early yesterday morning our Wurttemberg troops succeeded in taking by storm French trenches over a width of 1,200 meters on the northern slope of Hill 344, east of Samogneux. Throughout the day the French made eight counterattacks, with the object of forcing us to leave the conquered territory. At night also a stubborn enemy attack was launched.

During the bitter fighting the French on each occasion were driven back. More than 150 prisoners from two French divisions remained in our hands, while the sanguinary losses of the enemy increased with every vain storming attack. The artillery engagement spread from the fighting area to adjacent portions of the front and continued intense throughout the whole day and night.

Germans Drop Shells Far Behind British Lines Before Ypres.

BY PHILIP GIBBS.

Copyright, 1917, by The New York Times Company.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

WAR CORRESPONDENT HEADQUARTRS IN BELGIUM, Oct. 3.—The artillery battle goes on across the country around Ypres. It is fierce and far-flung on both sides, and the Germans are trying to make things as bad as possible in our back areas.

The "high velocities" which come whanging into places twelve miles or more back from our line, made any walk to the battlefields unpleasant and perilous. Apprehension, which is the start of fear, begins to creep beneath one's skin if one happens to have been born with nerves.

One sees, and it is always astounding to see, how little difference this hostile shelling makes in the way in which our men carry on the war. This morning, for instance, it was pretty hot in the way of shellfire and the enemy was scattering his beastliness about the fields, but it made no difference at all in the general demeanor of our swarming soldiers—ants, though there was all the difference in life to the individual whose luck happened to be out. Our men went on with their jobs as they always go on with them unless they are stopped for a few moments by a nasty mess in their way which has to be cleared up before they can pass.

As for the weather, it is very uncertain. Last night rain fell and the ground in Craterland is again filled with many pools and ponds. Weather makes all the difference in the world to the work of the soldier-ants on that great muck heap, the battlefield.

NEW AIR RAID ON ZEEBRUGGE.

LONDON, Oct. 3.—Continuation of the bombing operations by British naval airplanes over German-held territory is reported in an official statement issued today by the Admiralty. It reads:

"On Monday night naval aircraft dropped many bombs on the lock gates at Zeebrugge. On Tuesday a quantity of explosives was dropped on sheds and machines at the St. Denis-Westrem Airdrome.

"During the usual patrols two enemy aircraft were shot down, out of control. All of our machines returned safely.

Air Raids in Baltic.

PETROGRAD, Oct. 3.—German air attacks on Russian Baltic Sea bases and attacks in reprisal by Russian aircraft on enemy camps in Courland are reported in today's official statement from the War Office. No important land operations have occurred.

RUSSIAN CONGRESS REJECTS COALITION

Vote Against Kerensky's Plan 813 to 180—Railroad Strike Called for Today.

PETROGRAD, Oct. 3. — The Democratic Congress, by a vote of 766 against 688 today declared in favor of a coalition Government. It then voted that the following amendment be made to the resolution:

First—Against inclusion in the coalition of the bourgeois element, particularly of persons concerned in the General Korniloff revolutionary movement.

Second—Against coalition with the entire Constitutional Democratic Party.

The situation created by the contradictory movements led to a lively discussion, and eventually, by a vote of 813 to 180, the conference announced itself opposed even to the idea of coalition.

The demand for improved economic conditions recently made by the employes of the principal Russian railways not having been satisfied, the men today announced their intention of stopping work tomorrow.

It was officially announced today by the Provisional Government that the revolt which broke out on Saturday at Tambov, 300 miles southeast of Moscow, had been suppressed.

not be countenanced. It was determined that it was far better for Great Britain and the other allies such as France and Italy to break trade agreements and suffer the consequences of interrupted trade with the neutral nations than for these agreements to continue on the present basis.

Wilson Position Firmly Upheld.

These problems have been the subject of international parley based on the refusal of the United States to permit any of its fodder, foods, and other materials to reach the northern neutrals either directly or as a result of trade agreements made by Great Britain or any of the other allied nations. The officials in charge of the embargo situation here were firm in the position that President Wilson's statement, made when he issuec the first embargo proclamation that more of America's products should contribute either directly or indirectly to the cause of Germany should be carried out in fact as well as in theory.

Conditions in Sweden and Holland have been the subject of the closest investigation. Reports obtained, it is said, have shown that these countries, partly in order to meet the demands of Germany, which had coal and other materials they needed, and partly to enrich certain interests by reason of the high prices obtained, had drained their own resources to a dangerous extent. Where some of the northern neutrals might have hoarded up much needed fats, food, and fodder, they have given them to Germany, it is reported, in huge shipments. It has also been said that coal shipments to Sweden and Holland in many instances have been permitted by Germany only on the agreement that these shipments should be used in the operation of mines and manufactories, the output of which Germany should obtain. Germany, it is said, proved a stern master in carrying on such negotiations.

While such conditions existed the United States, it is understood, would not consent to a single shipment leaving American ports which might contribute to German welfare. Referring to the position which has been taken in regard to the embargo measures, a high official is quoted as saying:

"The United States is going as far as it can to prevent any supplies purchased in America from reaching this country's enemy. It would be absurd for the United States to expend billions of dollars and thousands of lives and then to permit our commodities to be used by the people who are doing the killing."

Swedish Aid to Germany.

As a result of the investigations made, it is understood, large interests in Sweden, and many of those in positions of the greatest influence, are frankly card indexed as pro-German, willing to make heavy shipments of engines, ammunition, ores, foods, and other vital commodities to Germany and receiving in return huge profits. Such a course has left large numbers of the population facing a critical situation concerning the food supply, while certain classes were getting rich on the trade.

At least one official who has watched this traffic going on, not without emotion, has held to the position that the United States should, if a rationing system were finally adopted to aid those actually suffering for want of food, refuse at the same time to supply this scanty ration to feed men operating mines and manufactories which supplied Germany with ores, explosives, and ammunition. These miners and factory workers, in order to keep the industries going under a full head of steam, need food supplies in greater quantity than the other portion of the population. It is extremely doubtful that the United States will listen to a future policy that will in any way contribute to their upkeep.

It is pretty generally admitted that these countries cannot continue the traffic with Germany on the present scale if the United States, Great Britain and the other allies enforce rigid embargo policies, and it is now reasonably definite that such a course will be followed. Interesting information in this connection came into the hands of officials today showing that Holland would be unable to keep the pace out of her own crops. A cablegram from the American Legation at The Hague read: "Taking figure 100 as excellent, and 67 as average crop, Minister of Agriculture on September 15 rates this year's wheat harvest 57; rye, 65; barley, 65; oats, 56; meadow grass, 70."

Holland, it was said, would be obliged to consume practically all of these harvests for the upkeep of her own population.

Britain Clears the Way.

The action of Great Britain has made possible a concerted drive to starve Germany, which obviously could not be arranged on a satisfactory basis while Britain recognized trade compacts with northern neutrals of Europe which this country refused to accept as equitable.

British diplomats here were reticent about discussing the embargo, but it was intimated that the move was simply putting into effect in Great Britain the policy which has already been adopted in the United States. Great Britain will continue to use the licensing system for exports in certain directions, as it is employed here, but it is understood that the British policy will be practically the same as that adopted by the United States where neutral countries contiguous to Germany are concerned.

By The Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 3.—The view is taken here that the neutrals cannot exist without British and American supplies. Within the next two or three months all of them are expected to declare flat embargoes in the export of their commodities to all countries. This will hit England as well as Germany, but the British, who can draw on the United States, are in a position to do without neutral goods, while Germany, cut off from the rest of the world, cannot exist, officials here say, if neutral shipments cease.

EXCHANGE RATES SOAR.

Scandinavian and Dutch Quotations Stiffened by Embargo.

The absolute embargo put into effect by Great Britain against the neutral countries adjacent to Germany yesterday brought about a stiffening in Scandinavian and Dutch exchange rates in the local market. Brokers reported that exchange on Stockholm was reduced to a minimum, and that many merchants who put in bids for remittances could get only a part of their orders filled, and this, too, at a stiff price. The Stockholm quotation was as high as 37 at one time in the early afternoon, which meant that the kroner, whose normal value in this market is 26.70 cents, was worth 37 cents. At this level Stockholm exchange displayed a premium of more than 42 per cent. above the normal level.

Copenhagen rates ranged from 31 to 31.50, showing a premium at the top of nearly 18 per cent. The quotation on Amsterdam was firm, at 42.12½ for check transfers, showing a premium of about 5 per cent.

The apparent reason why Scandinavian rates rose sharply was that importers, believing that exports from England and the United States would be firmly withheld from the neutrals of Northern Europe, hurried to secure exchange before it became too scarce. If purchases of goods are denied here for Norway, Sweden, and Denmark, exchange will not be created, and American merchants with bills to meet in those countries will have to find another medium for settling them. As gold cannot be sent in payment for imports, the merchant here faces the possible necessity of buying Scandinavian exchange in London, a procedure which would entail considerable more expense than if it were secured here.

Bankers handling Scandinavian exchange received many telephone inquiries from local importers for quotations and opinions as to the future of the market. The general reply was that exchange was in limited supply, and the promise held forth by embargo plans was that the scarcity appeared likely to continue.

BRITISH ORDER EXPLAINED.

Exports to Northern Neutrals Put Under Control by Licenses.

LONDON, Oct. 3. — The Associated Press learns that the proclamation prohibiting exports to Sweden, Norway, Denmark, and Holland involves no new policy, but is only an extension of the principle heretofore followed by the Allies. Its object is, briefly, to require licenses for the exportation of goods of all kinds, with the two exceptions mentioned, (printed matter and personal effects.)

Up to the present time certain classes of unimportant commodities have been exempt as regards licenses, but the new order will enable the authorities to control the whole export trade and direct its flow. In order to secure uniformity of practice it has been decided to treat all goods alike.

DUTCH PREPARE TO PROTEST.

Resent Suggestion That Holland Is a Dump for Contraband.

THE HAGUE, Oct. 3.—Reported statements by members of the American Cabinet that they had come to the conclusion that Holland was the dumping ground for contraband bound for Germany were made the subject of a question in the Second Chamber yesterday by Deputy van Leeuwen.

Dr. John Loudon, the Foreign Minister, replied that instructions had been sent to Minister van Rappard at Washington to make a protest against such unfounded conclusions of the American officials if they were reported correctly.

WARNS CANADIAN EXPORTERS.

Belgian Consul Says Rubber Is Sent to Germany Via Holland.

MONTREAL, Oct. 3. — Operation in Canada of German commercial agents who are sending rubber to Germany by way of Holland was referred to today by Clarence I. de Sola, Belgian Consul, in a warning he issued through the local press to Canadian shippers.

Mr. de Sola said that German agents had been playing a clever game, misleading Canadian exporters, especially exporters of rubber. The plot had been unearthed, he said.

Mr. de Sola declined to be more specific in his statements, but reminded shippers that they were laying themselves open to heavy penalties, even though they were innocent, as being party to a scheme to send war material to the enemy.

GERMAN SCARCITY WORSE.

CANADIAN HEADQUARTERS IN FRANCE, Tuesday, Oct. 2, (via London, Oct. 3.)—All the prisoners of good education now speak of the growing scarcity of war materials, particularly of articles such as rubber, cotton, and copper, which can neither be produced at home nor obtained from Germany's European neighbors.

One of the prisoners taken in yesterday's outpost affair said that while Germany could not be conquered in the field, she would be forced to make peace because of her failure to obtain supplies.

GERMANS OMIT TABLE LINEN.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, Tuesday, Oct. 2, (via London, Oct. 3.)—Table linen disappeared from nearly all restaurants in Germany today in accordance with an order issued some time ago. Excepted from this rule are only a few first-class hotels, which in their dining rooms have tables that would have to be replaced by new ones to comply with the rule, which would mean a comparatively large expenditure of labor needed elsewhere for the production of war material and the necessities of life.

The proprietors of the largest Berlin eating houses say that food can be served without tablecloths as cleanly as with them, and that the people will soon get used to the innovation.

Kempinski, on Leipzigerstrasse, has covered his thousand or more tables with oilcloth. One restaurant in Unter den Linden has pasted frieze over the tableboards, while the largest eating house in Germany, the Rheingold, has covered its tables with colored paper cloth.

EXPECTS EXPORT LICENSES.

Danish Consul Says Ban Will Not Stop All Trade to Neutrals.

The absolute embargo placed by Great Britain on the exportation of products to Sweden, Norway, Denmark, and the Netherlands was not received with any great degree of surprise yesterday by consular officials of the countries affected who are stationed in this city. The views of these officials may be summed up in the words of George Bech, Consul General from Denmark, who said that an embargo on virtually 90 per cent. of British products existed prior to the promulgation of the new order.

"The order merely extends the embargo to include the remaining 10 per cent. of goods," he said. "Hitherto, a merchant in Great Britain who wished to ship goods to the Scandinavian countries or to Holland had to examine a long list giving the description of all the articles banned. It took some time to find whether his goods were on the banned list.

"The merchants now know that all goods are embargoed, but that does not mean that no goods are being sent to the northern European neutrals. The goods are shipped, of course, only after the usual license is issued by the British Government.

"The effect of the complete embargo is to save the British officials and the merchants a great deal of clerical work which was necessary under the previous partial embargo."

At the British Consulate it was said that the complete embargo would have no effect locally. It was characterized by an official as "another hint" to the northern neutrals as to trading with Germany in goods which they may be allowed to receive under license from Great Britain.

POLICEMEN ACCUSE PHILADELPHIA HEAD

TOLD TO BRING IN CAREY MEN

Falconi, Brunnelli, Dennehy, and Burkhardt Taken from New York on Extradition Papers.

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 3.—The alleged activity of the police, backed by Mayor Thomas B. Smith, in helping Isaac Deutsch to win the Councilmanic nomination in the Fifth Ward, which resulted in the killing of a policeman, was described in the Municipal Court at the second day's hearing of the Mayor and eight other defendants charged with conspiracy to murder, aggravated assault, and battery, and violations of election laws.

The interest aroused by yesterday's testimony connecting the Vare brothers with the Election Day happenings continued in the case today as witness after witness testified that the police "went the limit" to defeat James A. Carey, the leader of the ward.

"Club heads" was the order received from Police Lieut. David Bennett, one officer testified. "Bring them in, and if they are Deutsch's men I will excuse them. The Carey men I'll send down," was the further order given by Bennett, the policeman said. The penalty for failure to "turn in" for Deutsch was transfer to another police district or resign, eight policemen told the court. One of the policemen refused to be transferred, quit, and stayed in the ward to help Carey.

One transferred man said Bennett told him that "clubs would be trumps" in the Fifth Ward on Election Day. Bennett informed the policemen that he had the backing of the Mayor, and that whatever he or Deutsch told the police to do they must do. Witnesses also testified that the Mayor made a speech to a delegation of Deutsch men, in which he said that he wanted order preserved in the ward, and that if heads must be clubbed to maintain order the police must club them.

James I. Clark, an employe of the O'Farrell Detective Agency, who admits he steered the New York gangmen about the ward on primary day, testified that he protested to Deutsch against the use of blackjacks, and that Deutsch replied the New York men could not fight the pick-axe men from the Tenth Ward with their mouths.

Extradition papers were served on Sheriff O'Brien of Bronx County yesterday for the four alleged gunmen who were arrested here after the shooting of a policeman in the political feud in Philadelphia on primary day.

The men are Ruggiero Falconi, Louis Brunnelli, Michael Dennehey, and William Burkhardt. They were taken to Philadelphia last night.

GUILTY OF DRAFT BRIBERY.

Dr. Henry Seligman and Two Board Workers Convicted.

Dr. Henry Seligman, an examining physician for Local Draft Board 52 in Brooklyn, and two other workers of the board, were found guilty of "conspiring to defeat the provisions of the selective draft law by accepting a bribe" by a jury in the United States District Court in Brooklyn yesterday, and Judge Veeder remanded them to the Raymond Street Jail to await sentence. It was proved that Dr. Seligman sought to reject a man because money had been offered for exemption, and that Lazarus Jacobson and Nathan Erlich had acted as agents to make offers to men who wished to be rejected and to receive money from men called for physical examination.

Dr. Seligman was arrested on Aug. 21, after Joseph Levy of 185 South Second Street, Brooklyn, had reported to United States Marshal Power that Jacobson had offered to have him declared unfit for military service upon payment of $200. Levy paid $75 in marked bills to Jacobson, and the arrests were made immediately. Upon previous examinations by other physicians of the board Levy had been rejected because of a physical defect, and Dr. Seligman, not knowing that an examination had been made, told Levy that he would be rejected because he had flat feet. Then Jacobson told Levy he would be called for service unless he paid $200.

DRAFTED MEN WARNED.

Those Who Fail to Report Will Be Punished, Though Not with Death.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 3.—Draft army men who fail to report for duty will not be shot as deserters, though they are technically deserters in time of war, and will be punished by imprisonment and forced to serve their time in the national army. Announcement was made by the War Department today that the department appreciated that many of these men did not fully realize the gravity of their offense and that for this reason the department would be as "lenient as the interests of the Government will permit."

A most vigorous effort will be made to catch every deserter, and, with that object in view, a reward of $50 is being paid for "apprehension and delivery" of each drafted man who fails to report.

DUNN MUST SERVE TERM.

Judge McIntyre Upholds Workhouse Sentence for Attack on Jews.

Denying the appeal of Russell Dunn, a soap-box orator, who was sentenced on Aug. 25 to serve thirty days in the workhouse for disorderly conduct arising out of certain anti-Semitic remarks at an outdoor meeting, Judge McIntyre in General Sessions took occasion yesterday to praise the patriotism of the Jews, whose loyalty, he declared, was of the highest type.

"Thousands of Jews have enlisted all over the country," he said, "and the remarks Dunn is alleged to have made are to my mind highly offensive. The peace of the city may be disturbed by applying that language to a race or creed. To call a man 'a dirty Jew' in the presence of others might well lead to a breach of the peace."

Judge McIntyre ordered the re-arrest of Dunn, who has been out on bail.

AUDIENCE DECRIES SEDITION

Moffet's Attack on Disloyal Press Stirs Hippodrome Throng.

A crowd which filled the Hippodrome last night applauded vigorously a denunciation of seditious newspapers by Cleveland Moffett, head of the Vigilantes of the American Defense Society. It was Hippodrome night of the "Gala Week" of theatrical benefits for the American Defense Society.

"We believe," Mr. Moffett said, "that treasonable utterances, spoken or written, are as dangerous to this Republic as armed attack, and must be punished by law and by force of outraged public opinion.

"With the help of public opinion we have stamped out the treasonable campaign of the pro-German soap-box orators, but there are other traitors and seditionists in New York City that must be dealt with by patriotic citizens.

"There is one disloyal American newspaper here, printed in English. It has an enormous circulation, it has great power, it is carrying on a thinly disguised German propaganda, it does more harm in this community than a thousand soap-box orators. That disloyal American newspaper must be put out of business. It is intolerable that the loyalty of the American people to our national military policy and to the President of the United States should be questioned by an American newspaper owner. It is intolerable that the loyalty of the American people to our ally, Great Britain, shall be deliberately misrepresented by an American newspaper owner who finds advantage in these misrepresentations. That newspaper owner must be dealt with by outraged public opinion as the soap-box traitors were dealt with."

BAN ON BERGER'S PAPER.

Mailing Privilege Refused to Milwaukee Leader, Socialist Organ.

MILWAUKEE, Wis., Oct. 3.—The mailing privilege has been refused to The Milwaukee Leader, organ of the Socialist Party in this city, following a hearing in Washington on Sept. 22. The order was issued under provisions of the Espionage act.

Victor L. Berger, editor of the paper, said he had appealed to the Postmaster General to lift the ban. He said he understood the chief complaint against The Leader was its general tendency, but that no specific violation had been pointed out.

Recently the attention of the Department of Justice was called to large billboard signs bearing the following text: "War is hell—caused by capitalism. Socialists want peace. The Milwaukee Leader, Victor L. Berger, editor. Read the people's side."

Thierichens Acquitted.

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 3.—Captain Max V. Thierichens, ex-commander of the seized German commerce raider Prinz Eitel Friedrich, was today acquitted of smuggling ashore nineteen dutiable ship chronometers from the raider while interned at the Philadelphia Navy Yard.

NEW OFFICER CAMPS FOR ENLISTED MEN

COURSE WILL OPEN JAN. 5

Character and Military Aptitude to Govern Selection of Candidates from Army.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 3.—Plans for the third series of army officers' training camps were announced today by Brig. Gen. Henry P. McCain, Adjutant General. These camps will start on Jan. 5, 1918, and will continue for three months. They will be opened to enlisted men of the regular army, National Guard, and national army, and to graduates and undergraduates of certain selected colleges, universities, and military schools.

The third series of camps therefore will differ from the first and second by restricting the candidates to enlisted men and collegians. The number of college men admitted will be limited to 2,400. The plan is in accordance with the War Department policy of encouraging the promotion of enlisted men to officers. Men trained in these new camps will be appointed to the line instead of to staff places. Officers for the staff will be trained in separate schools.

"With the object of training enlisted men of the regular army, National Guard, and national army for appointment as officers to fill vacancies that may occur in those forces, a third series of training camps will be organized. The graduates of these training camps, who may be so raised, will be listed as eligible for commissions as Second Lieutenants and will be commissioned as vacancies occur. To these camps, which are primarily for enlisted men, it has been decided to admit a certain number of graduates and undergraduates of universities, colleges, and schools which have earned recognition by having had military training under army officers during the past ten years. The entire number of graduates and undergraduates to be admitted is 2,400."

The statement names universities, colleges, and military schools whose students are eligible. The list includes Yale University, Wesleyan University, Bowdoin College, Harvard University, Williams College, Princeton University, Pennsylvania College, Norwich University, Connecticut Agricultural College, University of Maine, Massachusetts Agricultural College, New Hampshire College of Agricultural and Mechanical Arts, Rutgers College, Cornell University, Rhode Island State College, University of Vermont, Pennsylvania State College, Massachusetts Institute of Technology, and Pennsylvania Military College.

Location of the Camps.

"(A) One in each regular army, National Guard and national army division.

"(B) One each in the Philippines, Panama and Hawaii.

"(C) One each at Fort Bliss, Texas; Fort Sam Houston, Texas, and Chickamauga, Ga."

The quota of candidates, in addition to those from the educational institutions is to comprise: "From the regular army, national army, National Guard: One and seven-tenths per cent. of the enlisted strength of the organization. (Regiment or other smaller separate unit.)"

Graduates and undergraduates of the institutions listed must be between 21 and 31 years old on Jan. 5, 1918. Other qualifications are:

"Applicants may be married or unmarried, but, other things being equal, exchange officers will give preference to unmarried men.

"Graduates and undergraduates of these institutions who did not take the course of military training offered by the institution are not eligible for admission.

"Graduates and undergraduates who are eligible and who desire to be admitted to the camps," the announcement states, "must apply on the blanks provided for the purpose and forward the completed application to 'the Instructor in Military Tactics' of the institution from which the applicant graduated. Instructions on the application should be followed carefully. Letters of recommendation are not wanted, but only the names of three responsible citizens who know the applicant best. Each applicant must be examined physically at his own expense by a reputable physician, who will fill out the physical report forming part of the official application blank. Applications will be received between Oct. 15 and Dec. 1. No application received after Dec. 1 will be considered, but will be promptly returned to the applicant. Examining officers will be instructed to designate the full quota of principals and the same number of alternates, provided the number of qualified applicants admits of this."

"The Commanding General of each regular army, National Guard, and national army division will at once inform the enlisted men of his command of the fact that the school is to be held and that if they so desire they are authorized to apply to attend and that their application must be submitted to their immediate commanding officer before Dec. 1. From these applications the company or other unit commander will carefully select those of the most deserving men, not to exceed in number 10 per cent. of the enlisted strength of the organization, the age limits to be 21 to 40 years. These applications will be forwarded through the usual channels to the division commander, who will call in two of three regular army or National Guard officers to consider all applications and select and designate the men to attend. Should the application of any man be disapproved by any intermediate authority before reaching the division commander, it will not be considered by the board.

Selection of Army Men.

"In selecting men to attend the board will be guided by the following considerations: (a) Character of the applicant as regards conduct, leadership, ability to learn quickly, ability to instruct others.

"(b) General suitability; i. e., military appearance, &c.

"For enlisted men of troops which are not organized into divisions the following provision is made:

"Department commanders will at once inform the commanding officers of such troops in their departments of the scheme of training schools authorized and direct them to submit the names of enlisted men between the ages of 21 and 40 recommended for attendance, the number they recommend not to exceed 1.7 per cent of the enlisted strength of the organization; any fraction to be regarded as one. Recruiting officers will send to the department commander the names of members of their recruiting parties who are recommended by them to attend, and the department commander will select not to exceed 1.7 per cent. of the total number of men on recruiting duty in the department from those recommended."

CAMP UPTON RECRUITS GOING SOON TO FRANCE

Many Found to be Fitted by Civil Occupations for Immediate Service—Men Buy Bonds.

Special to The New York Times.

CAMP UPTON, YAPHANK, L. I., Oct. 3.—Active war service within a few weeks will be the fortune of some specially selected men from this cantonment. Although only 45 per cent. of the personnel of the Seventy-seventh Division has been sent to Camp Upton by local draft boards, it will not be necessary for the division to be at full strength or for a definite schedule of training to be effected before particularly qualified men can be sent to units already abroad or on the point of departure.

Because the possible military efficiency of every recruit reporting here has been recorded, the military authorities are now prepared to send men qualified by previous occupation to recently organized sections of the army now needed in France. According to a War Department announcement a few weeks ago, new units consisting of searchlight companies, gas and flame experts, and road builders have been assigned to the engineer corps. For many of these organizations men from New York City are especially fitted, while other regions will supply needed lumbermen and miners. A large number of New York recruits who have been engaged in subway and construction work are needed and will be assigned upon orders from the War Department.

A call was issued afew days ago from Washington for men qualified for camouflage work. In anticipation of this call Captain Francis W. Perry, the mustering officer, made a record of artists and painters among the recruits mustered into the Seventy-seventh Division who might be trained for this work. Articles are brought in.

While no definite figures have been reported yet, Camp Upton will subscribe at least its share to the second Liberty Loan. In company G of the 307th Infantry, the subscriptions have reached an average of one bond per man. Two recruits made application for $1,000 bonds. The field officers of the division subscribed $48,000 in a few minutes at a meeting yesterday.

LIEUT. G. P. HOWE KILLED.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 3.—Lieutenant G. P. Howe of the Boston Medical Officers' Reserve Corps was killed in action Sept. 28, while on duty with British forces in France, the Adjutant General today announced.

His next of kin is Marion E. Howe of 154 Beacon Street, Boston.

BOSTON, Oct. 3.—Lieutenant George P. Howe, a native of Lawrence, whose death at the front in France was announced today, had distinguished himself in the medical profession since his graduation from Harvard University in 1900, and Harvard Medical four years later. For two years he was house surgeon at the Boston City Hospital, and subsequently instructor in anthropology at Harvard.

Lieutenant Howe volunteered here for service in the Medical Officers' Reserve Corps last Spring and was sent abroad unattached. He was later attached as medical officer to a British infantry battalion.

WOLF PUSHES RIFLE WORK.

Plattsburg Commander to Keep Students at Targets Two Weeks.

Special to The New York Times.

PLATTSBURG, Oct. 3.—A change in the camp program has postponed the starting of the trench warfare a week and gives the students two weeks on the rifle range instead of one week. Colonel Wolf, camp commander, spends much of his time on the range with the students and watches the rifle practice most carefully. The more important things now for the students to learn, the commander believes, are rifle practice and trench work.

On Oct. 13 there is to be a military tournament, with the usual field events, and, in addition, there will be driving competition, packing drills, equipment races, and a horse show.

Robert B. Peters of Brooklyn, a member of the Sixth Training Battery, asked for and received his discharge today.

Batteries A and B and the Headquarters company of the Sixteenth Field Artillery are on their way here, and upon their arrival it is believed that the First Regiment, Field Artillery, will go to Spartanburg.

ANOTHER RAINBOW REVIEW.

All Units at Camp Mills to be in Parade on Sunday.

Special to The New York Times.

CAMP MILLS, Hempstead, L. I., Oct. 3.—Arrangements for another parade and review of all the units at Camp Mills on Sunday afternoon were completed today by the commander of the Rainbow Division, Major Gen. W. A. Mann, and his staff. There are now more than 25,000 men and officers at the camp, from twenty-six States, several units of which have arrived since the review recently in honor of Secretary of War Baker.

Picked baseball teams from the 165th Regiment (Sixty-ninth of New York) and the 166th Ohio Infantry will play at the Polo Grounds on Saturday afternoon. The proceeds are to go to the athletic funds of the two commands. Captain James A. McKenna of Company L, a former backstop at Harvard University, will be the catcher for the Irish boys. Hank Gowdy, formerly of the Boston National League club, is to be the boxman for Ohio.

PREPARE FOR TRENCH WORK

Each Regiment at Spartanburg Will in Turn "Go Over the Top."

Special to The New York Times.

CAMP WADSWORTH, SPARTANBURG, S. C., Oct. 3.—The thoroughness that is to characterize the training of the Twenty-seventh Division was demonstrated today when a full battalion of the 102d United States Engineers, under Major F. Humphries and Captain D. H. Johnson, began the construction of a duplication of a French sector. The plot devoted to this mimic front embraces an area 600 yards by 900, and will be complete to the last detail, even including dugouts.

When the sector is ready, probably early next week, each regiment will take turns in going up to the "front." The program provides that each regiment shall spend twenty-four hours in the dugouts. On a night to be kept secret from the enlisted men, each regiment will be routed from the dugouts and ordered from the trenches for a night attack. This attack will be launched under a glare of rockets and the men will have to cut their way through two series of wire entanglements before they will be able to bring their bayonets into play on the dummies that will be awaiting the Second. Some idea of the "intensiveness" of these drills may be gained from the fact that the average of injured has been one a day.

With the arrival this morning of the Fourteenth the camp's quota of infantry was completed. The Fourteenth, 1,800 men and fifty officers, under command of Colonel J. R. Howlett, made the trip down in four sections, covering the distance in 44 hours, within an hour of the record for the journey. The men were in fine trim, but disappointed because they have been put in the second line. With the regiment came Major J. F. Loree, quartermaster's corps, who has been supervising the departure of the regiments.

The Seventy-first is destined to lose 1,600 of its 1,800 men under the transfer. It is said unofficially that they are to be sent into the Twenty-third.

Signal Corps Needs Stenographers.

The Aviation Section of the Signal Corps needs 100 first-class stenographers and 100 clerks for immediate service abroad. Only men with excellent references will be considered for this special work. Applicants from 30 to 35 years of age are preferred. These men will be enlisted as first-class privates, but three-fourths of the number will be made non-commissioned officers. Applications may be filed at the office of the Military Training Camps Association, 19 West Forty-fourth Street, where an officer will conduct the personal examinations next week.

Meat or Milk?

We Can Furnish Either

IF milk is not consumed, milk cows are killed for beef. That's an economic law which is unfortunately inevitable. Even now the dairy cows are being killed faster than they are being raised.

Our cows are like any other part of our farm factors—just like a department in your business. They must pay at least cost or be killed, so that our energies can go into other departments of farm work.

Meat or Milk?

Meat is expensive. Milk at current prices is much cheaper than meat, eggs or fish. We eat too much meat—about twice too much the authorities say, for our well being. We consume too little milk—authorities agree on that.

We Can't Control the Cost of Milk

We can't keep down feed and labor costs and so we can't sell at lower prices than $.0697 a quart for Grade B milk testing 3.6% butter fat.

We make 2/10 of a cent a quart—practically nothing. We have nothing to do with the retail prices or retail profits, but we do know this, that milk is cheap compared with meat and eggs or fish and we believe that when people understand how nutritious milk is comparatively, they will buy more of it.

Compare These Values

The black portion represents the part of a dollar necessary to buy an equal unit of food value. It's common sense war time economy to increase your milk order.

For Children—a Quart a Day

Less than that prevents proper growth and nourishment. Grown-ups consume about one-half as much of Nature's balanced ration milk as they actually need.

Housewives should use milk freely and waste none of this valuable food. If cream is taken off, the skim milk is most valuable in building up nutriment and flavor in bread, cakes, soups, puddings. When milk sours make cottage cheese, a valuable food.

We court investigation and publicity. Our books and figures are always available.

It costs each of our members three cents a day to endeavor to save their herds and your milk through this advertising.

Mrs. Dona Says Letter Was Sent by "Interests" Who Have Long Persecuted Her.

The receipt of a threatening letter by Charles M. Higgins, director of the Standard Oil Company, containing a suggestion that his life was in danger and hinting that a criminal charge would be brought against his son, who is at the officers' training camp at Plattsburg, has caused the sudden termination for the present of the proceeding brought by Mrs. Ida Claussen Dona to have her brother, Matthew B. Claussen, removed as committee of her property on the ground that she is sane and competent to control her finances.

Mrs. Dona, who is now the wife of Francis A. Dona, lives at 336 West Seventy-second Street. Her petition was referred to a commission in lunacy, consisting of Wilbur Larremore and Dr. C. P. Oberndorf. The commission has been taking testimony before a sheriff's jury, of which Mr. Higgins is a member. A hearing that was expected to be the final one was fixed for Monday afternoon, but after Mr. Higgins had appeared with a letter received by him subsequent to the previous hearing a secret session was held, in course of which a stenographer was called in to incorporate certain matters in the minutes of the proceeding. It was then announced that the hearing had been adjourned, subject to call by the commissioners, but no statement concerning the cause of the adjournment was made. Commissioner Larremore and all the attorneys refused to discuss the case.

Mr. Higgins admitted last night at his home, 93 Riverside Drive, that he has received a letter threatening him and his son, and said he could see no reason why he had been singled out from the other members of the jury, because he had never heard of Mrs. Dona before she appeared in court, except in reading of her various actions in the newspapers. He said that no move had been made as yet toward starting criminal proceedings based on the letter.

Mrs. Dona insisted last night that the sending of the letter was done by the "interests" which have been persecuting her for years, and said that the purpose of it was to direct suspicion toward her. She suggested taking action against persons who have been opposing her present application. The writing in the anonymous letter sent to Mr. Higgins has already been compared with Mrs. Dona's conceded writing, but the result has not been made known.

CHRISTMAS MAIL TO FRANCE.

Packages for Our Troops Must Be Posted by Nov. 15.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 3.—With the time approaching to give thought to bringing cheer to the American soldiers and sailors abroad, Postmaster General Burleson and Secretaries Baker and Daniels, in a joint statement issued tonight, warned the public that Christmas packages for the fighting men in Europe must be mailed not later than Nov. 15.

Arrangements have been perfected, it is announced, whereby the Christmas mail to the expeditionary forces is to be delivered Christmas morning; but this can be accomplished only by the fullest co-operation of the public.

"The three essential respects in which the public can aid in assuring a happy Christmas at the front," says the statement, "are to mail early, address intelligently, and pack securely. Every package must bear conspicuously the words, 'Christmas mail,' the complete address of the person for whom it is intended, and, in the upper left-hand corner, the name and address of the sender.

"Every parcel must be so packed and wrapped as to admit of easy inspection by the Postmaster. No parcel will be dispatched to France which has not the Postmaster's certificate that it contains no prohibited articles."

The rate of postage is announced at 12 cents a pound.

Why Not Electric Deliveries?

Increased Efficiency—Reduced Cost

Because of the needs of our Army and Navy and to insure the conservation of one of our important fuel supplies, a warning has been sounded against waste in automobile operation to operate the present system, and that these devices will be ready for incorporation in British cars as soon as the war is over. Now is the time for American designers to attack the problem seriously if we are to retain our position in world trade.

The Opportunity of the Electrically Driven Vehicle.—The increasing shortage in petroleum fuel, which threatens to become acute, offers a great opportunity for the wider introduction of electrically driven vehicles, which depend for their supplies on power developed by other classes of fuel, or water power. The electric vehicle is by no means an experiment, for it has performed most satisfactorily for a number of years, for both pleasure and commercial purposes, and has proved itself eminently practical. This the public does not appear to be generally aware of, as the more spectacular or sensational features of the gasoline car have monopolized attention, but impending conditions will undoubtedly force a wider recognition of the undoubted merits of the electric vehicle.

A Sign Which Protects Automobiles Against Theft.—Margarita Schumacher, in devising means of preventing automobile theft, has done away with the use of locks, chains, brakes and other devices w[illegible]

Electric trucks and delivery wagons fulfil all the requirements of fuel saving. They can be made actual factors in the economical conduct of any business calling for transportation facilities. The cost of service is low and it can be depended upon. Simplicity of operation makes for safety. Electric cars have a very long useful life

"Send over a Comptometer man—

Yes, bring a machine"

S. O. S. calls like that are coming in frequently these days. It is a signal for help which the Controlled-key Comptometer answers.

It answers the Bookkeeper's call for relief from the menial brain task of handling figures.

It answers the same call from the Bill Clerk, the Cost Clerk, the Auditor, the Cashier—everyone whose mental energy is being wasted on figure work—not only Addition, but Multiplication, Division, and Subtraction as well.

It answers the Manager's call for accurate results—more economical service.

It answers the call of short-handed offices where night work and overtime are necessary to keep even.

It answers the urgent call of business everywhere—regardless of kind or size—for that guiding information which only analysis of figure records will give.

He'll be prepared to demonstrate in a practical way how the Comptometer plus the Controlled-key helps hold the line with a shortened office force.

Meeting the Emergency

The resources of the Pierce-Arrow Motor Car Company are organized to meet the nation's emergency. In speeding up industry, Pierce-Arrow Trucks are playing their part. Pierce-Arrow fleets are operating on emergency schedules in the service of many large manufacturers of munitions and supplies. Dependable mechanism, regular inspection service and interchangeable parts have enabled these standardized Pierce-Arrow fleets to set unusual records for sustained speed, efficiency and economy.

Pierce-Arrow

for example: Emergency war orders led to the organization of the E. W. Bliss Company's fleet of fifteen Pierce-Arrow trucks. Officials say the trucks do work impossible with any other hauling unit and write themselves off the books quicker than any other machinery used.

Such great commercial successes are built upon sound economies like those effected by Pierce-Arrow Trucks. A smaller business should not deny itself the advantages on which big business thrives.

LENORE ULRICH IN 'TIGER ROSE'

A Canadian French Girl of the Far, Romantic Northwest.

ATMOSPHERIC MELODRAMA

An Effective if Straggling Play by Willard Mack, with Belasco Settings.

TIGER ROSE, a melodrama in three acts, by Willard Mack. At the Lyceum Theatre.

Rose Bocion.....Lenore Ulrich

Lenore Ulrich returned to the Lyceum last night in another of those Western melodramas, again playing a primitive and broken-English heroine whom every one loved but the policeman—and he had loved her, too, in his way until she spurned his base advances. Then he called her "Hell-cat," and every one else loved her all the more.

The play is by Willard Mack, whose turn for effective, if conventional, stage character and for no less effective, but far more original, theatric wit is as well known as his skill in handling scenes of exciting melodrama. For the first half of the three acts, it must be said, the story happened mostly off stage. Rose's love for her Bruce, and his murder of an arch-villain, came to the audience as hearsay. If it had not been for the amazingly atmospheric setting which Mr. Belasco had provided the plot must have seemed rather tame and futile. But at last Rose's young lover appeared, a fugitive from the Canadian mounted police, and from then to the final curtain those whom breathless melodrama deprives of their breath must have suffocated.

It was Mr. Belasco's setting that counted most heavily in the effect, and the work of the actors he has chosen. Void as the opening scenes were of excitement, they breathed the spirit of the great Northwest. The stage disclosed the living room of the Factor's house in a Hudson Bay trading post. The varied assemblage of Indians, French Canadians, Scotch, Irish (the Policeman), and Americans gave a cosmopolitan flavor, subtly blended with the spirit of the forest and of far adventure. While the story began without, the atmosphere was all indoors.

Then came a sudden thunder shower, and with it the plot took to cover. Mr. Belasco has done wonders in illusive realism, but never such a storm as this. The flashes of lightning and crashes of thunder, the scattered gusts of rain and the blowing of curtains and draperies were managed with discretion and precision of effect truly marvelous. Even the oil lamp (which the fire laws require to be electric) dimmed and flared up under the intermittent impacts of the wind. When the audience filed out in the entr'acte they were amazed to find that the streets were dry.

The melodramatic action centred in the familiar properties of trap-door and grandfather's clock, and it was waged with interruptions of gunfire and shouting. Miss Ulrich, a very effective cub tigress, was affectionate and passionate by turns, womanly weak and heroically masterful. With her aid the hunted and still somewhat mysterious young man escaped to a tumble-down hut in the forest.

Here again the art of the producer struck the prevailing note, creating a strongly imaginative effect. The hut was a mere battered frame, with a double bunk in the corner, above which one caught glimpses of the virgin forest and moonlit sky. When the redcoated bloodhound of the law seemed finally eluded, he rose from the upper berth and captured the hero. But Rose was an accomplished marksman, and shot the gun from his hand, once more thwarting him. Again Hellcat—and again a delighted audience. By this time it had transpired that the hero's crime was abundantly covered by the unwritten law, and with a priest conveniently at hand, Rose married her man and went with him to the halls of unwritten justice.

Rose's adoptive father was the Factor, a Scotchman whose speech is attested by expert authority to be genuine Hoot. He was admirably played by Thomas Findlay, Pedro de Cordoba was a dreamy, violin-playing Frenchman, hopelessly in love with Rose, whose music, now on stage and now off, was a powerful aid to the atmospheric illusion. Admirably simple in method, the performance was distinctly the artistic achievement of the evening. The redcoat Mounted Policeman was played by the author and, though a sorry lot in his morals, and by way of being the villain, had somehow managed to get almost as many of the bright lines as Rose herself. It was a very distinct character sketch and capitally played.

Melodrama the play undoubtedly is. Even the program admits it. But it is, on the whole, corking good melodrama, and the scenic investiture and the acting afford a sufficient palliative for the fastidious.

HELEN STANLEY MARRIES.

Opera Singer Weds Loudon Charlton, Concert Manager.

Helen Stanley, an opera singer, who has appeared with the Chicago Grand Opera Company and on the concert platform, was married yesterday to Loudon Charlton, a concert manager well known in New York musical circles. The ceremony took place at the Summer home of the bride at Shippan Point, near Stamford, Conn., and was performed by the Rev. Clarence H. Frank, pastor of the Baptist Church at Stamford.

The couple left immediately after the wedding for a honeymoon tour, and will make their home in New York. The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. M. McCrew of Cincinnati, and for the last two years her concert tours were arranged by Mr. Charlton.

THEATRICAL NOTES.

"The Barton Mystery," a drama by Walter Hackett, will be produced by the Shuberts at the Comedy Theatre on the night of Oct. 15. A. E. Anson, who has appeared in the play in London and throughout South Africa, will be seen in the principal role. "The Family Exit," at present at the Comedy, will accordingly be withdrawn at the end of next week and the Washington Square Players's season will follow the engagement of "The Barton Mystery."

The complete cast of "Baa, Baa, Black Sheep," Fred Jackson's farce, includes Carter De Haven, Willette Kershaw, James Lackaye, Flora Parker, Gerald Griffin, Ann Warrington, Franklyn Hanna, William Balfour, and Charles Meredith. The piece is being produced by Messrs. Jackson and De Haven, and will open out-of-town Oct. 15.

Five hundred employes of the Greenhut Company saw the motion picture "The Burglar" at the Park Theatre last night as the guests of William A. Brady.

Among those in the cast of "The Grass Widow," which Madison Corey will produce in Atlantic City next week, are Natalie Alt, Jess Dandy, Victor Morley, and Otis Harlan.

A professional matinee of "The Family Exit" will be given at the Comedy this afternoon.

PUTS WILLYS AT HEAD OF RECREATION FUND

Toledo Manufacturer to Direct Campaign for Benefit of Soldiers and Sailors.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 3.—John N Willys of Toledo, automobile and airplane manufacturer, was appointed Chairman of the National Committee on War Camp Community Recreation Fund today. He will direct the campaign to raise a fund of "$3 for each soldier and sailor" to provide hospitality and wholesome recreation for the enlisted men in the communities adjacent to the training camps.

My dear Mr. Willys: Mr. Fosdick tells me that you have agreed to accept the Chairmanship of the War Camp Community Recreation Fund, and I am writing to express my appreciation of your willingness to serve, as well as my hope that the work of you and your colleagues may meet with every success.

Cordially and sincerely yours,
WOODROW WILSON.

The appointment of Mr. Willys was made jointly by Secretary Baker, Secretary Daniels and Chairman Raymond B. Fosdick of the War and Navy Department Commissions on Training Camp Activities. Mr. Fosdick also announced today the appointment of a committee to serve with Mr. Willys. It includes Samuel B. Botsford, Buffalo; Mrs. Josiah Evans Cowles, Los Angeles; Cyrus H. K. Curtis, Philadelphia; William D. Arcy, St. Louis; James Flaherty, New Haven; Mrs. E. H. Harriman, New York; Irving Kirkwood, Kansas City; Adolph Lewisohn, New York; James A. McKibben, Boston; Charles H. Sabin, New York; Edward Strong, Minneapolis; Mrs. French Vanderbilt, New York, and Dr. Ralph D. Wheeler, Chicago.

Germans Revive 'Der Bibliothekar.'

"Der Bibliothekar," the German farce which was used as the basis of William Gillette's play, "The Private Secretary," was revived last night by the German company at the Irving Place Theatre. Christian Rub, always an excellent comedian, gave a good performance in the title role, and brisk playing by the company in general did much to make the piece once more amusing.

"The Claim" for the Fulton

"The Claim," a drama by Frank Dare and Charles Kenyon, the latter the author of "Kindling," will have its premiere at the Fulton Theatre next Tuesday. The cast is headed by Florence Roberts, and includes Edward H. Robins, Geraldine O'Brien, and Florine Arnold.

JAPANESE VISIT COLONEL.

President and Emperor Toasted at Oyster Bay Luncheon.

Members of the Japanese Commission, with the exception of Viscount Ishii, who was suffering from a cold, visited Colonel Roosevelt at Oyster Bay yesterday. The members of the commission who visited Colonel Roosevelt motored from the Biltmore Hotel, where they had been staying, to Oyster Bay. After a walk about the estate the party had luncheon. Colonel Roosevelt offered toasts to President Wilson and the Emperor of Japan. In return, Vice Admiral Takeshita proposed a toast to the Colonel.

Captain Phillips, U. S. N., accompanied the commission. He was in command of the Mayflower during the Russo-Japanese peace negotiations. Brig. Gen. Irons, U. S. A., who also accompanied the visitors, during the Spanish-American war was in Cuba with Colonel Roosevelt.

Members of the commission present were: Major Gen. Sugano; Admiral M. Ando, Lieut. Col. S. Tanikawa, Colonel N. Izamachi, Commander Viscount Hotta, and Matsuzo M. Nagai, Secretary of the Japanese Foreign Office.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., Oct. 3.—Viscount Ishii and the other members of the Japanese Commission arrived here tonight. The party will rest here a few days before starting for Japan. The visitors were met by Mayor Harry Bacharach and a special police guard, which escorted them to their hotel.

PERU MAY JOIN ALLIES.

LIMA, Peru, Oct. 3.—The Peruvian Congress is considering the international situation as it affects relations with Germany.

The Foreign Minister and the Minister of War have been summoned before Congress to give information it desires.

Dealers Refuse Orders for Coal.

Dealers on Staten Island have refused to take orders for coal, asserting that they cannot get coal at the present time, and that it would be useless, therefore, to accept orders. There was a rise of 50 cents a ton in the price on Monday, and since then many users, feeling that there might be another advance, have tried to put in orders.

STAR CHAMBER LEGISLATION.

The vice of legislation by Conference Committee is that there is no public record of debate, no means of fixing individual responsibility for the proposal and adoption of amendments to the measure under consideration, and that, as in the case of the Tax bill, the report of the Committee, promptly accepted by both houses of Congress, goes at once to the President as an enacted measure, and by his signature becomes a law before the country, or even its representatives in the Senate and in the House, can have any opportunity to study its provisions and ascertain their effect.

The Committee print of the Conference agreement upon the Revenue bill makes a document of 183 pages, including matter struck out, and of these 183 pages more than forty are new language inserted by the conferees. These new provisions, adopted by the Conference Committee without the country having any opportunity to know what the changes were, include the most important provisions of the measure, those relating to excess profits tax and the income tax. Congress gave no consideration to the amendments; the Conference report was adopted and rushed to the President without the National Legislature having any opportunity to know what it contained.

A glaring evidence of the danger of this method of lawmaking is afforded by an entirely new provision of the bill, of which the country has not been informed, and to which very little attention has been given. In the bill as agreed to by the Conference we find this provision, not contained in either the House bill or the Senate bill, entirely new, entirely the work of the Conference Committee:

> Section 200. That in the case of a trade or business having no invested capital or not more than a nominal capital there shall be levied, assessed, collected, and paid, in addition to the taxes under existing law and under this act, in lieu of the tax imposed by Section 201, a tax equivalent to 8 per centum of the net income of such trade or business, in excess of the following deductions: In the case of a domestic corporation, $3,000, and in the case of a domestic partnership, or a citizen or resident of the United States, $6,000, in the case of all other trades or business, no deduction.

In Section 200, which as drafted is also the work of the Conference Committee, we find this definition:

> The terms "trade" and "business" include professions and occupations.

Section 201, which is also new, is the excess profits section, imposing taxes ranging from 20 per cent. to 60 per cent. on corporation incomes in excess of the pre-war period. Section 209 imposes a special tax "in lieu" of the excess profits tax. Section 209 plainly imposes a special tax upon persons whose income is the fruit of their labor, upon persons engaged in trade or business, including professions and occupations. It is a tax in addition to the individual income tax, already made sufficiently burdensome. It does not apply to incomes derived from bonds, interest, dividends, or rents, or other "unearned income"; it is a tax upon the fruits of individual toil.

What is the purpose of this Section 209? By what arguments were the members of the Conference Committee persuaded to impose double taxation in this manner on salaries, wages and incomes from professions or other occupations? A person in receipt of an income in part from investments and in part from salary would pay the individual income tax upon his entire income from both sources, and in addition, under Section 209, a levy of 8 per cent. upon all that part of his income which came to him in the form of a salary or other reward for personal service in excess of $6,000. It is inconceivable that both houses would have assented to this exorbitant double taxation had they been duly informed concerning this new provision, with opportunity to acquaint themselves with its workings. The somewhat overworked word "job" applies with startling force to this section of a measure palmed off upon the country without notice or warning by the Conference Committee.

IT RESTS WITH THE REPUBLICANS.

Mr. MITCHEL or Judge HYLAN will be the next Mayor. Mr. MITCHEL is the representative of good government achieved in all departments of the city administration, of the continuance and improvement of good government. His defeat would mean the restoration of the Tammany system of graft, incompetence, favoritism, pantataism, and the old degradations of the Police Department, now the pride of the city, recreated, disciplined, physically and morally strengthened, honest, efficient, a friend of the honest citizen, not as it used to be a partner of the gunman and the divekeeper. It would mean the revival of slovenliness, politics, and neglect in the charitable institutions, in the schools, in the parks; the district leader, with no other training than that of the worst school of politics for the offices and the money, taking the place of experts, the finances of the city in the hands of men taught to regard the filling of Tammany's pockets as the complete duty of a city official. It would mean the unchecked rule of jobbery.

Does the Republican Party of New York, do the Republican county organizations of Greater New York, do any Republicans but a scanty handful of devotees of the "regular" fetich, want Tammany government, whose habitual maladministration and inevitable harvest of scandals are fresh in their memories?

Mayor MITCHEL is the representative of the loyalty of the city, of its resolution to support to the uttermost the war against Germany. The protagonist of pro-Germanism, of a German peace, of constant opposition, open or not too subtly veiled, to the war, is Judge HYLAN's sponsor and patron. While the great mass of Tammany men are loyal, the notorious servants of Germany, and the men who hate England more than they love the United States, are behind Judge HYLAN. There rather than in the Socialist camp are they to be found. The Socialist disloyalty is hopeless. It rests with the Republicans to decide whether, by the adherence of many of them to a barren party formalism, disloyalty shall triumph by the election of Judge HYLAN.

By a paltry majority in a primary, where the vote was but a beggarly percentage of the whole number of Republican voters, Mr. BENNETT won the nomination. Sound party policy, consideration of the welfare of the Republican Party here, aside from loftier considerations of the welfare of the city and the nation, forbid the Republican local leaders, many of them favorable from the first to Mr. MITCHEL's nomination, from following Mr. BENNETT in his curious passion. It would be wronging all but the shallower heads among the local leaders to attribute to them no nobler reasons than partisan reasons for rejecting the accident of the primaries. In the maintenance of honest, efficient municipal government, in the maintenance of the war for democracy, Republican and Democrat are indistinguishable names. As good citizens, as good patriots, the Republicans will vote for the candidate of good citizenship and ardent patriotism.

THE LIBERTY LOAN.

The Liberty Loan responses in small amounts are so many that their total is not known, and grows before it can be announced after each totaling. The local subscriptions in large sums exceed $100,000,000 within three days of the offering, or more than in a fortnight for the first issue. Concurrently there is an oversubscription for $400,000,000 of Treasury certificates of indebtedness, which puts the Treasury in funds for current expenses to a total of $1,250,000,000, or 40 per cent. of the loan offering. To that extent the Treasury will have anticipated the receipts of the subscriptions, and will have paid them out, thus averting any great or sudden demand upon the money market. In reserve there are two resources, one the issue of $2,000,000,000 of United States one-year certificates of indebtedness exchangeable for bonds, and the other the $2,000,000,000 of war savings certificates in denominations as low as $5.

There is as good reason in this for pride and satisfaction in this country as there is for disquiet in Kaiserland. There is a particular reason for saying this, and for hoping that the underground route will carry the news across the sea. German officials are watching what is going on here, and are misreporting it to German citizens. Thus Imperial Chancellor MICHAELIS, in his speech to the Main Committee of the Reichstag, said that our Government is attempting "by "all methods, even by unparalleled "terrorism, to stir up war en-"thusiasm, which has been non-"existent among the wide masses." The free-will offering of the people's money in billions gives the lie to the Chancellor. He probably knows, and his predecessors certainly knew, that the only terrorism here is by the Germans, and is "made in Germany." We learn that

> In an interview in the Neues Pester Journal of Budapest Admiral VON TIRPITZ, former German Minister of Marine, characterizes America's military help in the war as a phantom.

A single cantonment of this "phantom" contributed yesterday $48,000 to the Liberty Loan, whose progress is not such a mystery as the German loan on the market simultaneously. The American "phantom" is not yet in the class with England's "contemptible little army," but it is young yet, and really does not deserve the insults heaped upon it. Perhaps when the Germans meet it face to face they will not be of the opinion of the Leipziger Neueste Nachrichten that the American regulars resemble "Falstaff's Guards." Perhaps "HINDEN-"BURG will make short work of the "recruits and volunteers from the "other side of the great pond. * * * "Conscientious and cautious study "enables us to say that we need not "overestimate the American danger." There is no necessity to overestimate it, but it may be dangerous to underestimate it in reliance upon what their officials tell them.

This loan is for the support of the Falstaff's Guards. It is for the protection of the rear of the trenches, where the war is being fought as truly as in the front of them. The factories and food sources are behind the men behind the guns in illimitable supply. Other nations have outspent us in total, because they have been spending and bleeding for years. But none of them began so lavishly as ourselves in money matters, and there is no record that any fighters are braver than Americans. German false reports and insults, German methods of warfare and propaganda, are the best ammunition of our bond salesmen. The more despicable the Germans, the more resolute and generous will Americans be. The bombing of babies, the submarining of merchantmen, the drowning of peaceful travelers and sailors, tell the tale of why these billions are necessary, if the world is to be safe for democracy, or if humanity is to survive Kultur.

THE RED CROSS PARADE.

Fifth Avenue, which has seen so many and various processions, will see this afternoon a strange and noble spectacle. Twenty-five thousand of the Atlantic division of the Red Cross, graduate and pupil nurses, probationers from the hospital training schools, hospital units, ambulance units, will be seen. Most notable, perhaps, in that great company of unarmed soldiers of humanity will be the thousand graduate nurses soon to sail for France, to take care of our men, to brave the sure instinct of the German airmen who violate the sanctities of the Red Cross, and slay doctors, nurses, and wounded men. New York salutes, gratefully and reverently, this thousand, and all those hearts of courage and heads and hands of skill and tenderness, dedicated to unselfish service, this army that goes or will go to help our other army in France.

BIG AIRPLANES NEEDED.

Among those who do not believe that the German air raids on London are inspired solely by some peculiarly Teutonic desire to inflict on the noncombatant part of Great Britain's population the punishment which the fighting forces have declined to take except on terms of immediate repayment with interest, there is an expanding concurrence in the theory, first cabled to this country by Mr. GRASTY in a dispatch to THE NEW YORK TIMES, that Germany is preparing for an aerial investiture of London on a scale not yet attempted in the overhead activities of any of the warring nations. There have been indications in plenty that this is a sound theory, and the attack last Friday night contained its own bit of testimony in support of it.

The dispatch to THE TIMES referred to the raiders as "moonlight visitors" and again spoke of the condition of the sky as being "not altogether favorable for night flying." The enemy airplanes were clearly visible, as they have always been in the past, not only to the defenders who mounted into the air at the first alarm but to the gunpointers of the anti-aircraft batteries which surround London. Two of them were shot down. Yet the raiders might as easily have selected a night moonless and made dark by storm clouds: there was no apparent necessity for making their attack on Friday night.

The explanation lies in the theory of a tremendous attack, as yet only in preparation. Military experts of the air, among them officers of the British Royal Flying Corps, have expressed themselves as satisfied that the raids are made by moonlight so that the raiders may have a clear view of London and its environs, so that they may learn the air path which must be followed from the German base most quickly to reach a strategic post over England's capital. And they are satisfied, too, that in each raid the personnel of the enemy squadron is different, with, perhaps, a leader or two who have made the journey before, to show the way. They see Germany, with characteristic persistence and disregard of relatively small losses, slowly training a company of airmen whom she may launch at London in a single tremendous squadron of two or three hundred airplanes.

What preparation England is making to offset this danger has not, of course, been announced, but it is fair to guess that the British airplane plants are hurrying huge machines to completion. It has been officially stated that the ordinary type of warplane on which both English and French have heretofore centred their constructive efforts is no match for the huge Gothas of Germany which carry three airmen each and three machine guns so mounted that the former sought-for position of attack—the "under-the-tail" position—has become no longer an advantage, but an actual menace to the airman obtaining it.

Alone among the Allies the Italians have built machines structurally capable of meeting the raiding Gotha on even terms. Members of the Royal Flying Corps of Italy have brought several such machines to this country. It was one of them in which ten men flew from Langley Field to Washington a little more than a week ago. The flight was designed to give an idea of what Italy can do with the giant 'planes on which she specializes. Italy wants airplanes and airplane parts; she wants motors and spruce and she wants the United States to furnish them. America's new Liberty Motor can be fitted exactly to Italy's needs and, thanks to its standardization, it can be produced in quantities impossible to attain under Italian methods of construction.

There should be no other argument needed to persuade the United States to assist her ally in the construction of more and greater Capronis. If there were, however, London's unhappy situation should supply it.

MAKING PERSHING A GENERAL.

It is inevitable that the rank of General should be revived for Major Gen. PERSHING, as the War Department has proposed to the Senate Military Committee. In one aspect the thing is regrettable, for it parts company with an old American tradition. That tradition is that the rank of General is a rare and exceptional honor, never to be given except in recognition of the full performance of most extraordinary services, such as Major Gen. PERSHING has never had the opportunity to perform. It has been held only by WASHINGTON, GRANT, SHERMAN, and SHERIDAN. Between the death of WASHINGTON and the end of the war of secession no one held it, not even SCOTT, who commanded the army so long and who was the military idol of his time. In creating the rank of Lieutenant General for him the Government considered that it was making a notable concession.

Throughout the war of secession no one was elevated to that rank. It rewarded GRANT when the war was over, and SHERMAN was appointed General after the death of GRANT. SHERIDAN in turn succeeded SHERMAN, but on his death the title was allowed to lapse. The office has been held sacred, like that of Marshal of France, which no Frenchman of today is permitted to hold except JOFFRE, and which was not accorded even to him until he retired from command, until his record was completely made.

In this view of things it seems a pity that the old tradition cannot be maintained, as has been the similar tradition in the navy, which has reserved the rank of Admiral for only three men, FARRAGUT, PORTER, and DEWEY. But "it is a situation, not a theory, that confronts us," and the reasons for PERSHING's promotion are practical. He is to command an army which will grow to a million men, and such an army can hardly be commanded by an officer holding no higher rank than that of a corps commander. When the American army comes to hold its part of the line, it will be cheek by jowl with French and British armies commanded by men who hold the highest possible rank in their respective services, and the inconveniences of having the Americans commanded by an officer of inferior rank will amount to real obstacles. His countrymen have no doubt that PERSHING will win the rank which is thus bestowed on him in advance.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

A Triumph Against Great Odds. It was a victory indeed—the one gained by the dairymen in the Senate on Wednesday when the nomination of GEORGE W. PERKINS for head of the State Food Control Commission was defeated by a vote of 25 to 20. To be sure, the majority against Mr. PERKINS might have been greater, but to emphasize that point would be unfair to the dairymen, and it will not be done except in forgetfulness of the fact that they, a little people, so far as numbers go, had no positive arguments to offer that were avowable, none negative that had not been refuted. On the other hand, they had to contend against the obvious interests of the vastly larger body of consumers all through the State.

Yet they won the day and secured the appointment of a man who, whatever his merits and abilities, is a specialist in a domain far remote from that of food conservation and is quite without the present qualifications for his new post that are known to be possessed by Mr. PERKINS. Mr. MITCHELL is credited with intelligence and good intentions. In time, presumably, and after he has given to the many and complex problems relating to food distribution the study that has already been bestowed on them by the at least equally intelligent and well-intentioned Mr. PERKINS, he may become a competent head for the commission.

We can all hope so, and for that matter we must all do so, but meanwhile this year's crops will be bought and sold much as were those of previous years, or if immediate changes in the old methods are made, they will have to be experimental and dependent for success more on luck than on knowledge.

The mysteries of the decisive vote are deep. Why the up-State Senators voted against Mr. PERKINS can be guessed without much danger of error, but to explain why certain city members, both Republican and Democratic, were against a selection that promised benefits for the great mass of their constituents, and for one that disquiets those constituents because it was hotly favored by the class personally interested in the maintenance of high food prices—to explain that would require excursions into the misty field of motive and could not be undertaken without risk.

A cynic might congratulate Mr. PERKINS on his rejection, in that it relieves him of a task which for him had "nothing in it" except an enormous amount of the hardest kind of work. But of course he wants no congratulations of that sort; he will prefer commiseration because he has been deprived of an opportunity to render a great public service.

He Uses Words Strangely. Among the congratulatory telegrams sent to Field Marshal VON HINDENBURG when he attained his seventieth birthday this week was one from Dr. RICHARD VON KUEHLMANN, who is Foreign Secretary of the German Empire, a high position, the occupant of which is expected to know many things and to know them well. One sentence in his dispatch reads: "Glorious deeds of imperishable greatness make this a national fête day."

It is not quite clear whether these words refer to the Field Marshal's own achievements or to those of the German armies taken together as a fighting force. In either case, however, they suggest an eager and interested inquiry: Just what were the "glorious deeds" of which the "imperishable greatness" deserved celebration by the whole German people?

Search memory as one will, there is to be found in it credited to Germany only deeds the effect of which, in sum, has been to create for her not respect, or admiration, or even fear, but the bitter condemnation of more peoples than ever ranged themselves in armed antagonism against any other nation since the world began. Germany today has a few allies—and such allies!—but she has not one friend in east or west, north or south, and she confronts a future blacker and more threatening than even the most unhappily fated races ever faced in the past.

That she has won military victories is true, but all of them, like the one upon which the reputation of General VON HINDENBURG largely or wholly rests, have excited more of horror or of anger than of appreciation, even from the military standpoint. As war goes, the slaughter of the almost weaponless Russian thousands in the Mazurian marshes had its merits, but why it should be counted glorious is hard for non-Germans to see, and the rush through Belgium into France necessitated real fighting only when the Marne was reached.

What happened then is worth celebrating—but not in Germany. Since then there have been the Lusitania and many another merchantman to consider, there have been Serbia and Rumania and Armenia and Poland to examine—all supplying deeds that are indeed "imperishable," but strangely few that in the record of history will pass as "glorious."

Promising to Make Reprisals. Reluctant as has been the British Government to undertake reprisals in kind for the aerial raids on London, the present indications are that sooner or later the popular demand for them will become irresistible, and it begins to look as if they would not be long deferred. Already Mr. LLOYD GEORGE has answered an informal cry for vengeance with an equally informal promise that it shall be attempted, and while the promise was conditioned on getting the advice and consent of the military authorities, the ominous words have been spoken—the dreadful policy contemplated as something like a necessity of the situation.

The feeling and the attitude of the Londoners are easily comprehensible, and they cannot be blamed for asking what they do, but the wisdom of granting their requests is still more than dubious to remote observers, and it still can be hoped that entrance into a nearly hopeless competition in savagery may be avoided.

If it were certain, or even probable, that the raids could be stopped by return raids, resort to them could be without hesitation. But the imitation of German methods as regards the use of asphyxiating gases and liquid fire has not stopped that use, and the bombing of undefended German cities promises no better result than the depriving of the Allies of a moral superiority they now possess. And that is not worth while.

A CHANGED GERMAN TONE.

Having Missed World Power, They Talk of Peace Leagues.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

For over two scores of years before the war Teutonic prophets were preaching certain Pan Germanic schemes regarding the political and economical supremacy of Germany in the world. As to the time and means of realization of their aims they held that the State itself was the supreme authority, the absolute, for they did not recognize any higher moral law that could bind it. Germans have had nothing to do with right, for they taught that the principle of right was an invention of the weak, of the decadent and the old who want to keep the acquired position which no longer corresponds to their degree of vitality. To the German mind, only war shows each people its place in the world proportioned to its strength. The right of the conqueror is unquestionable, for in war God is with victory. It is His will that the way should be opened to true force. Thus Germans have invented a new religion, that of Force, and they started new teaching.

Germans wanted to enthrone the Prussian idea of State despotism. They wanted world power, world markets, and world Kultur. They wanted to conquer all these things, and quick, too. But they did not. Hence a strategical retreat on all lines. The language of Teutonic prophets has changed. We hear now that Germany was fighting for self-defense, for the protection of small States, for the establishment of international arbitration, for disarmament, and for the prevention of war in the future. Everybody knows that "World Power or Downfall" was the German motto. As the first part of it fell through, the second one is now threatening Teutonic false prophets and the people deluded by them.

FOR AN INDUSTRIAL DRAFT.

Many Men Idle While the Country Calls for Workers.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

The Government last Spring urged that general effort should be made to increase the crops for the present season, so that it could be possible to meet the calls of our allies abroad and the needs at home. The response was wide and the quantities of food products have been tremendous. Now the danger is imminent that a serious loss of food will come from the inability of the farmers to procure labor for the harvesting. All over Eastern Massachusetts, where I am best acquainted with the actual condition of things, potatoes are being abandoned to rot in the ground, trees heavy with apples are left ungathered, and busy men with small holdings who in response to the call of last Spring had land turned over to farming, men whose business prevents their doing much in the way of securing their crops themselves, see their labor and expense go for nothing. The same story comes from all parts of the country; and the labor famine is evident everywhere. The Government is in honor bound to prevent the waste of effort it has stimulated.

In the mean time there is probably not a park in a city of the United States which is not decorated with able-bodied loafers. The unemployed because they choose to be unemployed, who sit about and discuss the injustice of the distribution of wealth, were never more in evidence. On every Sunday afternoon at least, and on other days not infrequently, Socialists and anarchists harangue in public places, urging strikes and the shirking of labor.

The necessities of the case make the existence of these two conditions side by side a monstrous inconsistency. The time has come for Congress to pass, as quickly as it is possible for the measure to be properly framed and handled, a bill establishing industrial regiments, filled by conscription. Every man able to work and unemployed should be subject; he should be paid a minimum or at least no more than an average wage; and the penalties for evasion should be near enough in severity to those for shirking military service to insure that the draft be taken seriously. If this country is to go through the present grave crisis and emerge in anything like decent condition, the industrial shirkers must be utilized or disposed of. Some of them will go into the army, but many men who are not eligible for military service are abundantly able to work. Moreover, the industrial draft should not be selective, but universal.

The idea of the establishment and maintenance of industrial regiments was the one important contribution of Thomas Carlyle to practical economics, and the working out of the scheme would not be difficult if once the principle be accepted. England has been at last forced to constrain the industrially unwilling; this country should take the matter up at once, without waiting for matters to become so bad that half the energy utilized must be devoted to remedying evils which might have been avoided.

Any system of compulsory labor would undoubtedly meet with the opposition of the labor unions, and it is not unlikely that the tyranny of these organizations is too firmly established to allow of the necessary legislation. Something of this sort is, however, imperatively needed, and it would solve more than one of the perplexing economic questions of the day. It would also be in the spirit of true democracy, as distinguished from a tyranny of labor agitators and politicians.

Librarians and Army Libraries.

I have been delighted to observe the amount of interest created in the subject of libraries for the army and navy. The communication in your issue of the 1st from Dr. Rossiter Johnson, giving his thoughts as to the manner in which such libraries should be handled, indicates that he has comparatively little confidence in the ability of librarians to handle such a matter intelligently. He will be glad to hear, however, that no catalogues are to be insisted upon, meticulous or otherwise, that classifications are to be confined to fiction and non-fiction, and that access to the shelves will be insisted upon in each instance. "The prettiest librarian in the country" will not be present—not on account of Dr. Johnson's objection, but by reason of the fact that the Secretary of War has barred women from this service.

Inasmuch as a simple charging system has been adopted, it may be said that the Committee of Librarians and Dr. Johnson are practically agreed as to the essentials. These buildings, good, strong, serviceable one-story affairs, will be in service within a short time, and we shall be glad to have Dr. Johnson examine the result and pass judgment thereon.

A Lincoln for London.

The London County Council possesses the power to refuse to erect any work of sculpture offered the metropolis. It is to be hoped in the case of this Lincoln they will exercise their power and not give Britons permanent proof of what they believe, that Lincoln was a guy and that American sculpture is funny. If, as you say, a statue of Lincoln is wanted to add to the awful marble yard or bronze foundry in Parliament Square, let us send a replica of Saint-Gaudens's Lincoln, a dignified presentment of one great American by another. It should prove an interesting object lesson to England in art and history.

GUYNEMER.

The hero of a hundred fights,
With fiery soul to fear unknown,
No longer scales empyreal heights
Nor ranges depths of air alone
To mark the foeman's albatross
Limned 'gainst the blue of distant sky;
Who counted death a gain, not loss,
As swift he onward sped on high,
Could he but grapple with that foe
And send him hurtling far below!

Sky scout was he in heaven's blue
Who trailed his foe through fields of air,
Or scanned with sight as eagle's true
The hidden battery in its lair!
Around him burst the screaming shell
As dauntless he sped on his way,
While far below flamed fires of hell
That showed where battle held its sway,
A knight in quest of joustings there,
The king of airmen, Guynemer!

Dead eagle of aerial plains
Who half a hundred fights had won,
In years to come when Silence reigns
O'er fields where War its course has run,
Proud France will mourn above thy tomb,
And travelers from distant lands
Will note where poppies reddest bloom
Above thy dust, and reverent hands
Will tend and guard his resting place—
This knightliest soul of France's race!

MASON STIRS HOUSE.

Illinois Member Defends Vote Against War and Draft, and Avows Patriotism.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 3.—Representative William Mason of Illinois, one of the men on whom Representative J. Thomas Heflin of Alabama cast suspicion in the recent exchanges of charges in the House of Representatives, today made his reply. It was a remarkable reply, in that Mr. Mason, known to American political audiences for forty years as a firebrand and a master of invective, today played on a minor key, and instead of arousing the House to a frenzy, when he took his seat there were many men openly dabbing at their eyes with handkerchiefs, while on the faces of several streams of tears were running.

Mr. Heflin, whose methods of debate are not of the softest, endeavored to make another speech, promising this time to name the "thirteen or fourteen" suspected. But the House refused to give the time. Representative Garner of Texas, a Democrat, blocked the request.

Representative Mason, taking the floor soon after the House met, read statements from the Congressional Record, wherein Mr. Heflin had made a broadside attack on him, coupling him with anarchists, I. W. W. men, traitors, German spies, and the powers of darkness in general. Mr. Mason read a letter he had sent to Mr. Heflin, asking for a retraction. He received no reply, he said, and had hesitated a long time before asking for an hour in which to take up the subject on the floor. He explained that Mr. Heflin had attacked him for introducing a bill to repeal the draft law. This, said Mr. Mason, was not a fact, as his bill would not repeal it, but would modify it in accordance with his own ideas.

"We are at war," he said, "and I feel like apologizing to the House for taking the time to reply to the statement of treason that has been made against me; and I say to you frankly that if he were as well known in my State as he is in Congress I should not waste time answering him."

After discussing the terms of his bill, which Mr. Heflin had called treasonable, Representative Mason said:

"When the gentleman from Alabama says I am trying to keep or prevent any one from raising an army in defense of this country he state what is not true, and he knew it was not true when he said it to this House."

Representative Heflin flushed, and several members jumped up to stop the Illinois man. Representative Kitchin of North Carolina moved to strike the words from the Record, and on a viva voce vote the House noisily refused to take this suggestion. On a rising vote, in which only half the members present participated, the Kitchin motion was again rejected, 84 to 71. This rebuke to Mr. Heflin was received with applause by the Republicans and many Democrats. Mr. Mason then turned to the Speaker and withdrew the remark himself.

"Let me see what the facts are in my defense against this charge," he continued, "I voted against a declaration of war. I voted against conscription; and I have no apologies to make here or elsewhere for these votes. But when I voted for war in this forum I declared that if a majority wanted war I would under God give every power I had to maintain the army and the navy and the integrity of my country.

"And I have kept my word. Any man or any newspaper who says I have advised any one directly or indirectly, remotely or contingently, to disobey the conscription law states a malicious falsehood and the truth is not in him."

Mr. Mason denied vigorously the Heflin charge that he was holding and inspiring German meetings, but said he had called attention to the things "the war lords are doing to the treasury." Turning to the Southern members, he said:

"Treason! Why, from the time I was eleven years old until I was fifteen I stood guard nights along the river when I was too young to be enlisted. Ragged, I suffered as your boys did in the South; patched trousers, shirt made of a flour sack. I nursed the sick and stood at night with the old men and young boys of the Home Guard. When you declared war here I was disappointed; but within twenty-four hours the only son I have at home wired me asking me as to his duty. If I had been pro-German, if I had been guilty of treason, if I had not been willing to surrender my individual opinion to the majority, the result would have been different. But before the sun set on the day war was declared my son had the permission and the blessing and the consent of his father and mother.

"You talk of sacrifices—that boy was the only one left at home—it took more sacrifice and more patriotism to say 'Go' than the man ever had who raises any question as to my loyalty."

Committee Expects to Raise $1,500,000 to Buy Books for Army.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 3.—The Library War Council, of which Frank A. Vanderlip is Chairman, reported to Secretary Baker today that $800,000 of the proposed million dollar camp library fund was in the hands of its Treasurers. The members of the council believe that the million dollars it originally aimed to raise will be oversubscribed by nearly five hundred thousand dollars.

New York City reports the largest receipts with its local fund well over the $100,000 mark. Chicago has collected more than $50,000, and Boston $40,000.

SAYS PEOPLE BACK WILSON.

'Wonderful Solidarity' Here, Frankfurter Zeitung Writer Thinks.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

THE HAGUE, Oct. 3.—Rudolf Kommer, former American correspondent of the Frankfurter Zeitung, in a long editorial admits that President Wilson has a majority of the American people behind him and encounters little opposition from Republicans.

"It almost seems," he writes, "as if Wilson were hit with his own weapon, since if all opposition were withdrawn he would suffocate in an atmosphere of agreement."

Kommer says the news from America is naturally "only too American" and in "skyscraper style." He mocks at reports of large sums voted for the war.

Apparently he wishes to warn Germans, as he admits the American situation looks more menacing for Germany. He asks whether the American people would not be interested to hear of the aims of the war, as "after a half-year of phrases about democracy and autocracy more substantial nourishment will be required."

The writer says President Wilson's temperament will not tolerate a strong personality in his vicinity and that he went into the war with a "Cabinet of subalterns." He says the Republicans were disappointed that Wilson had outdone their wildest dreams of strenuous war measures and that no one can reproach the present Administration with lukewarmness, though he refers to the former "triumvirate of milk, lemonade, and cider," meaning Wilson, Daniels, and Baker.

"President Wilson," he writes, "was a pacifist until 1916, Daniels a pacifist until 1915, and Baker a social reform Mayor and pacifist until 1917." He finds it remarkable that even Bryan supports Wilson.

"The first half year of war," he comments, "has brought a tremendous and wonderful solidarity in the enormous crucible and the uniform domestic front must be recognized as the biggest triumph of Americanism."

POPE ASKS MERCIER VISIT.

Falkenhausen Will Let Cardinal Go to Rome Only on Conditions.

LONDON, Oct. 3.—Belgian newspaper correspondents announce, according to a dispatch from Amsterdam to the Exchange Telegraph Company, that General von Falkenhausen, the German Governor General of Belgium, has received a request from the Vatican to permit Cardinal Mercier, the Primate of Belgium, to visit Rome some time before Christmas on an important political errand.

General Falkenhausen is understood to have replied that he could only grant passports to the Cardinal if the prelate undertook not to misuse his trip for purposes of anti-German propaganda.

DISMISSAL ILLEGAL, CATTELL DECLARES

Ousted Professor Also Says Columbia Violated Academic Tradition of 600 Years.

DENIES ANY ACT OF SEDITION

Has Taken Part in No Agitation Against Government, Conduct of War, or Draft Law.

Professor J. McKeen Cattell, who with Professor H. W. L. Dana was dismissed from the Faculty of Columbia University on Monday because of pacifist activities, yesterday broke the silence he had maintained, and in a formal statement said his dismissal was unfair and illegal. His statement follows:

> It is contrary to academic traditions maintained for six hundred years, to dismiss a university professor on account of his opinions expressed in a proper way to experts in the subject. It is illegal to dismiss a professor in the middle of the academic year on false charges, without payment for the year and without the pension which he had earned by twenty six years of service.
> I am opposed to war and to this war, but I have undertaken no agitation against the Government nor against its conduct of the war. I have written nothing against the draft law or against sending armies to Europe, although I regard both measures as subversive of the national welfare.
> In August, 1914, when President Wilson was telling us to be neutral in thought as well as in deed and Mr. Roosevelt was "pussyfooting," I wrote in a journal that I edit:
> "The official German justification of the mad and wanton European war is that it is a defense of the Teutonic culture and people against the semi-Asiatic and barbaric Slav hordes. The verdict of history will probably be that it was a war of calculation for caste and national aggrandisement, and a war of miscalculation. The German Emperor and his bureaucratic military entourage probably held that the time was ripe for an extension of German influence in the Balkans and towards Asia Minor with an increase of its African possessions at the expense of France. But it is by no means clear why, if the serpent was prepared to use its fangs, it did not show its alleged wisdom. * * * We may look for a second Napoleon the little rather than for a second Napoleon the great."
> In June, 1917, I began a letter to the New York Evening Post with the words:
> "An emperor, driven by the militaristic and capitalistic classes of his people and 'by God demented,' must accept responsibility for the great crime."
> The letter that I wrote on Aug. 23 to members of the Congress, on account of which I have been dismissed from the chair of psychology at Columbia University, asked support for a measure then before the Senate and the House to prohibit sending conscripts "to fight in Europe against their will." There is no law requiring or permitting the President to send "conscientious objectors" to fight in Europe. To do this would be contrary to the intent of the constitution and to the uniform policy of the nation. It would provide a less efficient army and might cause disorder and possible revolution at home. Surely this should not be done without careful consideration by the Congress after efforts to learn the will of the people. I have done nothing except exercise the constitutional right and fulfil the duty of a citizen to petition the Government to enact legislation which I believe to be in the interest of the nation. For this I am dismissed from the Division of Philosophy, Psychology and Anthropology of Columbia University, which I have made the strongest in any university in the world. Professors in every university are terrorized, so that they dare not exert their influence for peace and goodwill.
> The peoples of all the European nations long for peace, but are kept at war by the kleptocratic classes. In spite of the institutions and the instincts which we have inherited from a barbarous past, I believe that our people have no heart for this war into which they have been driven. But even if the nation should become a mob, mad for war, it is none the less the business of each of us to do what he can for righteousness as he sees it. If that is forbid by force, then, indeed, we need a new national anthem, such as Shelley once wrote for England:
> God prosper, speed, and save,
> God raise from England's grave
> Her murdered Queen!
> Pave with swift victory
> The steps of Liberty, > Whom Britons own to be > Immortal Queen.
> J. McKEEN CATTELL.

Newspaper offices were called on the telephone yesterday and told that there would be a meeting of students in the School of Journalism at Columbia yesterday afternoon at 5 o'clock to protest against the ousting of the two pacifist professors. The meeting was not held.

FINDS SEDITION LAW AMPLE.

Magistrate House Quotes Authorities on Disorderly Conduct.

In a memorandum prepared for City Magistrates in war time, made public yesterday, Magistrate Frederick B. House declared that the disorderly conduct law was ample to meet sedition. Quoting from legal authorities and court opinions of this and other countries, he showed that the present law of New York embraces the offense of seditious publication or anti-American soap-box oratory, and expressed the opinion that the Legislature might well give the courts power to impose heavier penalities in cases of disorderly conduct if the nature of the offense justified it.

"Speaking of the constitutional right of a free press and of free speech," said Magistrate House, "the Court of Appeals of this State—People vs. Most, 171, N. Y.—has said that all courts and commentators contrast the liberty of the press and speech with its licentiousness, and condemn as not sanctioned by the Constitution of any State appeals designed to destroy the reputation of the citizen, the peace of society, or the existence of government.

"Therefore, any printed, written, or spoken words which tend to a breach of the peace are illegal and not within the constitutional right of any person. The courts and the policy should not shut their eyes to the fact that there are persons in the city, reckless and aggressive, ready to act on such words and thereby likely to become disturbers of the public peace.

"It is a well-settled rule of law in this State that the public peace is in danger when a breach thereof is likely to occur in the ordinary course of events. So that a person who prints, writes, or speaks anything having this tendency is not within his constitutional rights and is criminally liable for his acts.

"While there may be a gap in the law as to the sufficiency of the punishment for illegal public speaking and the gravity of the offense, the same can be punished, in the City of New York, under the disorderly conduct statutes."

The Magistrate then quoted opinions in which blasphemy, profane language, and other similar offenses were held to be disorderly conduct.

"So then," he continued, "the test is, Does the matter which is distributed, or the words spoken, tend to a breach of the peace? If it does, then there is no constitutional protection for the act of distribution or speaking, and a person committing either one of these acts in the City of New York may be arrested and prosecuted under the disorderly conduct statutes."

Further on the Magistrate said:

"It is the law that freedom of speech does not mean the right always to say what one thinks, where and when he pleases. No court can lay down a hard and fast rule as to what acts may tend to a breach of the peace.

"No new laws are needed, at least as far as the City of New York is concerned. The disorderly conduct statutes, if enforced, are amply sufficient to meet the situation."

Postal Savings Reach $140,000,000.

Postal savings deposits throughout the United States gained in August more than $4,000,000 over the record of August, 1916, according to the Post Office Department. Total deposits at the end of the month were more than $140,000,000, and depositors numbered about 700,000. Of the total deposits, more than $50,000,000 was put into the Government's keeping in the twelve months ended Aug. 31.

REGINALD RONALDS TO MARRY DIVORCEE

Prominent Clubman, Also Divorced, and Mrs. Mildred Combs Get a License.

WED IN MANHASSET TODAY

His Former Wife, who was Thora Strong, Was a Social Leader—Bride-to-be Once Chorus Girl.

Reginald Ronalds, prominent socially, and a former Rough Rider with Colonel Roosevelt, will be married today to Mrs. Mildred Combs of Elm Point, Great Neck, L. I. The ceremony will be performed by the Rev. Charles L. Newbold, Rector of Christ Episcopal Church, in the rectory of the church at Manhasset, L. I.

The first intimation that Mr. Ronalds, who was divorced from his first wife in 1910, was to remarry came yesterday, when he and Mrs. Combs visited the office of Town Clerk Thomas O'Connell at Manhasset and obtained a marriage license.

After the ceremony at the rectory, which will be in the afternoon, a large reception will be held at the home of the bride.

In the application for the license Mr. Ronalds gave his age as 46 years, occupation retired, and said that he and his former wife were divorced in this city on Nov. 23, 1910. Mrs. Combs gave her age as 28, and said that she received a divorce in Denver on June 18, 1915.

Mrs. Combs was married to Albert H. Combs of this city, a son of Mr. and Mrs. H. B. Combs, in 1912, at Summit, N. J., after a brief courtship. Before her marriage she had appeared in the chorus of several musical comedies. In her divorce proceedings she charged her husband with cruelty, and the suit was not contested.

Mr. Ronalds's first wife was Miss Thora Strong, a daughter of Charles H. Strong, President of the Erie & Pittsburg Railroad. They were married in February, 1906, and lived at 876 Fifth Avenue. They had one daughter, Miss Thora Strong Ronalds, and the mother received the custody of the only child at her divorce four years after her marriage. The former Mrs. Ronalds was prominent in society, and was presented at the Court of St. James in London, shortly after her marriage, which was arranged by her then mother-in-law, Mrs. Pierre Lorillard Ronalds.

Last July society was surprised to learn that she had remarried. Although she was married on June 28 to Clyde B. Leasure, teller of the First National Bank at Erie, Penn., it did not become known until a week later.

Mr. Ronalds lives at the Racquet and Tennis Club and is also a member of the Knickerbocker and Brook Clubs.

MARRIED AT THE ST. REGIS.

Miss Helen J. Oppenheim Weds James A. Jonas—The Attendants.

The marriage of Miss Helen J. Oppenheim, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Oppenheim of 29 West Eighty-sixth Street, and James A. Jonas, son of Mrs. Louisa A. Jonas, who resides at the Hotel Essex, took place last evening at the Hotel St. Regis. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Dr. Nathan Krass in the marble ballroom.

The bride wore a gown of white satin embroidered in pearls and a tulle veil caught up with a coronet of orange blossoms. She was attended by Miss Dorothy Cohn as maid of honor, who wore green chiffon, and the Misses Dorothy Hast, Helen Simon, Violet Deane, and Marjory Katz as bridesmaids, who appeared in frocks of pale blue chiffon. Little Helen N. Steigler and Katherine Jacobs were the flower girls.

George E. Jonas was best man for his brother, and the ushers were Edgar J. Oppenheim, Paul Lefton, Alfred Waldenstein, and Allen Wolff.

Bernard-Wallach.

The marriage of Milton Bernard and Miss Esther G. Wallach, a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Wallach, took place yesterday afternoon at the Astor and was followed by a dinner in the Yacht room. The bride was attended by Miss Ottilie Popper. There was no best man, but Sigmund Sternfeld and Jacques G. Wallach, brother of the bride, were ushers. The Rev. Dr. Rudolph Grossman performed the ceremony.

HAVE YOU A SWEETHEART,

Son or Brother in training camps in the American Army or Navy? If so, mail him a package of ALLEN'S FOOT=EASE, the antiseptic powder to be shaken into the shoes and sprinkled in the foot-bath. The British and French troops in Europe, and the American troops use Allen's Foot=Ease, because it takes the Friction from the Shoe and freshens the feet. It is the greatest comforter for tired, aching, tender, swollen feet, and gives relief to corns and bunions. The Plattsburg Camp Manual, chapter on General Advice, states: "Every morning shake a little talcum powder or Foot=Ease in each shoe." Ask your dealer to-day for a 25c. box of Allen's Foot=Ease, and for a 2c. stamp he will mail it for you. What remembrance could be so acceptable?

ABANDON DANCES IN WAR.

Junior Assemblies for the Debutantes to be Discontinued.

Owing to the war conditions the Committee of the Junior Assemblies have decided to discontinue the dances this season, and notices have been sent out to that effect. A dance may be held in the Spring, it is further announced.

The committee is made up of Mrs. Richard C. Colt, Mrs. C. Ledyard Blair, Mrs. Joseph W. Burden, Mrs. Walter Phelps Bliss, Mrs. Ernesto G. Fabbri, Mrs. Robert P. Huntington, Mrs. Walter B. James, and Mrs. Edwin D. Morgan.

The assemblies have been given for many years for the debutantes of each season, and are a fixture in New York Society.

BRIDE OF LIEUT. APPLETON.

Miss Elsa Reath Weds Former Yale Oarsman at St. Davids, Penn.

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, Penn., Oct. 3.—Members of society from Philadelphia and New York attended the wedding today at St. Davids of Miss Elsa Reath, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Theodore W. Reath of Philadelphia, to Lieutenant John Adams Appleton of New York.

The bride's only attendant was Miss Virginia Roberts. After the ceremony at the church a reception was held at the home of the bride's parents in St. Davids.

Lieutenant Appleton is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Appleton of 371 Park Avenue, and is a grandson of Daniel Appleton, the founder of the publishing house of that name. His uncle is General Daniel Appleton.

He was graduated from Yale in 1914 and was stroke oar of the Yale 'Varsity crew of that year, which defeated Harvard by three feet in the most thrilling four-mile race that was ever rowed between the two universities.

LANE ASPINWALL MARRIED.

Official of du Pont Company Wed Mrs. Alma B. Knight.

Announcement has been made of the marriage last Saturday of Mrs. Alma Ballantine Knight, widow of John C. Knight of Providence, R. I., and Lane Aspinwall of Arlington, N. J., formerly of Staten Island, which took place at the home of the bridegroom's sister, Mrs. James G. Clark of West New Brighton, S. I. The Rev. Canon Pascal Harrower officiated.

Mrs. Aspinwall is a daughter of Mrs. Emma C. Ballantine of Staten Island. Mr. Aspinwall is an official of the E. I. du Pont de Nemours Company of Wilmington, Del., and is now at the Arlington plant of the company.

STEARNS-COLEMAN.

Miss Frances Emerson Coleman the Bride of Minister's Son.

The marriage of Douglas Clark Stearns, a son of the Rev. William Foster Stearns and Mrs. Stearns of Norfolk, Conn., and Miss Frances Emerson Coleman, a daughter of the late John Caldwell Coleman of this city and of Mrs. Coleman, was celebrated yesterday afternoon at 4:30 o'clock in the Madison Square Presbyterian Church. The ceremony was performed by the pastor, the Rev. Dr. Charles H. Parkhurst, assisted by the bridegroom's father. The church decorations were yellow chrysanthemums.

The bride, in a brown traveling costume, topped by a brown hat, and carrying yellow chrysanthemums, walked with her brother, McAllister Coleman, who gave her in marriage. She was unattended. Mr. Stearns had no best man, but there were four ushers—William Foster Stearns, Jr., of Norfolk, Gordon R. Hall of Brookline, Mass.; C. W. Richmond, and Raymond C. Branion of Portland, Ore.

Secretary Redfield's Son to Marry.

Mr. and Mrs. R. A. Cowing of Cincinnati have announced the engagement of their daughter, Miss Amy Louise Cowing, to Humphrey Fuller Redfield of Brooklyn, son of the Secretary of Commerce and Mrs. William C. Redfield. Miss Cowing is a graduate of Smith College, class of '16. Mr. Redfield is now an Ensign stationed at the Boston Navy Yard. He was graduated from Amherst College and enlisted in the New England district of the Naval Reserve last April.

Miss Flanigan to Wed Rutgers Fish.

The engagement is announced of Miss Harriet Gernon Flanigan, formerly of Albany, N. Y., but now of this city, a sister of C. N. Flanigan, to Rutgers Fish, a son of Mr. and Mrs. Cornelius B. Fish of Scarsdale, N. Y., and a brother of Harry Van Courtland Fish, who married Miss Léontine Marié Suse. Mr. Fish is in the real estate business with his father in New York, and is a member of Squadron A. He expects to go to the Spartanburg training camp soon. No date has been set for the wedding.

Middleton-Roberts Engagement.

Mrs. G. B. Middleton of 40 East Sixty-second Street has announced the engagement of her daughter, Miss Grace L. Middleton, to George Roberts of Brooklyn. Miss Middleton is a graduate of Smith College. Mr. Roberts is the son of George H. Roberts, one-time Postmaster of Brooklyn. He was graduated from Yale, class of '05, also from the Harvard Law School in 1908.

Smith-Boston.

Miss Ethyl M. Boston, daughter of Thomas M. Boston, and Bernard A. Smith, Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. B. A. Smith of this city, were married last evening at 8 o'clock at the Hotel Brevoort. Only the relatives attended the wedding. Mr. Smith is with the Bethlehem Steel Company. The couple will reside at Allentown, Penn.

MRS. CATT ASSAILS HER WAR CRITICS

Suffrage Leader Denies Imputation of Disloyalty Made by Women Opposed to Votes.

CALLS KAISER CHIEF ANTI

Also Asserts That Anarchists and I. W. W. Leaders Are Enemies of Cause She Represents.

Accusing the anti-suffragists of impugning her loyalty to the country, Mrs. Carrie Chapman Catt, President of the National American Woman Suffrage Association, after consultation with her lawyer, is sending an open letter to Mrs. James W. Wadsworth, President of the National Association Opposed to Woman Suffrage; Mrs. Robert Lansing, and Miss Alice Hill Chittenden, President of the State Association Opposed to Woman Suffrage. A copy was also sent to Mrs. Margaret Robinson of Cambridge, Mass., who is Chairman of the Press Committee and responsible for literature sent out to all parts of the country.

The letter addressed to Mrs. Robinson says that the attention of the writer has been called to the fact that she, Mrs. Robinson, is circulating statements in public letters and bulletins "that impugn my loyalty as an American and thereby put in jeopardy my good name and reputation."

"These statements are made by you with willful intent to injure my name and standing in the community or are statements which you are publishing without having made effort to establish their proof. I hereby set forth the facts which you have distorted into untruths either by contrary statements or by implications."

A statement in Bulletin 168 says that Mrs. Catt as a "pacifist and Socialist" brought Frau Rosika Schwimmer into this country, that Frau Schwimmer formed the People's Council, and Mrs. Catt is, therefore, responsible for the work of the council which "demands the overthrow of the Government. Mrs. Catt believes in suffrage first; she has proposed that the Constitution be torn into shreds if it stands in the way of woman suffrage," says the bulletin.

Another bulletin allies the suffrage movement with the I. W. W., whose leaders, it says, are ardent advocates of woman suffrage and are doing in America what they are doing in Russia—betraying the cause of democracy.

Mrs. Catt says she did not bring Frau Schwimmer to this country, that Frau Schwimmer is not an officer of the International Woman Suffrage Alliance, and that although she believes in her integrity as a woman she does not sympathize with her "sincere if impractical peace plan." Of the I. W. W. she says:

"Your effort to link me by implication with the I. W. W. activities is also untruthful and malicious. As a matter of fact you can be aligned with them by a far straighter connection than you have dared to make in your attacks upon me. The I. W. W. is almost the only large labor organization that has not indorsed woman suffrage. Its leaders are antis, and their well-known supporters, 'Bill' Haywood and Emma Goldman, share your views, not mine, on the suffrage question. The most vigorous opponent of woman suffrage in the world, and consequently an ally of yours, is the Kaiser of Germany.

"Would you call it anything short of malicious and wilful injury should I distort these facts in such a way as to imply continuously that you are a traitor to your country and pro-German in your sympathies? I do not make this charge, I do not twist these facts to your discredit, for I assume that you are, as you ought to be, a loyal American. I merely warn you that I shall hold you accountable for any charges you make that insidiously declare me responsible for activities 'which render our country a prey to a foreign power.'"

OPEN SUFFRAGE CAMPAIGN.

Men's Experience Meeting Held at Carnegie Hall.

On a platform decorated with many flags and a few suffrage banners men representing varied interests gave their reasons for believing in woman suffrage at a "men's experience meeting" at Carnegie Hall last evening, opening the 1917 campaign for the woman suffragists of New York. James Byrne presided.

Richard Billings said that a household of women devoted to charity had made him a suffragist. "It is a splendid thing to be a Lady Bountiful," he said, "but better to be a good citizen. The world now thinks less of charity and more of Roosevelt's square deal. I believe the women are back of that in New York."

Commissioner John A. Kingsbury said he could not remember when he was not a suffragist.

"If justice is denied woman because of her sex, you might as well keep her from work, society, and church as the ballot box," said Judge W. H. Wadhams.

"It took us ten years to pass a child labor bill in New Jersey and keep children from working all night," said Everett Colby, "because every Senator had some factory owner to please. Every organization of women in the State was for that bill, and I believe if they had had the vote we would have passed it in a day."

"Wise women need the vote to give their wisdom to the world," said Walter Damrosch," and foolish women to learn that there are things more important than their petty vanities."

John Mitchell, before he began a strong speech for woman suffrage, told the audience that since he had been appointed Tuesday night as Chairman of the State Food Control Commission, he had been asked if he had solved the food question. "I go to Albany tonight, ladies," he said; "I will solve it tomorrow."

"I am supposed to say something on the relation of the nervous system to the vote," said Dr. Frederick Peterson. "Experts differ. One neurologist thinks it is a neurotic symptom that women desire the vote. I can say that in my experience several of the most neurotic patients I ever had were militant anti-suffragists."

OPPOSES SUFFRAGE PARADE.

Antis Warn Women "Not to be Misled" by Patriotic Features.

Miss Alice Hill Chittenden, President of the New York State Association Opposed to Woman Suffrage, has issued a protest against the suffrage parade which is to take place Oct. 27, and the State anti-suffrage organization has taken up the subject at a meeting. The anti-suffragists have issued a warning to their members not to be led astray because the parade is called a "woman's parade," with divisions for "mothers of soldiers and sailors" and "women rendering patriotic service."

"As there are more than 512,000 women in this city enrolled for woman suffrage," Mrs. Norman de R. Whitehouse, Chairman of the Suffrage Party of New York State, said yesterday, referring to the warning, "and more than 1,011,500 women enrolled in the State, it can easily be seen how many mothers, wives, and sisters of soldiers and sailors there are who will welcome this opportunity to show their patriotism. Certainly we do not expect any anti-suffragists to march unless they become converted and see that love of country and a desire to serve are the basis of the overwhelming demand for suffrage on the part of the women of New York State."

"The anti-suffragists have figured that 25,000 paraders will actually waste in walking up Fifth Avenue five years, five months and eight days that should be given to patriotic work. How about the several thousand Red Cross nurses who will parade on Thursday? Wouldn't they be better employed in nursing the sick and wounded? And those many parades of soldiers? Shouldn't they be in the training camps hard at work?"

SING AT LUCA BOTTA'S BIER.

Metropolitan Chorus in Selections from Gounod at Tenor's Funeral.

Funeral services for Luca Botta, the Metropolitan tenor who died on Saturday, were held yesterday at the Campbell Funeral Chapel, Broadway and Sixty-sixth Street. A eulogy was spoken by Pasquale Amato, and the Metropolitan chorus, under the direction of Giulio Setti, sang selections from Gounod's oratorio, "Mors et Vita." After a requiem mass at St. Patrick's Cathedral the body was placed in a vault at Woodlawn and will later be taken to Italy for burial.

Many opera singers and officials of the Metropolitan attended the services. The pallbearers were Pasquale Amato, Giuseppe de Luca, Leon Rothier, Antonio Scotti, Francesco Romei, Giulio Setti, Gennaro Papi, Fernando Carpi, Giulio Crimi, F. C. Coppicus, G. Viafora, and Dr. H. H. Curtis.

RICARDO NARGANES DEAD.

Builder of Havana Gas Works Had Extensive Interests in Cuba.

Ricardo Narganes, build of the Havana Gas Works and for many years interested in sugar planting and manufactories in Cuba, died yesterday after a five days' illness in the Hotel Ansonia, in his seventy-second year.

He was born in Havana the son of Colonel Faustino de Narganes, Governor of Camaguey Province, and was educated at Fordham University, New York, and the University of Havana. During his long business career in Havana Mr. Narganes was associated in several enterprises with R. A. C. Smith, Dock Commissioner of New York. His last work was the New Niquero Sugar Company at Niquero, Oriente Province, Cuba, of which the late Anthony N. Brady was one of the promoters.

Mr. Narganes is survived by three sons and two daughters.

Mme. Emile Grey, Harpist.

Mme. Emile Grey, a prominent harpist, died on Monday at her home in this city. She was born in Dublin, the daughter of the late Professor John W. Glover, one of Ireland's best known composers, and played for several seasons at the Metropolitan Opera House under the management of Maurice Grau. Later she was engaged by Mrs. Patrick Campbell and the late Sir Herbert Tree as harp soloist, and had also played at Covent Garden Opera, London, before Queen Victoria and the late King Edward.

Miss Emily M. de Peyster.

Miss Emily M. de Peyster, daughter of the late James and Emily M. de Peyster and a direct descendant of the old de Peyster family of Dutchess County, New York, died yesterday at Englewood, N. J. She was a member of the Colonial Dames, Huguenot Society, and Colonial Lords of the Manor. Her New York home was at 80 East Seventy-ninth Street.

NEWTON HITS AT PICKETS.

Malone's Successor Refers to Them as "The Freaks of Their Sex."

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 3.—The press agent of the National Association Opposed to Woman Suffrage has given out an interview by Byron R. Newton, the new Collector of Customs at New York, which quotes him as saying of the defeat of suffrage in Maine:

"In this great world crisis I feel like thanking God that there are in this country still left so many real women who appreciate the power womanhood has always had and exerted in the development of civilization. I believe that the war may be a blessing to our country, in checking what I regard as a menace to civilization—and by menace I mean that group of restless, abnormal women who seem to have a perverted and diseased ambition to do anything and everything except those things which God Almighty and nature designed them to do.

"Women have set the milestones of progress along the path of civilization in this world, and I am truly thankful that the American women—despite the freaks of their sex—are rising to the occasion and continuing to do that splendid work. The true woman knows that working in a woman's way she exerts a force in the world superior to that of man. But when women attempt to leave their own realm and do man's work in a man's way they lose their power in the world, just as men would become weakened and ridiculous if they should attempt to invade the realm which nature and civilization have set apart for women."

William J. Wood.

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., Oct. 3.—William J. Wood, a member of the Indiana Public Utilities Commission and formerly attorney-examiner for the Interstate Commerce Commission, with headquarters in Washington, died at his home here today. Mr. Wood was born in Florence, Ala., March 30, 1850, the son of General F. A. M. Wood of the Confederate Army. He at one time was Third Vice President of the Louisville & Nashville Railroad, in charge of the legal department, with headquarters in Nashville, Tenn.

Mr. Wood was considered one of the best-informed men in the country on railway legislation, and in 1912 was Chairman of the Executive Committee of the National Association of Railroad Commissioners.

James L. Taylor.

James L. Taylor, editor and owner of The Dobbs Ferry Register for the last twelve years and Postmaster of that town for the last sixteen years, died on Tuesday night at his New York Winter home, 39 Claremont Avenue, in his fifty-fifth year. He was prominent in the Republican politics of Westchester County for the last quarter of a century.

Mr. Taylor was a passenger returning from Halifax on the Red Cross steamship Stephano when she was torpedoed off Nantucket Lightship in October, 1915, and had never recovered from the cold and shock he suffered when the vessel sunk.

DENIES CRITICISM OF LOAN.

Mrs. H. O. Havemeyer Says Speech at Baltimore Was Misquoted.

Mrs. Henry O. Havemeyer, member of the Advisory Council of the National Woman's Party, emphatically denied last night a report that she had urged Suffragist leaders not to work for the second Liberty Loan. Mrs. Havemeyer was quoted as having, at a Suffrage meeting in Baltimore last Tuesday, denounced the Government for its attitude on the woman suffrage question in general, and its action in regard to White House pickets in particular. She was reported to have said: "I haven't the nerve to ask for money for a battle for democracy when we, who demand true democracy, are thrown into jail for saying so."

A reporter's error was the way in which Mrs. Havemeyer explained the misquotation.

"The newspaper men who reported my speech must have misunderstood me," she declared. "I did subscribe to the last Liberty Loan, and I intend to subscribe to this loan. I would love to get out and work for it. You know I am a suffragist who favors action by Constitutional amendment, and I feel very keenly about my party. I did say that, feeling as I do, I couldn't speak for the loan as heartily as I might wish. I also expressed the wish that we women in America might be given our democracy in order that we, like the women of England, would be better able to reveal the true splendor of American womanhood."

A protest was made at the headquarters of the National American Woman Suffrage Association, 171 Madison Avenue, yesterday, where news of Mrs. Havemeyer's denial of her reported assertions had not been received. The National Board, which was in session all the afternoon, passed a resolution repudiating Mrs. Havemeyer's reported words and urging the members of the association to work for the success of the second Liberty Loan.

"The last thing I did before I left Washington last Friday," said Dr. Anna Howard Shaw, Honorary President of the association, and Chairman of the Women's Committee of the Council of National Defense, "was to urge the women of the country to put aside all other service until the Liberty Loan was raised. Mrs. Havemeyer, in speaking as she does, represents her own opinion, but not that of the great body of suffragists in this country."

Mrs. Carrie Chapman Catt, National President, who is a member of the Liberty Loan Committee, said that Mrs. Havemeyer's reported statements were not representative of the feelings of the big body of suffragists.

"There was not a State in this Union," said Mrs. Catt, "where the organized suffragists did not work for the last Liberty Loan."

Special to The New York Times.

BALTIMORE, Md., Oct. 3.—The activities of the Just Government League of Maryland, before the members of which Mrs. Henry O. Havemeyer of New York spoke yesterday, and its publication, The Maryland Suffrage News, have been called to the attention of the District Attorney's office here. The local committee issued a statement today criticising the meeting.

Naval Surgeon Allen's Body Here.

The body of David Gordon Allen, late Surgeon in the United States Navy, was brought to an Atlantic port yesterday on a British freighter. He had died on board a cruiser crossing the Atlantic and his body was landed at St. Michaels in the Azores, to be shipped home.

GIANTS END SEASON WITH DOUBLE VICTORY OVER PHILLIES AND START WESTWARD

GIANTS WIN TWO IN SERIES REHEARSAL

First Game with Phillies Sees McGraw's Clan Arrayed as It Will Face White Sox.

FERDIE SCHUPP ON MOUND

Holds Moran's Men Hitless During His Four Innings in Box—Rookies Take Second Fray.

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, Penn., Oct. 3.—The obsequies of the National League season were held here today, 3,000 mourners suffering as the Phillies went down in a double defeat by the Giants. The cream of McGraw's talent, lined up just as it will face the White Sox in Chicago on Saturday, ran away with the first game, 11 to 1, while a troupe of rookies won the second game, 6 to 0. The event gave New York the official grasp on the National League championship. The Giants won 98 games and lost 56, an average of .636. They won over the Phillies by a margin of ten games.

The Giants held a regular full dress rehearsal in the first game, with the fielding, batting, and pitching power turned on to the limit. Zimmerman and Herzog did some fielding tricks which were astonishing, while Ferdie Schupp showed that he was in great shape, holding the Phils hitless during the four innings he was on the hillock. The Giants made nineteen hits off Lavender and Fittery, one a homer, and seven two-baggers. Why, even Jim Thorpe got the fever and laced out a couple of hits.

McGraw had his men on their toes in this first session, and they looked like real champions. The two scouting Chicagoans, Eddie Collins and Cicotte, got their four eyes full today. As a final rehearsal the Giants' performance was a whoop of a success. They all knew their parts perfectly, and if they don't stutter and hem and haw at the first performance of the world's series circus in Chicago Saturday, their part of the show ought to be a success.

Giants Off for Chicago.

Just as soon as the season was declared interred the Giants hurried into their latest Fall clothes, boarded the Manhattan special, and started on a swift flight for the Great Lakes region, where they have an important date to keep with a certain crowd of Chicago citizens.

It cost Joe Oeschger, the Quaker twirler, just $500 for losing the second game to McGraw's kid players. Joe was to have received a bonus of $500 if he won fifteen games this season. He had won fourteen up to today, and he thought he already had the money in his wallet when he was sent against the rookies. McGraw's youngsters, however, proved about as effective as the pennant winners, so Oeschger will have to give Palm Beach the go-by this Winter.

The Giants' first run in the opening game came in the nature of a gift from Johnny Evers in the second inning. After Burns singled to left, Herzog hit a grounder at Evers, who was trying his hand at third base, and he threw the ball high over Luderus's head. Burns scoring and Herzog going to third. Herzog scored on Zimmerman's single to left.

Lavender got a hard bumping in the fourth. Robertson poked a homer over the barricade in centre field. Holke singled to left, and McCarty's fly sailed to Whitted. Schupp doubled to left, sending Holke to third. Burns's sharp grasser through short scored Holke and Schupp, Burns going to second. Then Herzog's single to centre pushed Burns across.

Fletcher Hits in Vain.

Fletcher made a rousing double in the fifth, but he was declared out by Lord Byron for batting out of order. A bonehead play by the typesetter who set up the score card caused the mistake. Fletcher didn't care, for in the next inning he got another two-bagger. He went to third on Holke's single, and when Rariden grounded to Dugey, Fletcher was run down between third and home, Rariden going to third on the play. He scored on Smith's out at first.

Schupp pitched four innings and didn't give a hit. Pearce got the first Philadelphia hit when he got a lucky double off Smith in the fifth, Kauff losing the ball in the sun. Kauff got an infield single in the seventh, and Zim's single sent him to third. Jim Thorpe, batting for Robertson, doubled to left, scoring Kauff and sending Zim to third. Heinie was run down at the plate after Fletcher grounded to Fittery. Holke's single sent Thorpe home.

The Phils saved themselves from a whitewash in the seventh, when Luderus singled and scored on Dugey's double to centre. The Giants kept up the fusillade in the ninth, and singles by Zimmerman and Robertson, followed by Holke's double, gave McGraw's men two more runs.

A flock of Giant understudies infested the second game, the collection being a crowd of perfect strangers to the natives here. With two down in the second, Jimmy Smith doubled to right and scored on Gibson's single. Smith was then excused for the day. Young doubled in the third and scored on Baird's single. Kauff's one-base rap sent Baird to second; Thorpe's out sent the runners along a station, and when Hemmenway got a scratch hit Baird scored, but Kauff was out at third.

McGraw's kindergartners got another in the fifth. Ross Young, the "phenom" from Texas, soaked a three-bagger to centre and scored on Baird's single. This Young plays ball like an oldtimer and looks like the best of all the colt players.

Young slammed out another triple in the seventh and scored on Baird's single. The rookies' final count came in the eighth, when Onslow doubled, went to third on an out, and scored on Young's sacrifice fly. Young was one busy lad. The Giants used Anderson and Tesreau as pitchers for four innings, and then George Kelly made his début as a boxman. He's a better pitcher than he is a pinch-hitter.

DODGERS DIVIDE HONORS.

Fail to Dislodge Braves in Seething Contest for Sixth Place.

Last reports from the Flatbush frontier had the Brooklyn Robins a little more definitely fixed in seventh place in the final standing of the National League season of 1917. Yesterday at Ebbets Field the champions of last year split the honors of a double-header with their rivals for sixth place, the Boston Braves, and nothing short of beating Boston in the season's closing two games this afternoon will save the leaders of a year ago from next to the last rung in the league ladder.

Before a crowd of about 500 shivering fans the Bostons disposed of the Robins in the first game in a businesslike fashion. Sturdy stickwork produced a victory by 9 to 3. In the second encounter conditions were reversed, and Brooklyn won, 3 to 1. The only thing that reminded the handful of fans of the champions of last year was the calico flying to the breeze from the fence in centre field, which boldly declared Brooklyn champions of the N. L., 1916. Otherwise things happened as they did in years before 1916. The crowd was impassive; it hardly emitted a full-sized cheer through the two games.

Brooklyn never really got started in the opening encounter, although they did manage to show in front for the first inning. Larry Cheney was chosen by Manager Robinson to tame the Braves, but Larry works best on warm days, and yesterday wasn't warm at all. The result was that veteran Larry was relieved of further duty in the fifth, after Boston had jumped to a lead of 4 to 1. Colby Jack Coombs went to the mound in the sixth, but he was less effective than Cheney. The first Brave to face him, Covington, belted a home run to left centre, and then Smith tripled to left. All told four Braves' runs were tallied before the third out, and this was enough for Colby Jack. In the seventh Jack Miljus went in and he prevented any further serious outbreaks.

The Robins gave vent to their feelings in the second game and humiliated Lefty George Tyler for the suffering that had been imposed in the opener. Rube Marquard twirled for the Robins and while he allowed more hits for Boston than Brooklyn collected off Tyler, the Rube kept himself out of danger while his teammates batted out a victory and played good defensive ball.

DR. ADAMS HAS BEST SCORE.

Won Prize for Best Gross Card in Union League Club Golf Tourney.

Forty-five golfers, members of the Union League Club, played over the links of the Knollwood Country Club yesterday in their annual one-day tournament. Theindividual honors were won by Dr. W. Adams, who carried off the prize offered for the best gross score with a card of 75, and in addition was one of the winning team in a four-ball match in the afternoon. Dr. Adams' partner in the afternoon competition was J. G. Robinson and their card was the best returned of any of those who took part. Dr. Adams further displayed his prowess with the clubs by finishing second in the battle for the low net prize. This was won by Dr. C. S. Carter, whose card showed 84, 16-68, while Dr. Adams was second, with 75, 6-69.

YANKS' SAD STORY HAS HAPPY ENDING

They Win Last Half of Twin Bill from Macks as Curtain Drops on Their Season.

Whatever have been the shortcomings of the Yankees, and even the most ardent fan will not deny that there have been many, at least there was a happy ending to the season of lost hopes at the Polo Grounds yesterday when the Donovan clan secured the last game of a double header with the Athletics and gracefully bade adieu to about 300 hardened baseball fans, who braved the cold to see the last act of the baseball tragedy. The score of this game was 3 to 2, and it was won by a spirited bit of play and a fine batting rally, which made the Yanks look rather better than sixth position team.

The first half of the double header was not so gratifying, for this went to the Connie Mack men at 3 to 1, but for all that it was good baseball. There was, however, a persistent thought of why play so hard or so well when there was nothing to be gained and nothing to be lost.

Bill Piercy, the same who has worn a Yankee uniform at intervals, took upon himself the task of curbing the Athletics, and the recruit did fairly well, except for the eighth inning of the first game, when his curves lost some of their elusiveness and the pellet bounded away for a series of three singles, which, combined with an unfortunate pass, spilled the game beyond redemption. In one thing at least the Yankees were consistent; they couldn't hit, and hitting has a lot to do with winning most ball games.

It looked for a time as if the second game would go the way of the first, and that the Donovan men would not have even the consolation of a final victory to tide them over the long Winter. The Quakers were not absolutely ferocious. However, for a team in last place they played with rather more than expected strength, and by dint of timely hitting and a wild pitch on the part of J. Franklin Baker, sometime home-run hitter of ability, the Athletics garnered a 2 to 1 lead, which looked as comfortable as an old shoe when the game passed the seventh inning stage.

No one expected the Yankees at this late moment in the struggle to rise in wrath and flay the ball in a way that would snatch them from the brink of a painless baseball death. When Pipp loosed up a smashing single through the box that Myers never even saw at the start of the eighth inning, the peanut venders stopped shouting their wares and took note of the game. Lamar, who had been doing some nifty fielding, singled to right, and the rally was fairly started. Then came Vick with a double to left that scored Pipp. Fewster walked, and Nunamaker sailed a sacrifice fly to left that gave Lamar the opportunity to score. Mogridge forced Vick at third and Miller flied out to centre.

The mention of Mogridge's name is a reminder that it was he who saved the last game of the season. Recruit McGraw was on the mound for two innings, and while his delivery was not much damaged, still one run was scored by the Athletics, and more were in sight. Furthermore, even the dyed-in-the-wool fans were getting peeved at his deliberate pitching. Just about three minutes elapsed between the balls he pitched, and it was dreary and cold in the stands.

Somebody, not Bill Donovan, for he was in the stand himself, decided that torture was not advisable, and Mogridge went in and pitched masterly ball. He omitted the long pauses, wherefore the game of an hour and fourteen minutes stands as almost a record for the Yankees, who, whether they win or lose, are in the habit of devoting a couple of hours or more to the fray.

New York scored the first run, a pass to Baker and a single by Pipp through short contributing the situation for a double steal that worked well, Baker romping home. The Athletics tied things up in the next inning after two were down. Shannon singled to right and stole second. He scored when Grover singed to left. In the sixth inning Jamieson singled to right, and Baker's wild toss of Witt's grounder, on which he made a pretty stop, let Jamieson complete the circuit.

JOHNSON BLANKS RED SOX.

Victory Brings with It Trophy Offered by 101st U. S. A. Regiment.

BOSTON, Oct. 3.—Walter Johnson piloted Washington to a 6 to 0 victory over Boston today. He outpitched Ruth, who performed for Boston, and with the bases filled in the eighth inning cleared them with a two-base drive.

Johnson was presented a large silver trophy for his triumph. The cup was offered by the associates of the 101st U. S. A. Regiment, formerly the Ninth Massachusetts, to the pitcher of the winning team. The Boston club's share of the gate receipts of the game was given to the 101st Regiment.

CONQUERING SOX GET HOME

Practice for World's Series Begins Today—Giants to Meet Cubs.

Chicago, Sept. 3.—Bringing with them the first championship Chicago has won in the American League in 11 years, the White Sox returned today to begin final practice for the world's series with New York, which begins Saturday.

Practice will be started tomorrow morning, Manager Rowland announced. The players will be kept on the field practically all day. Rain prevented the practice game today with the Cleveland Americans. The players received congratulations from Charles A. Comiskey, owner of the club, during the afternoon. Tonight they were banqueted by the Woodland Bards, an organization composed of Mr. Comiskey's friends. Covers for 1,500 persons were laid.

Chicagoans will have a final opportunity tomorrow to see the New York club in action before the series. The National League champions will play an exhibition game with the Chicago Nationals at Weeghman Park. The contest is designed to put the Giants on edge for the series. The New York club will arrive from Philadelphia at 2 p. m. Automobiles will be waiting to rush them to the ball park.

Manager Rowland of the Chicago club, announced tonight that he would extend an invitation to Manager McGraw of the Giants to use the White Sox field for practice Friday any time the club desires.

"If my team is on the field and McGraw wants to use it, I'll call the players off," Rowland said. "There will be no repetition of the 1914 series when George Stallings, manager of the Boston club, raised a protest because of the alleged turndown he received from Manager Mack of Philadelphia over the use of the Athletics' field for practice."

With the distribution of the reserved and box seats set for tomorrow, scalpers tonight assured inquirers that they would be able to purchase tickets. The speculators said they will place seats on sale at noon tomorrow. The scalpers are asking $50 for three box seats, which sold for $5, and $35 for reserved for the three games. These seats have a face value of $1.50.

Chief of Police Schuettler and a score of his captains will meet tomorrow and officers will form plans to prevent scalping at the ball park. The speculators, if caught, will be arrested.

QUAKERS SCORE AT WILL.

Penn Eleven Overwhelms Albright 73 to 10 in Opening Game.

PHILADELPHIA, Penn., Oct. 3.—The University of Pennsylvania football team overwhelmed the Albright eleven 73 to 10 in the opening game of the season on Franklin Field today. Although minus the services of several 'Varsity players, who have enlisted in the Government service, Pennsylvania smashed through the visitors' line almost at will, scoring ten touchdowns and a field goal.

Yates of Albright, when Pennsylvania put in a team of second string players in the last period, captured a pass, and raced three-quarters of the length of the field for the visitors' only touchdown.

The lineup:

| Penn., (73.) | Postion. | Albright, (10.) |
|---|---|---|
| Maynard | L. E. | Massier |
| Deiter | L. T. | Heisler |
| Gerald | L. G. | Erman |
| Wolfe | R. G. | Shirey |
| Neylon | R. T. | Heisey |
| H. Miller | R. E. | McElwee |
| Bell | Q. B. | Ball |
| Straus | L. H. | D. Miller |
| Light | R. H. | Holman |
| Berry | F. B. | Yates |

Score by periods:

| | | | | | |
|---|---|---|---|---|---|
| Albright | 0 | 3 | 0 | 7 | —10 |

ST. PAUL DOWNS FREEPORT.

Garden City Eleven Wins by a Score of 50 to 0.

St. Paul's School football eleven, showing a marked improvement over their form of a week ago, yesterday trounced the eleven of Freeport High School in a one-sided game on the former's gridiron at Garden City, L. I., by the score of 50 to 0.

Against the efforts of the Freeport team the work of the Garden City eleven was easily effective, the latter aggregation employing the forward pass successfully on four different occasions. Touchdowns were made by Bigelow and Peixotto, who made two each; Johnson, three, and Vanderbilt one, while Cole kicked two goals from touchdown. The touchdown by Vanderbilt was the most spectacular, coming, as it did, after a spirited twenty yards dash through the Freeport line.

N. Y. U. HAS SIGNAL DRILL.

Formations Rehearsed for Opening Game of Season.

With the first game only two days distant, the coaches at New York University yesterday laid particular stress on signal drill, as well as actual scrimmage. Both before and after the scrimmage the squad was put through a signal drill, using all plays and formations. In the scrimmage both the scrubs and regulars were given opportunities at offense and defense in order to let the coaches rehearse each play under game conditions. Delayed runs and the forward pass were both tried. At the latter play Gardiner, a newcomer from the School of Commerce, showed an uncanny ability to pick the pigskin out of the air.

Yesterday marked the first appearance of Fernandez, who has returned to college and is trying for the position of tackle, for which his height and weight well fit him. Another newcomer in the regulars' lineup yesterday was Crams, a medical student, who plays in the backfield.

The combination that was used most and seemed to give the best results in the tussle with the scrubs was Brin, centre; Goldberg and Billo, guards; Fernandez and Sokolower, tackles; Gilloon and Gardiner, ends; Egan, quarter back; Hammerschlag and Crams, half backs, and Covello, full back.

FORDHAM WORKOUT HARD.

Both Elevens in a Lively Scrimmage for Friday's Game.

The Fordham football squad had its final practice yesterday for the game with the Red Cross Ambulance eleven at the Allentown camp on Friday. A half hour's scrimmage between the first and second teams and a long signal drill for both elevens brought about the hardest workout of the week.

As the Varsity took the offensive all the afternoon Coach McCaffery tried out several of the scrub backs behind the first team's line. Galligan, the former High School of Commerce player made several good gains by clever dodging and fast running.

Brennan, the lanky fullback, pulled a tendon in his thigh in the final play, but will probably play in Friday's game. Bill Erwig, Fordham's crack back, did not get into uniform yesterday. His poisoned hand is still bandaged and there is little possibility that it will have healed sufficiently to allow him to play on Friday. Colletti will probably play left halfback.

Axelson Is Official Scorer.

CHICAGO, Ill., Oct. 3.—G. A. Axelson, baseball editor of The Chicago Herald, tonight was chosen by the Baseball Writers' Association of America as official scorer of the world series games to be played in Chicago.

STRAIGHT FORWARD IN VAN BY A NOSE

Wins Stirring Race from Leochares at Aqueduct—Fairy Wand Scores Upset.

Gifford A. Cochran's Fairy Wand provided one of the greatest shocks of another day of surprises at Aqueduct yesterday by winning the Arverne Handicap for three-year-olds from a high-class field, which included Corn Tassel and Manister Toi, both heavily supported by the talent. Neither of the fancied ones ran in the money, as two other long shots, Ticket and Koh-I-Noor were close on the heels of Fairy Wand.

Though the Arverne was the advertised feature it was put in the shade by the stirring race which the prowess of Handicapper Vosburgh brought about in the second event, a handicap at six and a half furlongs. Half a dozen went to the post for this dash and at the finish a good sized horse blanket would have covered the first four horses, with the favorite, W. P. Orr's Leochares, just nosed out for first money by R. T. Wilson, Jr.'s Straight Forward.

Leochares carried the top weight of 126 pounds and started an odds on favorite. It appeared as if nothing except hard luck could keep him from winning and he had plenty of that from the moment the barrier went up. Even Buxton in the saddle could not get him away as fast as the others and they closed around him so that the fast breaking Ultimatum and Garbage had a clear field out in front.

Paddy Whack also was pniched off at the start and with Ultimatum leading Garbage by two lengths and the latter three lengths in front of the next horse it looked as though there would be little competition as the leaders entered the stretch. The real race had only begun at that time, however, and after going all round his field, Leochares began to close stoutly.

Garbage gave way quickly under the increased pace, but in falling back his rider managed to make the path more difficult for Leochares, and for a moment Buxton appeared to relax his efforts in what looked to be a hopeless chase. Ultimatum began to stop then and Buxton resumed riding in earnest.

The hesitation was fatal to the top weight's chances, for Paddy Whack, which had slipped through on the rail, and Straight Forward, were both bearing down on the tiring leader. Leochares joined the bunch which was almost in a straight line twenty yards from the finish, but the desperate rush came too late as Straight Forward poked his neck out between Ultimatum and Paddy Whack just far enough to beat Leichares by a nose. Ultimatum, a neck back, was only a nose in front of Paddy Whack.

All three placed horses in the Arverne showed immense improvement over their recent efforts and aided by light weights outran Corn Tassel from the break. Manister Toi's chances were ruined by the start which found him unprepared. Fairy Wand had a world of speed and quickly opened a gap of five lengths. Koh-I-Noor also ran away from Corn Tassel on the back stretch and at the turn the favorite was hard driven in an effort to keep in front of the usually slow beginner, Ticket.

McTaggart took Corn Tassel in to the rail in the stretch while Troise took the outside path with Ticket. With all the leaders finishing resolutely Corn Tassel never had a chance to get by them, but Ticket came with such a rush that he was only half a length behind Fairy Wand. Koh-I-Noor was third a neck behind and a length and a half in front of Corn Tassel. The time of 1:38 showed that the latter had been set a hard task, as he carried 124 pounds.

MRS. LE ROY IS VICTOR.

Wins Women's Championship at West Side Tennis Club.

Playing tennis of superlative quality, Mrs. Robert Le Roy won the women's tennis championship of the West Side Tennis Club yesterday afternoon at Forest Hills when she scored a decisive triumph over Miss Edith White in straight sets at 6—1, 6—2. Mrs. Le Roy showed great steadiness in the deep court and her drives were cleverly placed to the confusion of her opponent. Miss White tried gamely to stem the attack, but her play was not severe enough or steady enough to cause Mrs. Le Roy the lease worry, and the latter went along merrily to victory.

The doubles event reached the final round with the playing of both semi-final round matches yesterday. In this tournament Mrs. Le Roy was not so successful, for, paired with Mrs. L. G. Morris, she was forced to bow to the superior playing of Mrs. Marshall McLean and Mrs. George L. Chapman. Mrs. Le Roy and Mrs. Morris took a love set at the start of hostilities, but were forced to see the contest go against them from then to the close. Mrs. McLean and Mrs. Chapman took the second set at 6—1 and the third at 7—5, after a spirited bit of play that held a tantalizing element of doubt until the final point was finished off.

The other team to come through the semi-final round was made up of Mrs. de Forest Candee and Miss Gertrude Della Torre. They defeated Miss Edith White and Miss Eleanor Goss at 6—3, 6—1.

MANY UPSETS AT LAUREL.

Favorites Badly Beaten in Four of the Races Run Yesterday.

LAUREL, Md., Oct. 3.—The Cleveland Stable's Dorcas, one of the most consistent performers of the season, was entirely overlooked when the chances of the big field for the Howard Selling Stakes were considered today. Dorcas was one of those placed in the field in the mutual speculation, and when she finished in the van those who took tickets on the field received $31.80 for a $2 ticket. The race was an entire upset, as Right, which finished second, paid $23 for a place, and Ask Ma, the third, also was one of the despised field. Deckmate and Viewpoint, the Hildreth entry; Prince Henry, and Gloomy Gus received the play that made the long prices against the placed horses.

There were other big upsets when Risponde won the third race for two-year-olds at better than 20 to 1, when W. A. Burttschell's Highland Lad captured the fifth race from the Brighton Stable's Ed Roche and when W. Scharrard's Perpetual beat Imperator and others in the sixth event.

In the first race J. W. Corrigan's Royal Ensign defeated a field of smart two-year-old fillies, including August Belmont's Jyntee and H. P. Whitney's Ruth Law.

WILLIAM PACES IN 2:00 1-2.

LEXINGTON, Ky., Oct. 3.—Rain caused an early postponement of the harness racing today with only one race, the 2:18 trot, finished. The Phoenix Hotel Stakes, for free-for-all pacers, went over until tomorrow with William and Miss Harris M. each with a heat to their credit. William, on the pole, led all the way in the first heat, and managed to stall off the stretch challenge of Miss Harris M. The time of this heat—2:00½—equals the season's race record. Miss Harris M. won the second heat in 2:02¾, laying the program over until tomorrow.

The only race finished was the 2:18 trot, won by Allerton Heir in slow time.

Tommy Direct and Mary Rosalind Parr, each took a heat in the 2:09 pace, and the horses were scoring for the third heat, when a shower came, rendering the track too slippery to be safe for racing.

ARDSLEY WOMEN WIN.

Defeat Golf Team of Hudson River Country Club 11 to 0.

Women golfers of the Ardsley Club defeated the representatives of the Hudson River Country Club on the former's links yesterday in the only match decided in the Westchester Division of the Women's Metropolitan Golf Association team play tournament. The score was 11 to 0.

The match scheduled between the Apawamis Club and the Dunwoodie Country Club's women golfers went by default to the latter organization.

The scores:

| ARDSLEY CLUB. | | HUD. RIVER C. C. | |

MISS WAGNER ADDS TO TENNIS LAURELS

Captures Singles Honors in New York Lawn Tennis Club's Tournament.

Miss Marie Wagner, holder of the women's national indoor tennis championship, added another victory to her many successes of the season yesterday when she won the singles honors in the open tournament at the New York Lawn Tennis Club. It has been noticeable through the entire Summer that Miss Wagner was playing with superb skill, and yesterday was no exception; in fact, it seemed at times that she was in command of an even stronger game than in mid-Summer.

To achieve her victory yesterday she had to defeat two formidable players. In a semi-final round match she was opposed by Miss Helene Pollak and there was astonishment when she triumphed in two love sets. The final was played against Miss Bessie Holden, and again the quality of the champion's game was manifest, and she won at 6—2, 6—1.

In playing against Miss Pollak, Miss Wagner showed every angle of finished tennis play. She hit hard and true, her deliberate placing down the lines and across court proving far too strong for Miss Pollak. The latter was handicapped somewhat by an effort to change her style of play. In the past it has been noticeable that Miss Pollak had a pronounced weakness on her backhand. She seldom played a backhand stroke, preferring to run around the ball. Miss Pollak is now endeavoring to develop her backhand, and the playing of such shots yesterday in preference to going around the ball and taking it on her forehand undoubtedly weakened her game.

A keen struggle was expected in the final when Miss Wagner faced Miss Holden. Miss Holden did start well and ran off the first two games of the opening set, but there a halt was called. Miss Wagner carried off six straight games for the set and won the opening two in the second set before Miss Holden could again secure a game. This was the last game that Miss Holden won, Miss Wagner's spirited attack carrying her along to an easy victory.

SINGLES.—Semi-Final Round—Miss Marie Wagner defeated Miss Helene Pollak, 6—0, 6—0; Miss Bessie Holden defeated Mrs. Samuel Waring, 6—1, 6—4.
Final Round—Miss Marie Wagner defeated Miss Bessie Holden, 6—2, 6—4.

DOUBLES.—Second Round—Mrs. Ingo Hartman and Miss Helene Pollak defeated Mrs. Bernard Stenz and Miss Edith Bagg, 6—4, 1—6, 7—5.
Semi-Final Round—Miss Helen Bernhard and Miss Helene Pollak defeated Mrs. Ingo Hartman and Miss Caroma Winn, 7—5, 6—4.

Silk Underwear Much Sought.

Never before, it is said in the trade, has silk underwear for women been so much in popular demand as during the Fall season thus far. And while once the mere fact that a garment was silk was enough to make it sell, now, it is said, cheap silk or skimpily cut garments are not acceptable. The call is for quality in materials and workmanship and trimmings, and price seems to cut but a small figure. Though crêpe de chine and washable satins still hold the lead, novelties also are moving vigorously. Pink is everywhere the prevailing color, with blue in many instances running a close second.

Silk Market Still Inactive.

Dullness, according to report, continues in the local silk market with but little interruption. Prices, however, seem to be holding up fairly well with the possible exception of taffetas, in which here and there, it is said, there has been more or less price shading to get business. Crêpe de chine is not quite so active as last week, though other crêpes and georgettes are said to be holding up very well. Satins, in the darker colors for Fall and Winter and the lighter shades for Spring, are fairly active. Feeling throughout the trade, in spite of the momentary dullness, is good, and renewed demand is anticipated in the near future.

Women's Neckwear in Demand.

Manufacturers of women's neckwear, as a result of the coming into prominence of the high-necked collar, are said to be doing a thriving business. Filet, because of its durability and because it launders easily, is said to be most favored for general use. Satin for semi-formal occasions is also a large item, being particularly well adapted to the narrow roll shapes that are the mode. The impossibility of laundering satin collars, however, is pointed to as an indication that continued reorders will result in such expense to the purchaser that ultimately they will be discarded as impractical. Domestic embroidery and handiwork are said to be getting a fair share of the increased sales in neckwear.

Gray Goods Prices Higher.

Higher prices on gray cloths in this market followed the further rise in cotton here yesterday, and, while there was plenty of inquiry reported, especially for printcloths, business was hampered because most of the propositions made by buyers had to be referred to the mills for final acceptance. Because of this, the actual yardage disposed of was not as large as would otherwise have been the case. Notable among the day's business were sales of nearby 38½-inch 64-60s at 10 cents, with an eighth more asked for spots. Business into 1918 also was reported on this construction, and it was said that if any buyer got the goods out for this delivery under 10 cents he did well. More or less scattered business was done on other printcloths and on heavy bag sheetings. In several cases, however, the prices quoted below were what the mills wanted for spot goods, rather than those established by actual sales:

The Buyers Are Getting Wise.

The delays that buyers of knit goods have met with in the last several seasons, in getting deliveries of orders that were held off a bit, are apparently responsible for the amount of business that is being taken by jobbers' salesmen now on the road with Spring lines. In spite of the increased prices, buyers are said to be covering their needs much more fully than it was expected would be the case, particularly in view of the fact that formal openings have not yet been made by certain factors in the trade and that the salesmen are on the road with some lines missing from their samples. The current season is not producing much in the way of news, aside from the complaints that are heard about slow deliveries. In the primary markets there is very little new in relation either to Spring or Fall goods.

Drug Prices Still Advancing.

Drug and Chemical Markets will say today that the stringency of supplies of crude materials of this kind has limited transactions here in the last week and caused a further advance in prices. Some manufacturers who are filling Government orders find it difficult to make deliveries on outstanding contracts. Distillers have lowered the price of denatured alcohol, and reductions also have been made in acetphenetidin, caffeine alkaloid, and refined camphor. The requisitioning of vessels by the Government is causing some uneasiness among exporters. Complaints of delays in obtaining export permits and difficulty in getting shiping room are still heard.

Waistmakers Doing Big Business.

The spurt of the last few weeks in suit sales is is said to be reflected in an increased call for waists, according to a number of local manufacturers. Many of them are said to be doing a larger volume of business this Fall than they have experienced for many years. And the prediction is made by many in the trade that business for next Spring will be even greater. The fact that prices in most cases are way up, due to labor costs advancing from 10 to 15 per cent. and to a 25 to 50 per cent. increase in raw materials, does not seem to be affecting the trade adversely. As usual, the cool weather trade runs mostly to georgette and crêpe de chine.

Big Purchases of Onion Seed.

American buyers have taken practically all of the largest crop of onion seed ever produced in the Canary Islands, according to Consul G. K. Stiles, who is at Teneriffe. Final shipments brought the 1917 value of the seed sent to this country up to $137,289, of which $5,407 worth went to Porto Rico. While good results had been expected, according to Mr. Stiles, even the most optimistic planters were surprised by the great quantities of high-grade seed produced and the large buying orders from the United States. The increased size of these purchases may be gained from comparison with the 1916 and 1915 shipments, which totaled $84,387 and $40,828, respectively.

To Establish New Trade Bureau.

Activities growing out of the appointment some time ago of a Committee on Retail Co-operation by the National Wholesale Dry Goods Association will result in the establishment of a Bureau of Business Economics within the Chamber of Commerce of the United States. This bureau, according to Secretary-Treasurer Thomas A. Fernley of the wholesale association, will work for the co-operation of all activities of merit that are now being carried on by the various national trade associations of the country. These include, among others, the standardization of business methods, elimination of waste, conservation of resources, and the promotion of community development. A meeting will be held soon in Washington, at which the matters in question will be worked out in detail. The proposed bureau will offer an opportunity for constructive work that will be of great benefit to the business interests of the country.

DYE CONCERN INVOLVED.

Court Names Temporary Receivers —Reorganization Plan Attacked.

Judge Hough of the Federal District Court yesterday appointed John W. Herbert and Frank H. Platt temporary receivers of the Federal Dyestuff and Chemical Corporation. The application for the receivership was made by Sullivan & Cromwell, counsel for the Central Foundry Company, whose claim against the Federal Corporation amounts to $14,277, which is the basis of an equity suit now pending in the court. Charles W. Holloway, President of the corporation, consented to the appointment of the receivers.

Another suit against the corporation has been brought by Morton Lachenbruch & Co., investment bankers, who are seeking to prevent the carrying out of a proposed plan of reorganization. It was said that stockholders owning 40,000 shares of the stock of the corporation joined in the suit. The corporation was promoted by Archibald S. White, who conducted a widespread advertising campaign for the sale of the stock at $50 a share. Mr. White announced his retirement from the banking business last March.

The floating debt of the company is about $400,000 and a $2,000,000 note issue will mature next June. A statement of Lachenbruch & Co., issued yesterday, said that the credit of the corporation was seriously impaired, and that new working capital, according to the Directors, was indispensable.

Underwear Jobbers Are Worried.

With memories of the way they were importuned for goods during the recent cool weather fresh in their minds, local jobbers of underwear are none too pleased with the prospect of more of it when the temperature drops again. Not only were numbers of telegrams received, asking for deliveries of heavy goods that were on order but delayed, but it is said that in more than one case buyers came back to this market for the sole purpose of getting their merchandise shipped. One of them, who had "happened in" from a nearby town on the day a shipment had been received from a mill by a certain wholesaler, took back nearly half a case of goods with him in an automobile. The jobbers appear just as dissatisfied with present conditions as the retailers, but maintain that they cannot ship goods unless the mills deliver them.

Woolen Rags for Export.

At a meeting held yesterday in the Woolen Goods Exchange of this city representatives of the Rag Dealers' Association, the Reworked Wool Manufacturers' Association, and the Woolen Manufacturers' Association passed a resolution recommending for export the following rags: New and old felts, not woven; plain black, plain blue, plain dark, and plain brown cloth rags. The meeting, at which N. Stevens, Chairman of the Joint Committee of Woolen Manufacturers of the Council of National Defense, presided, was called as a result of a request from the Export Administration Board for suggestions from the woolen trade as to what woolen rags should be permitted for export.

BUSINESS TROUBLES.

In Town.

THE MITCHELL CONTRACTING COMPANY, INC.—A petition in bankruptcy has been filed against the Mitchell Contracting Company, Inc., of 17 Battery Place by these creditors: James S. Laing, $4,049; Macelle I. Van Pelt, $300, and Battery Park Bank, $6,683. It was alleged that the company permitted four creditors—the Terry & Tench Company, Frank McWilliams, Seaboard Equipment Company, and the Seely Engineering Company—to obtain preferences by legal proceedings, whereby the Marshal seized a boat belonging to the company and advertised a sale for Friday. It was incorporated on May 4, 1917, with authorized capital of $10,000.

INDEPENDENT MACHINE AND TOOL CORPORATION.—A petition in bankruptcy has been filed against the Independent Machine and Tool Corporation, manufacturer of gauges and tools for ammunition at 520 West Broadway, by these creditors: Morris Aker, $853; John C. Garand, $885, and Hugh T. Degnem, $184, all on claims for wages. It was alleged the company gave a chattel mortgage for $2,000 to Morris Sussman.

BOULEVARD RESTAURANT COMPANY, INC.—A petition in bankruptcy has been filed against the Boulevard Restaurant Company, Inc., at 950 Southern Boulevard, Bronx, by these creditors: Bronx Farms Co., $139; Benjamin Strumpp, $315, and E. Kronnan, Inc., $135. Judge Hand appointed George Gray Zabriskie receiver. Liabilities are $4,000 and assets $3,000. It did not have sufficient capital to continue.

RUTH PETTICOAT COMPANY.—A petition in bankruptcy has been filed against Max Gavrich, Max Singer, and Louis Margolies, doing business as the Ruth Petticoat Company at 79 East 130th St., by Judah Resner, a creditor for $500.

THOMAS AUTO TRUCK COMPANY, INC.—A petition in bankruptcy has been filed against the Thomas Auto Truck Company, Inc., by Jason G. Lamson for these creditors: Rex Radiator and Manufacturing Company, $447; Hoole & Gesswein, $90; and H. F. Lutters, $52. It was incorporated on Jan. 12, 1916, with capital stock of $250,000.

ARTHUR L. WASHBURNE of Pleasantville, formerly an auto salesman, at 1834 Broadway, this city, has filed a petition in bankruptcy with liabilities of $12,071 and assets of $2,448 in notes and claims.

JAMES J. KEENAN, liquor dealer, at 188 Seventh Avenue, corner of Twenty-first Street, has filed a petition in bankruptcy individually and as partner in the firm of Flaherty & Keenan with liabilities of $50,418 and no assets. Among the creditors are Gilhuly Brothers and J. Chr. G. Hupfel Brewing Company. Flaherty & Keenan bought the saloon on May 1, 1913, it is said, for $25,000.

EUGENE L. ZIMMERMANN, dealer in butter and cheese at 24 North Bond Street, Bronx, has filed a petition in bankruptcy with liabilities of $22,639 and assets of $4,466, consisting of stock, $24; two auto trucks, cost $4,200; fixtures, $200; accounts, $41; and cash in bank, $1. The principal creditors are F. K. Baumert, $6,240; Brown & Root Company, $7,638; and H. E. Coffin-J. W. Meloney Company, $2,591; all of New York City.

WILLIAM J. THOMPSON, advertising solicitor at 156 Fifth Avenue, has filed a petition in bankruptcy, with liabilities $7,351 and assets $170 in office furniture. The liabilities are mainly due religious papers, among them being the Methodist Book Concern, $1,784.

FRANK SEIDEL, manager of the Broadway Inn at Monticello, has filed a petition in bankruptcy, with liabilities $2,274 and assets $1,615.

Receiver Appointed.

PERL, WINTER & CO.—Miss Bertha Rembaugh has been appointed receiver for Pearl, Winter & Co., dealers in fur supplies, formerly at 112 West Twenty-sixth Street. Liabilities are $10,000 and assets $1,000.

MAX KUPPERMAN, dealer in furniture at 777 Westchester Avenue, has filed schedules showing liabilities $4,425 and assets $331 in accounts. The stock has been turned over to an assignee. Value not given.

Stocks Lose More Ground on a Late Afternoon Slump—Bethlehem Shares Weak.

The usual story was repeated yesterday in the stock market, when prices gave way easily before a selling movement in the afternoon after holding fairly firm throughout the earlier part of the session. The afternoon drive was aimed at Bethlehem and carried the prices of that company's shares down at a rate which was a reminder of the most severe breaks that have been seen in the war order stocks. The Bethlehem A shares closed at 87¼, off 7¾, and the B stock, on very heavy dealings, ended the day at 86½, off a full 7 points.

The selling of Bethlehem was not accompanied by any new stories of unfavorable conditions, although it was coincident with publication of a report that the underwriting syndicate for the $30,000,000 of new 8 per cent. preferred stock, which was offered to shareholders at par, had been called upon to take up something like 30 per cent. of the new issue. It had been known for several days that the stockholders were not taking the full amount of the new issue, but the Street was not prepared for the break to 92½ in the price of the new preferred which took place on the outside market yesterday. The public's liking for Bethlehem has undergone a great change since the discovery that the company had found it necessary to enter the market for funds with which to meet the new war taxes.

Numerous other industrial issues were unfavorably affected by the passage of the new war revenue measure without any changes in the bill as it left conference. Mexican Petroleum lost 2 points, Texas Co. 3¼ and Industrial Alcohol, 3. Most of the steel issues declined in sympathy with Bethlehem, United States Steel common ending the session at 108½, off 1⅝. Most of the rails were fractionally lowered, St. Paul touching a new low for this movement at 49¼, while Delaware & Hudson sold off 2½.

Bankers do not like the new war revenue act, but they long since abandoned hope that Congress would take a leaf out of England's book and draft a law that would make saving compulsory among the great mass of people, while leaving them enough of their profits to stimulate them to greater activity. The principal objection to the individual income tax, which is probably peculiar to Wall Street, is that it takes too large a percentage of the big incomes and not enough of the smaller ones; to the excess profits tax, that it penalizes the firm or corporation doing business on borrowed capital and favors competitors amply supplied with capital. It is to be hoped that the expectation held in financial circles that the new law cannot be administered without seriously restricting business activity will not be realized, but no forecasts in this regard can take the place of a test of the law in actual practice.

Money was easier yesterday, most call loans being made at 4½ per cent. The Federal Reserve Bank will discount notes of customers of member banks, backed by a pledge of Liberty bonds or Government certificates of indebtedness, at 3½ per cent., making it possible for the banks to carry subscribers at 4 per cent. with a small margin of profit. Cotton continued its sensational rise on the unfavorable Government report and is now near the highest prices ever reached.

LONDON MARKET IS FIRM.

Marconi Shares Feature of Trading, Especially American Issue.

LONDON, Oct. 3.—Money was in better demand today. Discounts were steady.

The stock market was quietly firm. Scandinavian bonds were in good demand. Argentine rails and Grand Trunk shares recovered, but British funds were dull on the new war bonds. The favorite rubbers and oils were active. Marconis were a feature of the trading, especially the American issues, which changed hands freely over par. There were more markings than usual in the low-priced American rails.

Trading Quiet on Paris Bourse.

PARIS, Oct. 3.—Trading was very quiet on the Bourse today. Three per cent. rentes 60 francs 20 centimes for cash. Exchange on London 27 francs 18 centimes. Five per cent. loan 88 francs 35 centimes.

ADMITS GUARANTY TRUST.

Federal Reserve Board Acts Favorably on Bank's Application.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 3.—The Federal Reserve Board today acted favorably on the application of the Guaranty Trust Company of New York to become a member of the Federal Reserve System.

The step taken by the Guaranty Trust Company is regarded by members of the Federal Reserve Board as one of the most important events connected with the Reserve System since its creation. There are now in the Federal Reserve System, counting the new acquisition, only eighty-five banks that originated under State charters, whereas there are in the United States 26,009 State banks. New York up to this time has had but five State banks that came over to the Federal Reserve System. Chicago, however, has had twenty-four and Boston seven.

The resources of the New York banks of State origin are $199,000,000, while the resources of the Boston banks of the same class are $232,000,000 and those of the Chicago banks $393,000,000. The total resources of the eighty-four banks that preceded the Guaranty Trust Company into the Federal System amounts to $1,217,464,272.

TOPICS IN WALL STREET.

Cotton Hoarding.

A few years ago, when the cotton crop was mortgaged before it was picked, any suggestion that the growers might try to hold it to force prices up by an artificial scarcity would have been ridiculed. It is not being so regarded today. Traders in the cotton market this Fall are seriously discussing the possibility of a movement of this kind, and, what is more, are buying cotton as though they believed it. The South apparently is showing signs of behaving like the $2.20 wheat farmers, or like every other aggregation of human beings who have had a taste of prosperity. With the present trend of cotton prices and the already short crop, 30-cent cotton does not look so far away as 20-cent cotton used to. Whether hoarding can bring that price, whether, if it does, the hoarders will be satisfied with it when they get it, and whether, in any case, the Government will be more regardful of this kind of "patriotism" than it has been of similar brands elsewhere, are questions yet to be answered.

Bethlehem Slump Unsettling.

The slump of Bethlehem Steel issues on the Stock Exchange and the Curb yesterday was a decidedly unsettling development to followers of the market. While there was gossip to the effect that a raid by a number of big bear traders was responsible for the major part of the seven-point declines in the A and B shares, the commission houses paid little attention to it. The feeling was general that further consideration of the excess profits and income tax laws was promoting renewed liquidation of dividend-paying industrials. General Electric sold down nearly 3 points, Industrial Alcohol 3 points, Texas Company 3¼ points, and Western Union 2½ points. It was a distinctly bear day, and, coming after a long series of similar sessions, the nerves of many holders of long stock at higher prices were pretty well frayed by the time the closing gong rang.

New Bethlehem Preferred Depressed.

The dissolution of the syndicate which underwrote the new 8 per cent. Bethlehem Steel preferred stock presumably had an influence on the "when issued" market for these shares on the Curb. The syndicate members took up approximately 30 per cent. of the issue which the stockholders had not subscribed for, and increased offerings in Broad Street carried the quotation down as low as 92⅝ at one time in the afternoon, compared with the subscription price of 100.

Copper Men Compare Notes.

Copper producers have held several meetings this week, seeking to get together all data possible in regard to production and the extent of Government and public requirements up to the middle of next year. It is expected that the producers will be able in a few days to get a line on Government buying, and that when this information is received measures will be taken quickly to ease the situation in respect to private orders. Reports in the trade indicate that consumers are growing more and more anxious to know how much copper they may hope to get in the remainder of the year and the first quarter of 1918.

Steel Prices.

Much the same conditions prevail in the steel as in the copper market. Many steelmakers from interior cities have been coming to New York during the last week to talk over the market outlook with leaders with offices here, and it is expected that next week another conference between the War Industries Board and prominent steelmakers will be held in Washington. The prices so far fixed hardly give manufacturers a basis for working out costs and proper selling prices for many finished articles which, while of much importance to the industry, do not figure among the Government's direct needs.

Stock Prices Forty Years Ago.

One of the real oldtimers in Wall Street, who has been reading THE TIMES for fifty years, has challenged statements that St. Paul and some other railroad stocks had touched the lowest levels in their history in the current decline. According to his recollections, St. Paul in 1875 sold at 10½, which would make 52⅝ as a low price look expensive. Investigation yesterday did not entirely confirm his recollections, but established the fact that in 1875 St. Paul common actually did sell at 25⅝; in 1876 it fell to 18½, and in 1877 it sold at 11. This, so far as can be ascertained, is the real low record for this stock. The same oldtimer recalls that in those after-panic years Illinois Central sold at 41, Lackawanna at 30⅝, Delaware & Hudson at 25⅝, Jersey Central at 5¾, and Norfolk & Western at 8. There are a few people even in the present hard times who would take a chance on buying some of those stocks at those prices today. Incidentally, the reporter of them tells of a friend who bought 1,000 shares of Norfolk & Western at 8. He has them yet.

New Business Ventures.

Secretary Baker's advice to those about to launch new industrial enterprises, not to do so unless they are directly helpful in the war, adds point to the compilation of new incorporations for the month of September made by The Journal of Commerce. It reveals a notable falling off, but none the less a considerable increase over the number of incorporations in September, 1916. The total capitalization listed for September just passed was $257,132,000, against $462,061,900 in August, but for September, 1916, the total was only $216,455,000. The stiffening in money rates, the preparations for the Liberty Loan, and the price-fixing policy of the Government are all believed to have had a share in discouraging ventures involving the securing of capital in any considerable amount.

STEEL MAKERS AWAIT MORE LIGHT ON PRICES

Steel makers have been busy this week trying to work out a basis for doing business under the new fixed prices. It is expected that President Wilson will announce in a few days a list of prices on the several grades of pig iron, on semi-finished steel, and a number of rolled products. The trade looks for this announcement following another meeting at Washington between steel manufacturers and the War Industries Board.

"Many manufacturing users of steel have urgently asked when the new prices will be quoted to the public," says The Iron Age, "whether contracts at higher prices will be readjusted, and what chance private business will have as the Government closes in upon the mills with an increasing volume of priority orders.

"In all the confusion it is clear that the new prices will figure but little in general business for weeks. The decrees of the priority committee at Washington really control the industry, and while Government demand centres on a few lines, that control affects the supply of steel available for other finished forms. On the question of contracts, manufacturers quite uniformly answer that these are to be enforced in the same way as the Lever act provided for the carrying out of fuel contracts.

"Foundry pig iron sales on the $33 basis have been negligible. The largest reported is of 2,000 tons of No. 3 iron at $32 at eastern Pennsylvania furnace, this being in line with $33 for No. 2 foundry. No new sales of Bessemer or basic iron were made, but the announced September averages of $45.45 on Bessemer and $41.34 on basic at Valley furnace indicate that sales at the new prices late in the month were enough to pull down the average materially.

"In finished material further large purchases have been made by the Government at the new prices, and the British Government's negotiations for 400,000 tons of shell steel is of special interest. The Washington Government has figured on an unprecedented scale in the machine-tool market, and contracts just reported aggregate many millions of dollars.

"That the established prices may not uniformly prevail is indicated by transactions in which unheard-of extras have been paid, particularly for plates. There is no provision, moreover, against sales of rejected war material as scrap at prices higher than the schedule."

GOETHALS NEW HEAD OF AIRSHIP CONCERN

SAYS DUTY IMPELS HIM

Will Participate Actively in Corporation's Work—Government Order for 4,000 Motors Now on Its Books.

Major Gen. George W. Goethals was elected President of the Wright-Martin Aircraft Corporation at a meeting of the Directors yesterday. He will take at once an active part in directing the corporation's affairs. Since his retirement as General Manager of the Shipping Board, as the result of friction with Chairman Denman, General Goethals has been engaged chiefly in undertakings of his engineering firm, Goethals, Jamieson, Houston & Jay, 40 Wall Street. As head of the airplane company he will continue to act in an advisory capacity on projects in which his firm is interested.

General Goethals's election as a Director of the Wright-Martin Corporation occurred at the annual meeting of shareholders before the Directors met yesterday. When the other Directors decided to make him President he accepted with this statement:

"I have seriously considered and discussed my acceptance of the position to which you have elected me, and I have accepted it with the view of doing some work that will be useful and assist in the prosecution of the war. My acceptance is from a sense of duty, and for such time as I can be helpful, or during the war period."

J. F. Alvord retired from the Presidency to make way for General Goethals. He was elected temporarily last May when a shake-up in the management occurred. George H. Houston, a partner of General Goethals, is to continue as Vice President and General Manager of the Wright-Martin Corporation. Marshall J. Dodge of Bertron, Griscom & Co. was elected a Director, and the retiring members were re-elected for another year.

The Wright-Martin Corporation recently obtained a large order from the Government for Hispano-Suiza airplane motors. It is understood that the order calls for about 4,000 motors of 250 horse power each, to be delivered before the end of 1918. The output of the Wright-Martin plant at New Brunswick, N. J., is to supplement the Government's production of Liberty motors to equip the airplanes now in process of construction. The company a year ago engaged to build 450 Hispano-Suiza motors, in part for the French Government, and is still at work upon them.

The annual statement yesterday said that as soon as the last of the motors was completed, which would be in a few weeks, the full plant capacity was to be devoted to United States Government work. The balance sheet showed, as of May 31, a profit and loss deficit of $1,930,387, the result chiefly of losses in making the first motors turned out. Cash on hand amounted to $2,570,080, inventories to $1,987,437, and total assets to $10,566,538.

The company manufactures the Simplex automobile. The statement said that the cost of materials had risen so that automobile making was unprofitable. Orders for airplane engines received in recent months, the statement said, had proved profitable because the prices were higher than that fixed for the motors in the original contract.

WOMEN DOCKERS IN JAPAN.

They Handle American Supplies Destined for Russia's Armies.

TSURUGA, Japan, Aug. 20, (Correspondence of The Associated Press.)—Strong-bodied coolie women are carrying the burden of keeping Russia supplied with products of the United States and Canada. At the docks here, the principal port of exchange between Japan and Russia, and the half-way point between America and Petrograd, thousands of tons of freight are moved by the women every time a ship docks.

They smoke cigarettes and sing as they work. Bare-legged, with short skirts, they wrestle with huge boxes and packages that would seem certain to bear them down. Many of the supplies for Russia's armies pass through this port, and the women dock laborers add one more picturesque touch to the natural scenic beauty of the Harbor of Tsuruga.

Now that the Russian frontier is open and the day of the dread of Siberia passed, exiles by the thousands are returning home to Russia. Many of them pass through this port. They are of all classes, all types, and maintain in Tsuruga a chatter so completely Russian that the Japanese merchants now print their signs in duplicate, Russian and Japanese.

WILL CONSULT SHIPPERS.

Commission Announces New Rate Policy—Intermountain Case Reopened.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 3.—The Inter-State Commerce Commission today notified the railroads that hereafter, before granting applications for increased rates, it proposed to place such applications before the shippers interested. The notification was made public in a proposed order upon which argument will be heard Oct. 15. The change is to be made to meet the situation arising out of the recent amendment of the act to regulate commerce, prescribing that no rates shall be increased without the commission's approval. The order will not be made final until after the railroads, shippers and other interested parties have had an opportunity to state their views to the commission.

By an order of the commission the celebrated intermountain rate case was today practically reopened for consideration of new tariffs proposed by the railroads, which would effect increases ranging from 10 to 60 per cent. on about 70 per cent. of the present schedules. Under amendment of the rate law the commission will have to consider each increase on its merits. Thus a final closing of the case probably will long be postponed, as the investigation will be a large task. The whole intermountain territory west of a line drawn north and south through Denver is affected.

COTTON RISES AGAIN

Net Advance of 105 to 125 Points Marks Day of Steadily Climbing Prices.

One day's session was not enough to adjust the cotton market to the surprise of Tuesday's Government crop report, and prices went steadily forward yesterday, closing at a net advance of over a cent a pound for the day, and upward of 2½ cents since Tuesday morning. It was significant yesterday that the buying appeared to be speculative to only a slight extent, but showed a strong and steady trade demand from both foreign and domestic sources. At times some months jumped 40 to 50 points on single sales, and the closing figures were near the highest levels of the day. The net closing ranged from 105 to 125 points above Tuesday's figures, with several months above the 26-cent level.

The action of cotton growers in conference at New Orleans on Tuesday in recommending that cotton be held for a minimum price of 30 cents a pound, may possibly have stimulated the buying movement. A few years ago any suggestion of a concerted holding movement in the South at this season of the year would have been derided in local trade circles, but since the beginning of the war, the South has so demonstrated its ability to market slowly under prevailing financial conditions, that the attitude of the holder has become a matter of prime importance.

The smaller crop figures, combined with the possibility of an early frost, are factors which local traders concede are calculated to promote firmness among growers for the immediate future at any rate, and the volume of hedge selling yesterday was not heavy enough to create contrary sentiment. Otherwise the trade found little in the day's news to attract fresh bullish comment. Immediate weather conditions were considered favorable. The forecast for lower temperatures in the Southwest emphasized the approach of the frost period, but held out no immediate threat of damage, and nothing fresh developed with reference to shipping conditions.

The market opened firm at an advance of 30 to 48 points, and quickly sold 113 to 127 points net higher. This advance was followed by a period of hesitation and irregular fluctuations, after which there was another wave of general buying which sent prices 123 to 130 points above Tuesday's closing figures. A break of about 40 points followed but was partly recovered, prices closing within 15 or 20 points of the top. No exports were reported for the day. Southern spot markets were unchanged to 100 points higher.

WHEAT.

Private crop reports on wheat indicated a yield somewhat in excess of last month's Government estimate of 668,000,000 bushels. The Snow report indicated a total yield of Winter and Spring wheat of 682,000,000, and Clement, Curtis & Co. suggest a crop of 680,000,000. The Price Current said that the Winter wheat acreage this Fall will be by far the largest on record; some sections of Kansas show a gain of 25 per cent. over last year, and conditions are even better, there having been beneficial rains, and plowing and seeding progressed rapidly.

RYE.—Market easy; No. 2 Western, $1.96, cost, insurance, and freight, New York. There is said to be a fair export movement in rye, owing to the delayed receipts of wheat.

CORN.

The corn market showed resistance to bearish influences and closed firm with net gains of ⅜c to ⅝c. There was further evidence of a good demand, and offers were readily taken. Cash corn in the West was a little firmer, with comparatively small offers, and many are now fearing that the early movement of corn will not be large enough to cause much pressure on the market, and farmers appear to have assumed a holding position in all grain, and so far receipts of both wheat and oats have been much below normal. In the local cash market old corn was lower, with No. 2 yellow quoted at $2.08 and No. 2 mixed at $2.03, cost, insurance, and freight, New York.

OATS.

The oats market was rather quiet, but prices were firmer, closing with net gains of ½@⅞c. The December position was particularly strong and the market was influenced by continued light receipts at primary points, which suggested a continued absence of accumulation. The local cash market was firmer; standard quoted at 67@67½c; No. 2 white, 67½c; No. 3 white, 66½@67c; No. 4 white, 66@66½; fancy clipped white, 68½@70½c; ordinary clipped white, 66½@68½c; all elevator.

PROVISIONS.

The provision market was again nervous and irregular, closing steady for lard but lower for ribs and pork. The hog movement is picking up a little, but is still running far below normal, and hog prices were firmer. There is a noticeable tendency, however, to curtail bullish operations, and this is doubtless responsible for the hesitation manifested among buyers. Receipts of hogs at Chicago were 18,000; estimated for Thursday, 11,000. Kansas City received 6,000 and Omaha 7,300 hogs.

COTTONSEED OIL.

While the cottonseed oil market was more or less unsettled by the efforts to curtail outside operations, the undertone was strong and final quotations were 15 to 31 points net higher. Underlying conditions were bullish and the market reflected the influence of the sharp advance in cotton as well as the firmness in crude oil in the South, where sales were said to have been made at $1.20 per gallon. Total sales were 44,900 barrels. Range of prices:

COFFEE.

There was a further decline in the coffee market yesterday. The scattered selling seemed to come from practically the same sources as recently, and was again attributed to liquidation by foreign and domestic longs influenced by the sagging tendency of Brazil. After opening unchanged to 2 points lower, active months sold about 6 to 12 points under the previous closing figures, with December touching 7.15c and May at 7.54c. Rather a better demand developed at these prices, attributed partly to covering, and there were slight rallies, with the market closing at a net decline of 3 to 6 points. Sales, 36,500 bags. The local spot market was quiet and unchanged, at 8½c for Rio 7s and 9⅝c for Santos 4s. Range of prices:

SUGAR.

A statement from the Food Administration says that the distributing trade, including brokers, jobbers and other buyers, do not require licenses at this time, and suggests that refiners and beet producers should sell to their usual trade. There were no sales of raw sugar, but there were buyers at 5⅞c, cost and freight basis, for prompt Cubas, but no sellers at that level. No price changes were noted in refined sugar, the demand continuing fair for new business, with refiners limiting sales. Some plants are reported to be working on part time. Arbuckle remains closed, with the Federal withdrawn. Spot quotations follow: Centrifugal, 6.90c; molasses, 6.02c; cost and freight, 5⅞c.

BUTTER AND EGG MARKET.

BUTTER—Receipts yesterday, 13,970 packages. Less buying interest and a little weaker market for all grades of creamery, both salted and unsalted; the bulk of the sales of extras at 45c. There is a little more pressure to sell storage goods and this having a weakening influence. Renovated well sustained. Ladies quite firm. Packing stock active and stronger. Creamery higher than extras, per lb., 46@46¼; extras, (92 score,) 45c; firsts, (88 to 91 score,) 44½@45½c; seconds, (83 to 87 score,) 43@44c; thirds, 41½@42½c; creamery, unsalted, higher than extras, 47½@48c; extras, 46½@47c; firsts, 45@46c; seconds, 43½@44½c; State, dairy, tubs, finest, 45@45½c; good to prime, 43@44½c; common to fair, 39@42c; renovated, extras, 43½@44c; firsts, 42½@43c; lower grades, 39@42c; imitation creamery, firsts, 40½@41½c; ladles, current make, firsts, 39½@40c; seconds, 38½@39c; lower grades, 37@38c; packing stock, current make, No. 1, 38½@39c; No. 2, 38c; lower grades, 36@37½c.

EGGS.—Receipts yesterday, 18,168 cases. The market continues generally quiet. There is fair call for strictly fancy eggs, and such are generally held steady, but medium and ordinary qualities are in large supply, freely offered, and moving slowly at irregular prices. Very little of the stock arriving is good enough to reach top quotations. The larger part of the Western receipts sells in range of 38@41c. Storage eggs are so dull that values are still almost nominal; general asking prices would have to be cut to do any considerable business. Fancy nearby whites steady; undergrades continue irregular at a very wide range of prices. Fresh gathered extras, per dozen, 45@46c; extra firsts, 42@44c; firsts, 39@41c; seconds, 37@38c; thirds and poorer, 35@36½c; fresh gathered dirties, No. 1, 36@36½c; No. 2 and poorer, 32@35½c; fresh gathered checks, good to choice, dry, 33@34c; undergrades, 30@32c; refrigerator, special marks, fancy, storage and insurance paid, 38½@39c; firsts, storage and insurance paid, 37@38c; seconds, storage and insurance paid, 35½@36½c; lower grades, storage and insurance paid, 34@35c; refrigerator, State whites, 41@42c; State, Pennsylvania, and nearby Western hennery whites, fine to fancy, 58@62c; ordinary to good, 45@57c; gathered whites, good to fine, 42@50c; Western and Southern, gathered whites, 42@48c; State, Pennsylvania, and nearby hennery browns, 48@59c; gathered brown and mixed colors, 42@55c.

MEETINGS AND ELECTIONS.

THE DENVER AND RIO GRANDE RAILROAD COMPANY

165 Broadway, New York, U. S. A.

To the stockholders of

The annual meeting of the stockholders of The Denver and Rio Grande Railroad Company will be held at the principal office of the Company in Denver, Colorado, at 12 o'clock noon on Tuesday, October 16, 1917. The meeting will be held for the election of directors and for the transaction of any other business pertaining to the Company that may properly be brought before it.

There will be presented and submitted to and acted upon by said meeting a proposed amendment to the Certificate of Incorporation and Agreement of Consolidation of the Company, providing for construction, acquisition and operation of lines of railway, telephone and telegraph other than those designated and specified in said Certificate of Agreement, to be effected by adding to Article XI, Section Third, of said Certificate of Incorporation and Agreement of Consolidation the following additional subsections or paragraphs numbered 50, 51, 52, 53 and 54:

50. From a point at or near Cokedale, in Reilly Cañon, in Las Animas County, Colorado, in a general northwesterly or northerly direction along Reilly Creek or its tributaries, by the most feasible route, to the divide between the drainage of Las Animas or Purgatoire River and the Apishapa River, and continuing thence into the valley of said Apishapa River to some point at or near the Village of Gulnare in said valley, all in said Las Animas County, a distance of 15 miles, more or less; with extensions, branches and spurs to mines and industries in the vicinity of said route.

51. From a point at or near Ojo Caliente, in Taos County, New Mexico, in a general northwesterly direction along the Ojo Caliente River to La Madera, in Rio Arriba County, New Mexico, and passing through or into said Taos and Rio Arriba Counties, a distance of 4 miles, more or less; with extensions, branches and spurs to mines and industries in the valley of said River and its tributaries.

52. From a point at or near Helper, in Carbon County, Utah, in a general westerly direction along Spring Canon Creek and its tributaries, to Rains, all in said Carbon County, a distance of 7 miles, more or less; with extensions, branches and spurs to mines and other industries in the vicinity of said route.

53. From a point at or near Thompson, in Grand County, Utah, in a general northerly direction, along the drainage of Thompson Wash, to Neslen, all in said Grand County, a distance of 5 miles, more or less; with extensions, branches and spurs to mines and other industries in the vicinity of said route.

54. From a point at or near Soldier Summit, in Wasatch County, Utah, in a general northeasterly direction by the most feasible route across the divide between the Price River and the Strawberry River, and along the valley of the Strawberry River, to the town of Duchesne; thence in a general easterly direction along the valley of the Duchesne River, via the most feasible route, to some point south of the Fort Duchesne Military Reservation; thence northeasterly across the Asphaltum Ridge to the Town of Vernal, in Uintah County; the same passing through or into Wasatch, Duchesne and Uintah Counties, Utah, a distance of 132 miles, more or less; also with a branch from said point south of Fort Duchesne Military Reservation on the above described route, easterly along the Duchesne River to a point near its confluence with Green River at or in the vicinity of the Town of Ouray in said Uintah County, and all in Uintah County, Utah, a distance of 25 miles, more or less; together with extensions, branches and spurs to communities, mines and industries along the routes specified in this sub-section 54.

The books for the transfer of the Stock of the Company, both Common and Preferred, will be closed for the purposes of the meeting at twelve o'clock noon on Saturday, September 15th, 1917, and will be reopened at ten o'clock A. M. on the day following the annual meeting, or the final adjournment thereof.

The New War Tax Affects YOU

DIRECTLY or indirectly every individual, partnership, association and corporation in the United States will be affected by the new War Revenue Bill which Congress has just passed. Through the Income Tax, the Excess Profits Tax, the Stamp Taxes or some of the other provisions of the Law you will be asked to contribute your share toward the large sums necessary for carrying the war to a successful end.

Do you know how and to what extent you will be taxed? The far-reaching provisions of this law should be fully understood by all individuals and corporations concerned.

The entire War Revenue Bill including the Income Tax will be thoroughly analyzed and explained in our new ninety-six page book which is now in course of preparation and which will be available for free distribution in about ten days. This comprehensive analysis will be an invaluable guide to investors, corporations, and all others directly affected by the law.

A copy of our booklet clearly interpreting the law will be supplied without charge to those interested upon application for booklet 241.

RISE IN MILK PRICE STARTS 4 INQUIRIES

District Attorney and Mayor's Milk Committee Subpoena Dairymen's League Books.

STATE AND NATION TO ACT

John Mitchell, New Food Controller, Will Consult Whitman Today —Hoover to Seek Cause.

The confirmation of John Mitchell as head of the new State Food Control Commission cleared the way yesterday for four important investigations of the mounting cost of necessities, and especially of the cost of milk. Mr. Mitchell went to Albany last night to confer with Governor Whitman on the work of the commission, which will probably have its headquarters in Albany.

This morning the officials of the Dairymen's League, and of the Borden's Condensed Milk Company, responding to subpoenas, will appear in the office of District Attorney Swann with the records of their organizations. The District Attorney announced last night that he hoped to go before the Grand Jury on next Monday with nine specific charges against the Dairymen's League, and that he had requested the production of all available data this morning with the view of obtaining indictments. Among the records of the Dairymen's League asked for are minutes of proceedings, books of deposits, contracts with farmers and dealers, and lists of officers and members.

At 10 o'clock tomorrow morning the same officials of the Dairymen's League, carrying practically the same records, will appear in the Assembly Room of the Department of Health at the first public hearing to be conducted by Mayor Mitchel's new Committee on Milk. Commissioner of Accounts Wallstein will question the witnesses at this hearing. And within a few days a fourth inquiry probably will be undertaken by a Federal Food Controller for the State, to be named by Herbert Hoover. It is possible that Mr. Hoover may appoint John Mitchell, in which case the inquiries of the State and Federal boards may be joined.

None of these proceedings, however, seemed to be considered seriously by the officials of the Dairymen's League, and R. D. Cooper, its President, sent the following telegram last night to Governor Whitman:

October 3, 1917.

Governor Charles S. Whitman,
Executive Chamber, Albany.

Dear Sir: Now that the Food Commission has been appointed, the Dairymen's League requests that the commission at once investigate the milk situation and the correctness of our position.

R. D. COOPER,
President of the Dairymen's League.

Says Swann Plays Politics.

Of the investigation being conducted by District Attorney Swann Mr. Cooper said:

"The sole purpose of Mr. Swann's investigation is to make political capital. Nevertheless, we will, of course, produce the records he desires. We would produce them without any subpoenas. We will be there, as he desires."

Of the inquiry undertaken by the Mayor's Milk Committee, Mr. Cooper said:

"The officials of the Dairymen's League were requested to appear before the committee by Dr. Charles E. North, its Chairman. Dr. North called our office on the telephone and left word in my absence. We will gladly respond. I shall attend the hearing, accompanied by F. H. Thomson, Vice President, and Albert Manning, the Secretary, of the Dairymen's League. As I understand it, the committee will inquire particularly into the cost of production, and the league has requested Professor G. F. Warren of the State College of Agriculture to bring to the meeting data compiled by his college on the cost of dairying. We have asked him to be a witness so that the committee may have the benefit of unbiased and disinterested testimony, and because the league has taken into consideration the figures of the college in establishing a fair basis for the prices asked by the dairymen."

Mr. Cooper said it was not true, as had been charged, that the league controlled 90 per cent. of the cows in the six States in which it operates.

"Our records show that there are 1,351,572 cows in New York State," he said, "and the members of the league own only 436,033 of these cows. This shows that our members own only 32 per cent. of the cows. In that part of Pennsylvania in which we operate there are 51,857 cows, of which our members own 6,239; in New Jersey there are 30,279 cows in our territory, of which 2,266 are owned by our members; in Connecticut there are 6,856 cows in the territory covered by the league, of which our members own 588; in Vermont we have members in territory in which there are 4,218 cows, and of these we have 268, and in Massachusetts of 1,324 cows in the territory in which we have members, we have only 106 cows. This shows just how much of a monopoly we enjoy."

Mr. Cooper added that the league had "no reason to believe that John Mitchell, the head of the State Food Control Commission, is not a fair, square man."

Abnormal Profits Immoral.

Mr. Mitchell was not able yesterday to talk at length on the plans of his commission, but he said that "the milk situation, of course, will be one of the subjects to be inquired into.

"This is a very important question, and vitally affects the people of New York. I do not want to make a general statement at this time, but, of course, it is highly immoral for any one to take advantage of the nation's stress to gain profits. I think that so far as lies within the power of the State and the Federal Government normal prices should be maintained."

Mr. Mitchell said that the headquarters of the new State Food Control Commission probably would be in Albany, although meetings of its members to learn food conditions would be held in many cities.

"When I talk to Governor Whitman tomorrow we probably will decide when and where the commission is to meet, and lay out a plan of work," he said. "I take it for granted that the headquarters will be in Albany, since that city is more convenient for the other Commissioners as a meeting place than New York."

Mr. Mitchell explained that he would retain his place as Chairman of the State Industrial Commission, a position he has held for two years and a half, and that he would conduct both offices by leaving more of the details than heretofore to his subordinates.

The District Attorney and the Mayor's Committee devoted most of their time yesterday getting ready to interrogate the officials of the Dairymen's League. The Mayor's Committee selected Dr. North as its Chairman at a meeting at the Department of Health. He is a sanitarian and Secretary of the National Counsel on Milk Standards. The other members are Willim Collins, an orgnizer for the American Federation of Labor; E. B. Lewis, Advisory Counsel of the Department of Health, and Bailey B. Burnett, General Director of the Association for Improving the Condition of th Poor. It will have its headquarters in the Municipal Building. In addition to Commissioner Wallstein, who will question the witnesses, the committee selected Dr. E. C. Levy, until recently the health officer of Richmond, Va., as a special investigator.

"This is not to be a talkfest," said Dr. North of the coming hearings, "but real business."

Milk Dealer Forced to Quit.

Assistant District Attorney James E. Smith, in direct charge of the Prosecutor's milk inquiry, announced yesterday that he had received the following statement from Louis Cavans, a milk dealer of 308 Greenwich Street:

"A few days prior to Oct. 1 I went to the offices of the Dairymen's League at 110 West Fortieth Street and saw President Cooper and Messrs. Thomson and Manning, and asked about new contracts for the coming year. I refused to sign a contract they handed me. I told them that I could not afford the prices. I was told I'd have to pay $3 per 100 pounds of milk containing 3 per cent. of butter fact and $4 for milk richer than 3 per cent. in butter fat. The officials of the league said to me: 'Our price is stated in the contract. You can sign that or not. We will notify farmers not to deliver milk to you on Oct. 1 or after.' No milk was delivered, and when I asked farmers who had been delivering milk to me why it was, they replied: 'We have orders from the Dairymen's League not to deliver until you sign the contract.' I said it would mean bankruptcy for me, and I got the reply that 'this is a matter involving the existence of the league, and we can't give you any milk until the officers of the league tell us to.'"

As a result, Cavans said, he was compelled to close his place of business.

In a statement to Assistant District Attorney Talley, yesterday, John F. McCauley, treasurer of the Model Dairy Company, doing business at 248 Eighth Avenue, said he was a member of the New York State Milk Dealers' Conference Board, which had been compelled to submit to the advance demanded by the Dairymen's League. He asserted that the producers had threatened to hold up every quart of milk if the new price was not paid.

Mr. McCauley said that at a meeting with the officials of the Dairymen's League the President of Borden's By-Product Company had asked Mr. Cooper if he did not think it unjust for the League to "make the poor people on the East Side pay for the manufacture of milk that is not worth within a dollar a hundred pounds of what the League is demanding," but Mr. Cooper had replied. "we haven't taken that into consideration."

Mr. McCauley added that after a consultation the members of the Conference Board decided there was no use to fight the League, in view of the cost of the last strike, and that they had decided to submit to the new price, but to reduce their purchases.

General Barnett Deplores "Ad."

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 3.—Major Gen. Barnett, commandant of the Marine Corps, has received a copy of a recent advertisement in New York newspapers, signed "Chairman of the Comforts Committee of the Navy League, 509 Fifth Avenue," and calling for knitters to make "5,000 pairs of heavy Winter service socks for the United States marines now in France—which are desperately needed." He says he is astonished and regrets that "such a misleading advertisement has been published."

CONSOLIDATED EXCHANGE

A wave of selling swept the market in the late afternoon and prices on the Consolidated Stock Exchange crumbled. The break was led by Bethlehem Steel B, which dropped to 86⅝, a loss of 7 points from the early afternoon high. United States Steel sold down from its early top of 110½ to 108⅝, while Crucible Steel sold down to 72.

JURY GIVES $100,000 TO MAYO'S WIFE

Radiator Manufacturer Charged with Concealing Earlier Marriage When He Wed Her.

MET HIM FIRST IN JAIL

Other Matrimonial Adventures and One Suicide Brought Out—No Defense Made.

A jury before Justice Goff began taking testimony yesterday morning in the $250,000 damage suit brought by Mrs. Wilhelmina Meyer-Mayo against Virginius St. Julian Mayo, radiator manufacturer, on the charge that he induced her to become his wife under the false representation that he was single. The case went to the jury early in the afternoon, and after being out only thirty minutes a verdict for $100,000 was returned. There was no defense.

The plaintiff, who has called herself Wilhelmina Meyer since learning that Mayo had another wife living when he married her, testified that she first met Mayo in the Raymond Street jail in Brooklyn, while she was calling on her sweetheart, a Mr. Peterson, who had been sent there for nonpayment of alimony to a former wife. Mayo was then in prison under a body attachment arising out of a judgment against him in a business transaction. He married her on April 2, 1904. James W. Osborne, counsel for Mayo, contended that the measure of the damages suffered by the plaintiff should be the $2,500 a year he earned when he first deceived her into marriage, and not based on the fortune he accumulated during the dozen years he lived with her. The court upheld him.

Testimony was offered bearing on the suicide of Mayo's stenographer in New Haven, which brought about the disclosure that Mayo had lived in Brooklyn with Lois Dudley, by whom he has three children, and finally the statement of Mrs. Florence Weeks Mayo in Scranton, Penn., that she was the legal wife of Mayo. The plaintiff then left Mayo and the real Mrs. Mayo got a divorce. Counsel for Miss Meyer showed that even after the first Mrs. Mayo received her decree the defendant refused to marry Miss Meyer legally because he was obligated to Lois Dudley. Miss Meyer testified that while she lived in Mayo's home he told her his income from his radiator manufacturing business was $100,000 a year, and that he had $100,000 insurance.

Justice Goff reserved decision on a motion to set aside the verdict as excessive.

POLICE MOVE TO STOP NOISE OF NEWSBOYS

Public Annoyed by Shouting of War Calamities For Which There Is No Basis.

Many complaints have been received at Police Headquarters in the last month about newsboys who disturb the peace by shouting sensational war news extras when there is nothing in their papers to justify their clamor. This practice has become especially annoying since the United States entered the war. Knowing the people to be keenly interested in European events, the newsboys, to stimulate sales, often take advantage of popular concern by converting occurrences of no significance in Paris, London, or Petrograd into stupendous disasters.

This practice has unnerved men and women who have relatives in the service and to whom the war is of vital and personal concern. Not only in the city but in the suburbs newsboys have aroused neighborhoods late at night with their fictitious sensations.

"We are doing our best," said Police Commissioner Woods yesterday, "to stop this nuisance, but it is one of those things that depends very much upon the mood and attitude of Magistrates. If a policeman, on his own initiative, takes a boy to court for making a public nuisance of himself, sympathy is so much with the boy that unless the policeman has a strong complaint to back him up he is likely to be laughed out of court. It is difficult to get a citizen to prosecute a boy, no matter how much he may resent being disturbed by his noise.

"Excepting in so far as it tends to create a public nuisance, there is no law which could be utilized to suppress the practice, but in view of the annoyance that newsboys are causing, precinct Captains have received special instructions to stop it so far as possible. They are eager to act upon complaints, provided the complainants will go to court. Without a citizen's complaint to back him up, a policeman bringing a boy into court will get very little support from the bench. On the contrary, he is more likely to be told to transfer his activities from the capture of newsboys to the capture of burglars. It is a human situation very difficult to control."

BREWERS PLEDGE WAR AID.

Ready to Make Any Sacrifice, Says National Convention.

Special to The New York Times.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., Oct. 3.—Resolutions pledging support to the President in any measure for the success of the war and declaring "readiness to make any sacrifice" were passed today by the annual convention of the United States Brewers Association. The Executive Committee was directed to offer the co-operation of the brewers to the Administration, to begin a campaign for the sale of Liberty bonds among all employes, to encourage the naturalization of aliens, prevent waste of foods and grains, to increase the production of food, and to aid in the enforcement of all laws regulating the industry.

"Ours is no divided allegiance; whether by birth or by choice this is our country," the resolutions read in part. "We affirm our absolute conviction in the necessity of our country's success, and declare our readiness to make any sacrifice that shall advance it, and we record our unswerving faith that ultimately it will triumph and restore peace and contentment to a distracted world."

The crop improvement committee presented a report designed to show the relatively small amount of food grains consumed by the breweries in the manufacture of beer. The report admits that 20 to 35 per cent. of the barley crop is purchased each year for malt used in making beer, but it is asserted that if the breweries did not buy the barley, at a premium amounting at times to 20 cents a bushel, the area planted would be greatly curtailed at considerable loss to the farmer, as there is no other market for barley.

TELLS WOMEN HOW TO HELP

Conservation Leader Outlines Ways to Aid in Prosecution of War.

Speaking before 500 members and guests of the Rainy Day Club at a meeting held yesterday afternoon in the Hotel Astor for the purpose of discussing woman's responsibilities in the winning of the war, Charles A. Rieser of the National Conservation Movement said in an address on "Industry, War and the Woman," that there never was a time in the history of the world when the aid of woman was needed more than at the present.

"There are many ways in which woman can aid in the successful prosecution of the war against a common enemy," said Mr. Rieser. "In my opinion woman can best help to win this war by molding a more fervent public attitude toward business and industry in order that the country may be strengthened to meet the demands of the war. The three greatest sources of present waste in the conduct of the war are friction between capital and labor, incompetent business laws, and public antagonism to business. The last condition, I believe, is chiefly responsible for the other two."

Mr. Rieser told of the extent and scope of the conservation movement throughout the country. Mrs. Owen Kildare read a paper on "Woman's Efficiency." Mrs. A. M. Palmer, President of the club, presided.

Gives Belgium $2,000,000 More.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 3.—The Government today advanced Belgium another $2,000,000 in addition to previous loans of $7,500,000 a month for six months and a special loan made some time ago of $4,500,000.

MRS. HARRIMAN SIGNS CARD.

Joins Campaign to Control Food Administration and Pledges Household.

Mrs. E. H. Harriman has signed one of the pledge cards being circulated by the United States Food Administration Publicity Department asking the women of the nation to join in a campaign to control food administration. Mrs. Harriman accompanied her card with the following message:

"Glad to be with you. You should not only enroll me, but all my servants. Send pledge cards for all of my household."

The bureau announced that it had received favorable responses from hundreds of others who desired to be enrolled in the 20,000 volunteer division that will make a house-to-house canvass in the interests of food control. This canvass will start on Oct. 21. Borough President Pounds of Brooklyn yesterday sent the bureau the following message: "Count me in to help the ladies. Brooklyn will make a clean job of it."

LEGAL NOTICES.

SUPREME COURT, COUNTY OF NEW YORK.—The Emigrant Industrial Savings Bank, plaintiff, against Fanny Kerner and others, defendants. County Clerk's Index No. 23,828—Year 1917. R. & R. J. O'Gorman, Plaintiff's Attorneys, No. 51 Chambers Street, Manhattan, New York City.

In pursuance of a judgment of foreclosure and sale, duly made and entered in the above entitled action, and bearing date the 19th day of September, 1917, I, the undersigned, the referee in said judgment named, will sell at public auction, at the Exchange Salesroom, Nos. 14-16 Vesey Street, in the Borough of Manhattan, City of New York, on the 16th day of October, 1917, at 12 o'clock noon, by Henry Brady, auctioneer, the premises directed by said judgment to be sold, and described as follows:

ALL that certain lot, piece or parcel of land with the building and improvements thereon erected, situate, lying and being in the Borough of Manhattan, situated on the southerly side of Fourth Street between the Bowery and Second Avenue in the Seventeenth Ward of the City of New York, being known and designated as lot No. 42 on a certain map entitled, "Map of property belonging to the Estate of Mangle Minthorne," dated January 20, 1829, made by Edward Doughty, City Surveyor, and filed in the Office of the Register of the County of New York as Map No. 46, and bounded Northerly in front by the Southerly side of Fourth Street; Westerly by Lot No. 41 on said map; Southerly in the rear by lot No. 28 on said map; Easterly by lot No. 43 on said map, containing in width in front and rear twenty-five feet and in length on each side ninety-six feet two and one-half inches. Said premises being now known by the street number 56 East Fourth Street.

Being the same premises which were conveyed by Abraham Teichman and Sara, his wife, to Silver Realty Company by deed dated March 31, 1909, and recorded April 2, 1909, in the Office of the Register of the County of New York in Section 2, Liber 151 of Conveyances at page 118.

The approximate amount of the mortgage debt is $25,892.35 and interest from September 18th, 1917; costs and allowance $434.94 and interest; unpaid taxes and water charges $389.15 and interest.

Dated, New York, September 21st, 1917.

WOOL MARKET IS ACTIVE.

6,000,000 Pounds Were Sold in the Last Week.

Special to The New York Times.

BOSTON, Oct. 3.—The American Wool and Cotton Reporter will say tomorrow:

"Fair activity and strong prices characterized the wool market the last week, with sales of 6,000,000 pounds. Much material bought is going into army goods. Scoured wools have been selling well. The market has been broadening considerably in the last two weeks.

"In the woolen goods market there is comparatively little buying for ordinary purposes. Most of the strength is based on special orders.

"Activity in the cotton goods market has varied on different days and altogether there has been an increase in the buying, compared with previous weeks. This market remains steady. The demand is not large, but mills are moderately well protected with orders. High prices will cut down distribution noticeably, but the large Government requirements will tend to hold the market steady."

Sherrill to Discuss Guard Plans.

Brig. Gen. Charles H. Sherrill, Adjutant General of the State, will address the regular monthly meeting of the Chamber of Commerce of the State of New York today on the plans relating to the formation of the new State Guard. Resolutions in memory of Isaac N. Seligman, for many years an active member of the Chamber, will be presented by the Executive Committee. Before the regular meeting of the Chamber a special meeting will be held for the purpose of electing three Commissioners of Pilots of the Port of New York.

U. S. MARSHAL'S NOTICES.

UNITED STATES MARSHAL'S SALE.—By virtue of a certain writ of execution to me directed and delivered in a certain cause pending in the District Court of the United States for the Southern District of New York, in which The Equitable Trust Company of New York, as Trustee, is complainant and the Denver and Rio Grande Railroad Company is defendant, I will expose to sale at Public Vendue on Thursday, the 4th day of October, 1917, at twelve o'clock noon, at the rear of the County Court House of the County of New York, in the City and State of New York (to wit, at the main door on Chambers Street on the principal story of the said Court House), Three million and thirty-two thousand four hundred dollars, face value, of United States Government Three and one-half Per Cent. Liberty Loan Bonds of the issue of 1917, with all coupons attached. The full amount bid must be paid in cash, or in certified cheque satisfactory to the Marshal, immediately upon the conclusion of the sale upon delivery of the bonds sold. In case any bidder shall fail immediately to make good his bid and purchase, the bonds knocked down to him may be again sold without further notice, and the bidder will be and remain liable for any difference in price between the amount bid by him and the price for which the said bonds shall ultimately be sold by the Marshal.

REAL ESTATE FIELD

The four-story residence at 50 West Eighty-seventh street, 20 by 100.8, between Central Park West and Columbus avenue, has been sold by Parker D. Hardy. It was held at $50,000. William B. May & Co. were the brokers. The buyer, Samuel Kempner, took title yesterday. Mr. Hardy recently bought through the same brokers from Mr. Kempner the six-story dwelling at 44 East Seventy-fourth street and title was recorded yesterday subject to a $45,000 mortgage.

The house at 48 West Eighty-seventh street adjoining the Hardy residence was purchased a month ago by Harris & Maurice Mandelbaum from the Saul Estate. It was held at $35,000.

Mrs. Genevieve G. Brady, wife of Nicholas F. Brady, President of the New York Edison Co., took title yesterday to the Old Colony Club building at 120 to 124 Madison avenue, adjoining the northwest corner of Thirtieth street, subject to a mortgage of $225,000. It was stated when the sale was closed a month ago that Mrs. Brady was purchasing the property to present to the Red Cross for its administration offices in this city.

Columbia Leasehold House for Trade.

The four-story dwelling at 17 West Fiftieth street, Columbia College leasehold, between Fifth and Sixth avenues, has been sold by Mrs. John Erving. The plot is 21 by 100.5. The new owners will remodel it for business. Several other houses in the block have recently been sold for trade uses.

Private Dwelling Sales.

The four-story dwelling, 231 East Fiftieth street on a lot 18 by 100, has been sold by Charles Cohen to the Jersey-York Realty Company for $8,000.

Harriet Finch sold to Elizabeth Craig, 260 West 136th street, a three-story and basement dwelling on a lot, 16.8 by 89.11. Smith & Mitchell were the brokers.

Tenement Sales.

M. T. de Lemos purchased for investment from the Malex Realty Corporation 317 and 319 West Fifty-fourth Street, two five-story tenements, on a plot 58.4 by 100. J. K. Moors negotiated the sale.

Bronx Sales.

Charles S. Kohler sold for Elizabeth C. Doherty the three-story Colonial dwelling, with garage, on a plot 50 by 100, at 2,596 Grand Avenue, to a client for occupancy. The property was held at $1,800.

Charles R. Knapp purchased from the Edgehill Terrace Company a plot 52.11 by 87.10 on the east side of Edgehill Avenue, 75.10 feet north of 227th Street.

Frederick Brown, operator, resold to the Rocky Crest Realty Company, George S. Runk, Vice President, 2,307 Grand Boulevard and Concourse, a five-story apartment, on a plot 50 by 78.6. The buyers purchased a similar structure adjoining from Mr. Brown about a year ago. In part payment for the property sold yesterday the buyers gave a plot, 50 by 100, on the north side of 227th Street, 100 feet east of Adrian Avenue. W. W. Miller negotiated the trade.

Brooklyn.

Nelson, Lee & Green sold for Louis Gold, President of the Dot Realty Company, two four-story apartment houses situated at 283 and 289 Park Side Avenue to ex-Senator W. C. Gebbardt of Clinton, N. J. The houses, which occupy a plot 50 by 100, are fully rented at $15,500, and were held at $150,000.

Horace S. Ely & Co. sold to a client of the Chauncey Real Estate Company 38 Herkimer Street, a three-story brownstone dwelling, on a lot 20 by 100.

Queens Borough Sales.

Dr. D. E. McMahon purchased the dwelling and plot, 50 by 100 feet, on the north corner of Whitney Avenue and Sixth Street, Elmhurst, at a price reported to be $20,000.

John W. Rapp purchased from J. Beresheim the property on the corner of North Fourteenth Street and Schleicher Court, College Point.

E. C. Schumacher sold to B. W. Dawson the dwelling and plot, 112 by 120 feet, on the northeast corner of Beaufort Street and Lefferts Avenue, Morris Park.

Long Island.

Frederick W. Whittaker of Manhattan sold his estate on the Rocky Hill Road, opposite the Bayside Golf Links, Bayside, L. I., to F. J. Meyer. The estate comprises about six acres on which is erected an old homestead built about one hundred years ago.

Baker Crowell, Inc., in co-operation with Thomas E. Kennedy, has sold the Olive M. Sperry waterfront estate at Elms Point, Great Neck, to Helen J. Forrester. It was held at $30,000.

Colgate & Co. Buy Newark Bay Acreages.

Colgate & Co. of Jersey City have purchased twenty acres of land at Port Newark Terminal, fronting on Newark Bay, Newark. E. W. Taylor, Superintendent of the company, stated there was no intention of building at the present time owing to the high cost of material, but that the property had been bought to provide for future growth. There is no room for expansion at the Jersey City plant, he said.

Buys Home at Mountain Lakes.

A residence at Mountain Lakes, N. J., has been purchased by H. Behrbohm of New York from Mountain Lakes, Inc. The house occupies a large plot on Glen Road overlooking Wildwood Lake.

Westchester County.

The North Avenue Land Company, Alfred M. Rau, Treasurer, sold a large plot of ground at Wykagyl Park, New Rochelle, N. Y., to Malcolm Johnson, a builder, who will erect thereon two high-class residences. J. C. Varian was the broker in the transaction.

The Scarsdale Estates sold a large corner plot on Greenacres Avenue, and Charles Place, in the Greenacres section of Scarsdale, N. Y., to Dr. H. W. Coolidge of New York City.

Artists Buy Tokeneke Estate.

Herbert and Florence Hinkle Witherspoon, artists, have purchased the estate at Tokeneke, Conn, known as Shorewood, overlooking the Sound. A large residence is on the property, and the new owners will make extensive alterations. Mrs. Gerrit Smith was the broker in the sale.

Realty Notes.

The property at 143 to 149 Maiden Lane, northwest corner of Front Street, including the block front on Front Street between Maiden Lane and Fletcher Street was transferred yesterday by William F. Devine to the Smith-Valley Realty Corporation. Plans for a seven-story building to cost $250,000 were filed a few days ago.

Pepe & Brother have leased the store at 58 Washington Square to Rossi Brothers, and the store at 149 East Fifteenth Street to the General Hotel Employment Agency.

BANKRUPTCY SALES.

UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT.—District of New Jersey.—In the matter of JOSEPH PERLMUTTER and HARRY PERLMUTTER, individually, and as co-partners trading as "PERLMUTTERS," and also as "THE QUALITY SHOP," Bankrupts.—In Bankruptcy.—Notice of Sale.

Notice is hereby given that the trustee of said bankrupts will sell at public auction, for cash, to the highest bidder, on October 4, 1917, at ten o'clock in the forenoon, and continue from day to day until completed, on premises commonly known and designated as Nos. 175-179 Newark Avenue, Jersey City, the following assets:

Two parcels of real estate commonly known and designated as Nos. 175-179 Newark Avenue, Jersey City, N. J., and No. 66 Railroad Avenue, Jersey City, as aforesaid, a stock of ladies' furnishings, cloaks and suits, ribbons, dress goods, millinery, hosiery, &c., fixtures, accounts receivable.

Sealed bids are invited for said property, both real and personal, in lots and as a whole; such bids to be opened at the place aforesaid, one-half hour before the time designated for the time of sale, after which time the trustee will offer the parcels of real estate and personal property in bulk, commencing from the highest sealed bid, if any; then the trustee will offer the parcels of real estate separate and apart from the personal property; then offer the personal property in bulk separate and apart from the real estate; then offer the fixtures separate and apart from the other personal property; then offer the accounts receivable separate and apart from the other personal property; and then offer the merchandise separate and apart from the other personal property.

The trustee herein will offer the aforesaid mentioned parcels of real estate both free from and subject to all encumbrances now affecting the said parcels of real estate, upon the express agreement that the said holders of the encumbrances in case of sale subject thereto, shall release the estate herein from any claim which they may have against the estate, or indemnify the trustee in manner to be acceptable to the Referee from payment of all liens or encumbrances.

The above property to be sold subject to the confirmation of the Court to the bidder or bidders whose bid or bids realize the highest price to the estate; at least ten per centum to be paid as a deposit; the aforesaid property will be open for inspection on October 4th and 5th between 10:00 A. M. and 4:00 P. M.

The trustee will make his report of sale and application for confirmation of sale before Honorable Elmer W. Demarest, Referee in Bankruptcy, at the Bankruptcy Court Room, Postoffice Building, Jersey City, N. J., on October 15, 1917, at ten o'clock in the forenoon.

AN EXCELLENT TIME TO PURCHASE

There is no demand for real estate at the present time. Experienced real estate men say they have never known so little activity in real estate sales, and therefore this opportunity for the Homeseeker, Builder, Investor and Speculator to purchase at low prices has not been so clearly indicated in many years.

REMEMBER

These will be absolute auction sales in the strongest meaning of these words. No bidders representing the seller directly or indirectly will be at these sales. There will be no dummy bids.

For maps and booklet giving full details and terms address Benj. D. Haight, Special Deputy Supt. of Banks, 61 Broadway, New York City.

Education Notes.

The Brooklyn Teachers' Association announces that the course of lectures on the "Methods of Correcting Speech Defects and Foreign Accent" given by Dr. Frederick Martin, Director of Speech Improvement of New York City, will be held on Tuesdays at 4:45 o'clock, instead of Thursdays, commencing Oct. 9. The lecture will be delivered at the Brooklyn Model School, Prospect Place, west of Nostrand Avenue. This course is especially necessary for teachers of ungraded and C classes as well as oral English teachers of the high schools and heads of departments.

The Board of Examiners will receive until Nov. 1 applications for substitute licenses to teach in the vocational classes of the elementary schools. The pay is $5 a day for actual service. Applications will also be received until Nov. 1 from eligible candidates for licenses to teach vocational subjects in the day elementary schools. Teachers of these subjects in girls' classes receive a minimum salary of $900, an annual increase of $100, and a maximum salary of $1,100. Teachers in boys' classes receive a minimum salary of $1,000, an annual increase of $100, and a maximum salary of $2,000.

A class in sign painting and lettering is being formed in Public School 67, West Forty-sixth Street, near Sixth Avenue. Special features will be commercial posters, illustrated "ad" writing, modern tendencies in color work as applied to feature posters, and chemistry of colors. Registration may be made any evening from 7:30 to 9 o'clock.

The Wage Earners' Institute, Thomas Davidson School, announces the opening of the eighteenth school year. Registration began on Sept. 20, and sessions will commence on Oct. 10. Courses are offered in elementary and cultural studies for men and women.

The Brooklyn Teachers' Association is opening to the public a course of fifteen Saturday morning sessions in costume design and illustration. It is under the instruction of Miss Traphagen, and all interested can get full information by attending the opening session, Oct. 6, 10 A. M. to 12 M., at the Training School for Brooklyn Teachers, Park Place, near Nostrand Avenue, Brooklyn.

Columbia University, extension teaching, offers courses in the speaking of Arabic, Armenian, Chinese, English, French, German, Irish, Italian, Portuguese, Rumanian, Russian, Spanish, and Turkish. Term begins Oct. 15.

The Committee on General Welfare of the Board of Aldermen will begin at 11 A. M. today, in the City Hall, an examination of school officials as to conditions in the public schools. The committee will question President Willcox of the Board of Education and C. B. J. Snyder, Superintendent of School Buildings.

United States.

The commission announces for Oct. 16 an examination for supervising mining engineer and metallurgist, for men only. A vacancy in the position of the Minneapolis (Minn.) Station of the Bureau of Mines at a salary from $3,600 to $4,000 a year, and future vacancies requiring similar qualifications at these or higher or lower salaries, will be filled from this examination. The duties will be to supervise investigations and to disseminate information, with a view to improving conditions in the mining, quarrying, metallurgical, and other mineral industries in the district served by the station, especially with a view to preventing unnecessary waste of resources, the beneficiation of low-grade iron ores, the utilization of manganese ores, high in phosphorous, and otherwise contributing to the advancement of these industries. Competitors will not be required to report for examination at any place, but will be rated on education, professional experience, and publications, reports, or thesis. Applicants must not have reached their fiftieth birthday on the date of the examination.

RED CROSS HOSTS MARCH HERE TODAY

Honors for the Workers Now in Europe and Farewell to the Thousands Soon to Go.

25,000 TO BE IN 5TH AV. LINE

Henry P. Davison and Surgeon General Gorgas Will Lead the Five Divisions.

The Red Cross parade, the first ever organized by the American Red Cross, will start from Sixtieth Street and Fifth Avenue at noon today, the line of march being south in Fifth Avenue to Washington Square. Between 20,000 and 25,000 Red Cross men and women, from all parts of the Northeast, will be in line, the parade being led by Henry P. Davison, Chairman of the Red Cross War Council, and Major Gen. William C. Gorgas, Surgeon General of the United States Army. There will be five divisions and several bands to each. The United States Naval Training Band from Chicago, led by John Philip Sousa, now a Lieutenant of the Naval Reserve, will head the column. Five regular army bands will be in line. "Tristan," a Red Cross dog, soon to sail for France, will also march.

The parade is in honor of the Red Cross workers now at the front in Europe and the thousands of others soon to leave this country for service in France. The reviewing officers will be Secretary of the Navy Josephus Daniels and Brig. Gen. Eli Hoyle, U. S. A., commander of the Eastern Department, on Governors Island. Governor Whitman and Mayor Mitchel will also be members of the reviewing party. The reviewing stand will be in front of the Public Library.

The order in which the units will parade, arranged by divisions, as given out last night, follows:

First Division.
Mounted Police.
Colonel William Hayward, U. S. A. Marshal.

With the Washington delegation will come fifty women of the Women's Volunteer Aid Corps of the District of Columbia, of which Mrs. Woodrow Wilson is the head. Mrs. Josephus Daniels will head this unit, which, it was stated late last night, will march with the First Division. With the refreshment units will be a field kitchen which since May has served more than 100,000 cups of coffee to American soldiers. Two ambulances, destined for European service, will be seen with the motor units.

White House,
Washington, D. C.,
Sept. 28, 1917.

My Dear Mr. Davison:

I am very much impressed and pleased by what you tell me in your letter of yesterday of the plans of the leading actors and actresses of the country to present a pageant and of the arrangements you are making in connection with that plan. I wish with all my heart that I could be present to show my very deep and genuine interest. I know from experience only too well that it is going to be impossible, but I want you to know and I want them to know how much I regret the impossibility.

WOODROW WILSON.

Mr. Henry P. Davison, American Red Cross.

The spectacle begins at 2:15 o'clock.

Train Kills a Camp Workman.

An automobile on its way from Paterson to Camp Merritt at Dumont, N. J., carrying workmen who were to aid in the construction of the cantonment there, was struck by a West Shore express train at the Teaneck crossing, between Hackensack and Englewood, yesterday. Charles Plog of Richfield, N. J., was killed, and William Plog of Richfield, W. H. Mencing of Athenia, N. J., and Otto Burckhardt and David Marion of Albion, N. J., were injured.

OPEN BASE HOSPITAL FOR USE OF ARMY

CONSTRUCTION WAS RAPID

Site Was Unbroken Countryside on April 1—National and Red Cross Flags Raised.

United States Army General Hospital No. 1, on the old Columbia Oval at Bainbridge Avenue and Gun Hill Road, the Bronx, was opened formally yesterday afternoon with exercises at which Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler, President of Columbia University, announced the presentation of the hospital by the university to the Government, and Colonel E. R. Schreiner, the commanding officer at the hospital, accepted it on behalf of the Secretary of War. Between the addresses the United States and the Red Cross hospital flags were raised on the historic pole which stood for many years at McGown's Pass, in Central Park.

In his address, Dr. Butler, who was introduced by Major William H. Bishop, narrated the history of the hospital, which was known as the Columbia War Hospital until the Government took charge of it on July 18. The hospital, said Dr. Butler, represented "American effectiveness in action," and he reminded the audience that on the first of last April the ground where the hospital with its accommodations for 500 patients now stood was "unbroken country side." He said that the Trustees of Columbia University authorized the building of the hospital on April 2, and four days later appointed a committee to take charge of the work. From then on rapid progress was made.

Dr. Butler said that he would be unable to name all of those whose cooperations had made the hospital possible, but that he wished especially to mention Dr. J. Bentley Squier, Major in the Medical Reserve Corps and a member of the Council of National Defense.

"Dr. Squier," said the speaker, "first conceived the idea of the hospital and was the first to take up the work of making it a reality. To a great extent we owe the hospital to his efforts and those of a group of men among whom should be mentioned Dr. Samuel W. Lambert, dean of the College of Physicians and Surgeons; Frederick A. Goetze, Treasurer of the university; W. H. Woodin, Willard V. King, Dr. Adrian V. S. Lamaert, Dr. William H. Bishop, Dr. Francis Carter Wood, and Walter Blooer, the architect.

"This hospital represents one of the finest aspects of American life. It does not represent work done or money given under compulsion or by request. It represents one aspect of the determination of the American people to see to it that the Government of the United States, the navy, the army, and every branch of the service are aided and assisted by every contribution and sacrifice at their command. Of the total of that determination on the part of the American people, this hospital represents our little bit."

Colonel Schreiner then told how the Surgeon General of the army had been looking for a hospital site near New York when the Columbia Hospital was offered to him. The hospital, he said, was "something immediately ready," and was gladly accepted by the War Department to fill a real need. It was opened, he added, as the first military general hospital to be put into service after the declaration of war. There had already been a demand for the services of the hospital, he continued, both by patients and by nurses and physicians going abroad who had used it as a mobilization centre. The buildings of the hospital had accommodated 500 persons at one time, he said.

The hospital was receiving soldiers disabled through illness and accident, he continued, and probably would receive soldiers sent home from the front. He announced that plans had already been submitted for enlarging the hospital to accommodate 1,000 instead of 500 patients.

Following the exercises, the visitors, among whom were those who had done most to make the hospital a success and others interested in the project, were taken on an inspection tour of the buildings. These are single story frame and metal structures, especially designed for use as parts of a regulation base hospital. Though standing firmly and for permanent use in their present position, if desired they can be taken apart and shipped in sections ready to assemble on any site selected. One of the advantages of the hospital considered of practical value is the fact that the nurses and doctors who work there will become familiar with the exact style and character of the regular army base hospitals.

When the plans for the hospital were first announced on April 3 public-spirited citizens volunteered contributions in large and small sums. Within twenty-four hours $20,000 had been received, half of it from Mr. and Mrs. Barend van Gerbig, and the other half from Daniel Guggenheim. Other contributions of $200 or more subsequently received were as follows:

| F. W. Vanderbilt .....10,000 | Willard V. King.1,000 |
| Miss E. F. Southmayd .....5,000 | Mrs. Hugh D. Auchincloss.....500 |
| Mrs. H. R. Rea..5,000 | A. E. Uihlein.....500 |
| Through W. B. O. Field .....3,675 | Isaac N. Seligman.500 |
| A. & S. Lewisohn..2,500 | Henry Seligman...500 |
| Mrs. R. A.Rainey.2,000 | Frederick Strauss..500 |

| | Hudson M. Car Co.200 |

Altogether more than $100,000 was received in popular subscriptions and was spent in the construction and equipment of the hospital buildings, which were purchased with $175,000 contributed separately for the purpose by Daniel G. Reid.

WANT SHIPS FROM CANADA.

British Envoy Seeks Full Exploitation of Dominion's Resources.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 3.—Viscount Reading, Lord Chief Justice of England, in Washington on a special financial mission; Lord Northcliffe, head of the British War Missions, and Sir Hardman Lever, Financial Secretary to the British Treasury, will leave shortly for Ottawa to discuss with Canadian officials various matters involving cooperation of the American, British, and Canadian Governments.

Finance, food supplies, and the full exploitation of Canada's shipbuilding resources are among the questions that will be taken up.

HIT ROCK IN TYPHOON WITH 2,000 SOLDIERS

Major General Bailey Tells of Thrilling Trip Across the Pacific.

DELAYED FOR THREE WEEKS

Transport, Although Badly Damaged Herself, Towed a Disabled Schooner 180 Miles to Port.

Major Gen. Charles J. Bailey, relieved from command in the Philippines to help train the national army, arrived in New York last night and told of the perilous voyage of a United States transport, carrying 2,000 soldiers, on which he returned to this country from Manila. The transport arrived at San Francisco three weeks late because of an encounter she had with a typhoon off the coast of Formosa, which, as the General said, came very near robbing the United States of some good fighting men.

The vessel left Manila on Aug. 15 and started on her twenty-one-day voyage to San Francisco. When she was two days out the ship ran into a typhoon, and the Captain stuck her straight through it. General Bailey said the wind was blowing 100 miles an hour when they fought through the first side of the typhoon ring, while in the centre it was dead calm.

It was when the vessel started out of the typhoon that she got in real danger, for she could not push through. It was an anxious time, the General said, with the more than 2,000 persons held below deck, all wearing life preservers. Three sailors did venture on deck. One was swept away, and the other two saved themselves by catching the railing of the ship when a wave washed them from their feet. One of them suffered a broken jaw.

"For four days," said General Bailey, "we fought with that storm. We couldn't get through it. We seemed to be moving, but the storm seemed to stick to us. Then on the night of the 20th we struck a rock. The Captain had suspected because of the actions of the ship that we were in shoal water. He was moving cautiously, almost out of the storm, when by some intuition he gave the deck officer the order to back the engines. Scarcely had the order been given when there was a crash—we had struck a rock. Had we been going full speed ahead we would have been there yet. But just after we hit the rock a big wave lifted the ship, and as her engines were reversed she jumped backward.

"In a short time we were out of the storm, which seemed to move away. The ship had taken some water through a hole stove in the bow by the impact with the rock. We found out that the rock was jutting from one of the little islands off the north of Formosa.

"Then we found that we were short of coal. So, after battling our way out of the storm, we had to start back to Formosa after fuel. On the way we ran across the Irmquard, a schooner out of San Francisco, which had been hit by the typhoon and was almost foundering. Her Captain, who had his wife on board, made a pitiable plea, and our Captain, with all his troubles, gave him a line and towed him 180 miles to port.

"From Formosa we went to Nagasaki and had the Japanese repair about fifty feet on the bottom of our vessel. It took five days to get to Nagasaki; we were there fourteen days, and sailing from there made the trip to San Francisco in seventeen days.

"I think the action of the soldiers down beneath decks, unable to see what was going on but hearing an awful lot, was the best example of discipline I ever saw, and I have seen a lot."

General Bailey received the news of his promotion from a Brigadier Generalship to a Major Generalship while the vessel was going from Formosa to Nagasaki. He had been in the Philippines for three years. He said that conditions in the islands were the best in many years. He stated that there was very little disaffection, and no one seemed to be disposed to make trouble for the Americans at this time. The crews of the interned German ships, about two hundred men, are being held at Baguio by the insular authorities.

JAPANESE LEASE SHIPS.

Take Over Fourteen Teuton Vessels Seized in China.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 3.—Word reached Washington from Tokio today that the Mitsui Bishi Company of Japan had entered into a contract with the Chinese concern in charge of the fourteen German and Austrian steamers seized in China for the chartering of these vessels. The contract was signed on Aug. 27. It is understood that the steamers will be used by several Japanese and some foreign concerns.

Three ships, representing an aggregate of 19,353 tons, were launched at Japanese shipbuilding yards during September, according to advices received today. During August twenty-six vessels, each exceeding 1,000 tons and aggregating 100,621 tons, were launched at Japanese yards. If Japan succeeds in obtaining the necessary steel from the United States, the advices say, merchantmen of a total tonnage of 180,000 tons will be built in Japan within the next six months, beginning in October.

SUIT AGAINST KAISER TRIED.

Prince Friedrich Leopold's Action Is Heard in Secret.

LONDON, Oct. 3.—The action brought by Prince Friedrich Leopold of Prussia against Emperor William and Count von Eulenburg, Prussian Minister of the Household, as a protest against the restraint placed upon the Prince, came before a secret court at Potsdam yesterday, according to an Amsterdam dispatch to the Exchange Telegraph Company.

All efforts to force the Prince to renounce the action proved futile. The decision of the court will not be published.

According to an announcement made in the Official Gazette at Berlin on Aug. 10, Prince Friedrich Leopold of Prussia, who is 22 years old, was charged by Count von Eulenburg with extravagance and was placed under the guardianship of Captain von Heyden, the Prince's military escort.

Prince Friedrich Leopold received the usual military training, but owing to a defective heart failed to qualify for active service. One of his brothers was killed several months ago in a flight over the western battlefront.

REPUBLICAN COUNTY COMMITTEE, 4 TO 1, REFUSES INDORSEMENT TO BENNETT; WILL MEET AGAIN TO INDORSE MITCHEL

MEETING IN AN UPROAR

Resolution to Back Party's Nominee Defeated, 843 to 223.

MAYOR'S FORCES CONTROL

COMMITTEE FOUGHT 3 HOURS

James R. Sheffield Said Patriotism Was the Issue and Party Demanded Mitchel.

Amid an uproar that bordered at times on a riot the New York Republican County Committee at Bryant Hall last night voted down a resolution which had been offered by the forces of William M. Bennett to indorse him as its candidate for Mayor following his victory in the Republican primary. The vote was 223 for the resolution to 843 against. While the supporters of Mayor John Purroy Mitchel had everything their own way, they refrained from having a resolution indorsing him put through. The committee will meet again on Oct. 8, when it is expected the committee will then go on record as approving the Mayor's candidacy.

The County Committee has never held a more tumultuous meeting. Only one of the 1,068 members of the committee was absent. The crowd overflowed the room into the gallery and out into the corridor, and during the three-hour session there were demonstrations for the Mayor, while Mr. Bennett's name was missed again and again. The Bennett forces, when they say how strong the tide was setting against them, tried to stave off defeat by having the resolution tabled. This was defeated by a vote of 635 to 432. The Mitchel supporters predicted that at its next meeting a resolution indorsing the Mayor and the other Fusion candidates would go through overwhelmingly.

Urged Party Regularity.

The Bennett men tried hard to have the committee indorse the candidate who had won at the Republican primary on Sept. 19 on the ground of party regularity. Prominent Republicans like Senator Ogden L. Mills, Job E. Hedges, and James R. Sheffield pleaded with the members that Mayor Mitchel was the real choice of the Republicans of the city, and that the issues involved in the campaign far transcended party lines. They argued that Bennett did not have a chance of winning the election and that the only result would be the return to power of Tammany Hall. On the ground of patriotism alone, they said, it was necessary to stand by Mayor Mitchel as the eyes of the entire country were focused on New York in this election.

The Bennett forces were led by Senator Albert E. Ottinger. Although a meeting of the Executive Committee in the afternoon showed overwhelming strength for Mitchel among the members, Mr. Ottinger started the fireworks at night by offering a resolution that the County Committee indorse the candidacy of Mr. Bennett and all the Fusion candidates on the city, borough and county ticket.

At the mention of Bennett's name there was a storm of hisses with a scattering of applause. Some one shouted "Three cheers for Mitchel," and it was several minutes before Secretary Benjamin Bulmer could finish reading the resolution. Collin Woodard, leader of the Twenty-third District, moved that the resolution be given immediate consideration and Senator Ottinger made a vigorous plea that the committee adopt it. He said the Republicans of the city unquestionably expressed their opinion at the primaries.

"We in Manhattan," he said, "could not conceive of it, because we in Manhattan are islanders, self-contained, self-satisfied, who believe that the sun rises and sets here, who forget that Brooklyn has its opinions, that the Borough of Richmond is to be heard from, that Queens and the Bronx have a voice in the councils of the Republican Party. And to those who maintain that Mr. Bennett was nominated simply because there was not a very large vote cast at the primary, I answer that the vote was larger than usual, and that if it had been larger the majority in favor of Mr. Bennett would have been greater. He had no money, he had no organization; all that he was enabled to do was to send 100,000 letters to 250,000 people."

He said that for the Republican Party to turn its back upon the mandate of the primary would be like deliberately attempting to run away from a fight. Beverly R. Robinson then moved that the resolution be amended so that the vote would be on the candidate for Mayor alone and not the rest of the ticket. When he mentioned Mayor Mitchel's name the hall broke out in a storm of cheers. James R. Sheffield, former President of the Republican Club, then took the floor and made a stirring appeal that the committee vote down the resolution indorsing Bennett. He said:

Resolution to Indorse W. M. Bennett Which Republican Committee Voted Down

This is the resolution to indorse William M. Bennett for Mayor that the New York Republican County Committee last night refused to adopt by a vote of 843 to 223:

Resolved, That the Republican County Committee of the County of New York hereby indorses the candidacy of William M. Bennett for Mayor of the City of New York, William A. Prendergast for Controller, Robert Adamson for President of the Board of Aldermen, Marcus M. Marks for President of the Borough of Manhattan, and that of each of the nominees for county offices in New York County and for members of the State Legislature and Board of Aldermen in said county, regularly chosen by enrolled Republicans in the primary election held in the City of New York Wednesday, Sept. 19, 1917.

A resolution substituting Mayor Mitchel's name for that of Bennett and including the other Republican candidates will be indosred, it is expected, at a meeting of the County Committee on Oct. 18.

LOAN SALES MOUNT TO $175,000,000

Liberty Bank, Northern Pacific, and Marine Bank of Buffalo Take $5,000,000 Each.

MAYOR ISSUES AN APPEAL

Urges Citizens to Live Up to Enviable Record Made in Previous Campaign.

Reports from various parts of the New York Federal Reserve District indicate that subscriptions to America's second war loan—three billion of 4 per cent. Liberty bonds—are piling up rapidly, despite the fact that so many corporations and individuals are deferring their applications until a later date in the four-week campaign. It was estimated last night that the total for subscriptions filed was $175,000,000, although the aggregate of subscriptions publicly announced was in the neighborhood of $140,000,000. Up to 3:30 o'clock yesterday afternoon the Federal Reserve Bank had received subscriptions to the amount of $88,597,400, with a great many applications not yet tabulated, and a still larger amount in the mails.

The system followed in this campaign contemplates that every one of the 4,275 banks and trust companies in this district should send in daily a post card showing the day's subscriptions and the total to date. These cards have been furnished to all institutions, each dated, but thus far only about one-third of the banks have complied with the request. This is a measure, accounts for the fact that the estimate of subscriptions signed in the first four days of the campaign is considerably in excess of the figures given out by the Federal Reserve Bank. Telegrams have been sent to all the banks that have not forwarded the cards promptly urging them to follow the system and make daily reports, irrespective of whether any subscriptions are received or not. The banks have been informed that they need not forward the 2 per cent. payment made with the application until the Reserve Bank calls for it.

Committee Issues Appeal.

The Liberty Loan Committee, at its meeting yesterday morning, adopted a resolution calling the attention of the public to the fact that it was absolutely necessary to the success of the loan that small investors, in large number, should subscribe liberally to the loan.

Mayor Mitchel issued the following proclamation yesterday calling on the city to do its share in buying Liberty Loan bonds:

Oct. 4, 1917.

To the Citizens of New York:

The National Government has called upon the citizens of this country to render a new national service. The second Liberty Loan of 1917 is to be a subscription of $3,000,000,000. New York must do its part. It has a reputation to maintain. The part which this city played in floating the first loan was a record of patriotism. Two billion dollars was asked for. This district, comprising roughly the State of New York, Southern Connecticut, and Northern New Jersey, gave $1,500,000,000. One-half of the subscription for the first loan came from this city. One out of every nine of our population subscribed, although elsewhere throughout the country only one out of every twenty-five participated. This is a record to live up to, a standard to maintain. New Yorkers must come forward the second time and give freely to support those who are giving their lives that liberty may live in this country. We must rally all we have and all we can give to make this war successful on the battlefields of Europe. I am confident that New York will do as she did before and oversubscribe this loan.

JOHN PURROY MITCHEL, Mayor.

GERMAN RAIDERS BUSY IN PACIFIC

Two Captured Vessels Manned by Crew of Seeadler, Which Stranded Off Mopena Island.

ONE WAS FRENCH SCHOONER

Commerce Destroyer at Sea Nearly a Year—Three American Vessels Among Victims.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 4.—Two German sea raiders, armed with machine guns, rifles, and bombs, are roving in the Pacific Ocean looking for merchant prey. One is the Lutece, a French schooner, captured by the crew of the German raider Seeadler, which was abandoned after running on the rocks of Mopeha Island. The other raider is a motor sloop, in which five of the Seeadler's complement sailed from Mopeha. Before being wrecked the Seeadler captured three American schooners—the C. Slade, the A. B. Johnson, and the Manila.

The first intimation that the Seeadler had recently been at work in the South Pacific, was wrecked, and passed its mission on to a motor sloop and the captured French schooner, was contained in an official announcement issued by the Navy Department tonight. Without comment the department gave out the text of part of a report from the naval officer in command at Tutuila Island, in the South Pacific, one of the Samoan group.

The Navy Department is making every effort to relieve forty-four marooned men who were on the Seeadler when wrecked at Mopeha, and who were abandoned to their fate on that lonely island when the officers and crew of the Seeadler set sail in their new raiding craft. Here is the text of the official announcement:

Text of Navy's Report.

The Navy Department has received, under date of Sept. 29, the following dispatch from Tutuila Island, in the South Pacific:

"The master of the American schooner, C. Slade, arrived in an open boat at this island with three other men from Mopeha Island, which they had left Sept. 19. The master, Hador Smith, states that his vessel was captured by the German raider, Seeadler, on June 11. The schooner was destroyed by burning and the entire crew were taken aboard the raider.

"Smith further states that the Seeadler captured on June 14 the American schooner A. B. Johnson, and on July 8 the American schooner Manila. The Manila was destroyed by dynamite, after which the Seeadler proceeded to Mopeha Island, the westward island of the Society group, arriving there July 31. On Aug. 2, the Seeadler was stranded and was abandoned as a total loss. The commanding officer of the Seeadler left Aug. 31 in a motor sloop with machine guns, rifles, bombs and about two months's supplies, accompanied by three officers and two men.

"On Sept. 5 the French schooner Lutece, bound out of Tahiti, Society Islands, arrived at Mopeha and was captured by the remainder of the Seeadler's crew, who immediately left on the schooner with machine guns, supplies, rifles, and bombs, leaving behind them twenty-seven white men and seventeen native prisoners from the Seeadler, marooned on Mopeha Island. These men are in great need of food and water."

The Navy Department is making every effort to relieve the marooned men.

For more than a week the Navy Department is known to have been aware that there was a German raider in the Pacific, but it was not until tonight that it was deemed advisable to disclose any of the facts. All the information possessed by the department has not been divulged, but only that of no value to the enemy.

Mopeha Island is not shown on ordinary geography or atlas maps. The larger hydrographic charts of the Navy Department show that it is about 250 miles west of Tahiti and, while not in reality a part of the Society Islands, is nearer these than any other big South Pacific archipelago, except the Cook Islands. Tahiti is one of the insular cross roads of the Pacific for which many schooners make. There are not many steamers touching at Tahiti, but it is a stopping place for many schooners.

The Seeadler evidently was lying in wait for vessels of the schooner type. Naval authorities are anxious to capture or destroy the motor sloop or the French schooner before these raiders are able

British Cruiser Drake Is Sunk by U-Boat; Torpedo Kills an Officer and 18 Men

LONDON, Oct. 4.—The British cruiser Drake has been torpedoed and sunk, according to an Admiralty announcement tonight.

The Drake was torpedoed Tuesday morning, off the North coast of Ireland. She reached a harbor, but then sank in shallow water.

One officer and eighteen men were killed by the explosion. The remainder of the ship's company were saved.

With the loss of the armored cruiser Drake, there remains only one ship afloat of those forming Sir Edward Seymour's squadron, which was present here at the Hudson-Fulton Celebration in September, 1909. His flagship, the battle cruiser Invincible, was sunk in the battle off Jutland, on May 31, 1916. The Argyll ran ashore on the Scotch coast, Oct. 28, 1915. Only the Edinburgh survives.

The Drake was well known to vessels entering and leaving this port during the first eighteen months of the war, for she overhauled many and examined their papers. In January, 1916, she was refitted at the Bermuda naval dockyard and went in search of the German raider Möwe.

The Drake was a sister ship of the Leviathan and the King Alfred, and was commissioned in 1902. Her displacement was 14,100 tons; her length, 515 feet; her draught, twenty-eight feet, and she carried 900 officers and men. Her armament was two 9.2-inch, sixteen 6-inch, twelve 12-pound, and three 3-pound guns. She also had two 18-inch submerged torpedo tubes. She made twenty-four knots an hour.

CONFIRMS IMPOST ON SALARIED MEN

Treasury Officials Hold That 8 Per Cent. Tax Applies to All Earning Over $6,000.

CONGRESSMEN ARE EXEMPT

Provision Adopted Apparently Without the Knowledge of Some Conferees.

Treasury Holds Informally Tax Applies to Salaried Men

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 5.—The Treasury Department holds informally, in advance of definite presentation of the question in an official way that the 8 per cent. excess profits tax is to be assessed against all salaries in excess of $6,000, with the exception of those of Senators, Representatives, and all others who receive compensation from the Government.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 4.—Hidden meanings of the complicated provisions of that portion of the war revenue law relating to excess profits continue to come to light. Today the discovery was made that although the Joint Conference Committee of the Senate and House wrote into the bill behind closed doors a provision applying the excess profits tax of 8 per cent. to all earnings of individuals in excess of $6,000 a year, care was taken to see that members of Congress were not subject to this provision, as far as it applied to their official salaries.

The first exemption made in the law under the excess profits section relieves Senators and Representatives of the payment of the tax of 8 per cent. on their salaries in excess of $6,000. The salary of a Senator or a Representative is $7,500 a year. The doctor or lawyer who has an income of that amount derived from his professional earnings must pay the Government, in addition to the individual income tax, $120, which is 8 per cent. of $1,500, the difference between $6,000 and $7,500. But the Senator or Representative who had part in framing the provision applying the excess profits tax to individual earnings of private citizens will save this $120. So will all officers of the Government who receive salaries in excess of $6,000. There are very few of these outside of members of Congress.

This title shall apply to all trades or businesses of whatever description, whether continuously carried on or not, except—

(a) In the case of officers and employees under the United States or any State, Territory, or the District of Columbia, or any local subdivision thereof, the compensation or fees received by them as such officers or employees.

In a different portion of the bill the conferees slipped in a provision that "the terms 'trade' and 'business' include professions and occupations." This made the excess profits tax apply to doctors, lawyers, in fact, everybody who earns more than $6,000 a year, without regard to whether he pays as a member of a partnership or a stockholder of a corporation the tax of 8 per cent. on the profits of his business.

The provision that individuals having incomes of more than $6,000 a year shall pay the excess profits tax of 8 per cent. on incomes over that amount was also slipped into the measure behind the closed doors of the Conference Committee after the two houses had disposed of the bill and sent it to conference to have the differences between Senate and House harmonized.

This method of secret legislation brought a protest from Senator Smoot, one of the conferees, when the bill was reported to the Senate in its harmonized form by the conferees. He said that he contemplated proposing a rule forbidding conference committees from inserting new matter in legislative measures that had been passed by both houses. Those responsible for the provision had an easy time of it, however, as the Senate and the House were in the throes of agitation over the prospect of an early adjournment and were not disposed to scrutinize carefully the agreement reached by the conferees.

This is usually the case, particularly as the adjournment of a session nears. It is doubtful if any considerable number of Senators and Representatives understood the significance of the entirely new provision of the excess profits section, which had never been discussed in open session and first saw the light of day when the Conference Committee emerged from behind the closed doors of their star chamber. The applicable provisions are so scattered in the bulky bill that only close study has revealed and is revealing them.

When the attention of officials of the Treasury Department was called today to the clause exempting the official emoluments of officers and employes of the Government from the imposition of the excess profits tax they quickly

20,000 AIRPLANES NOW BEING BUILT

Baker Announces Great Aerial Fleet Will Be Ready to Lead Our Soldiers to the Front.

HAVE PLENTY OF AVIATORS

Their Training Is Proceeding Satisfactorily—Allies Recognize the Liberty Motor.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 4.—Contracts have been let by the War Department for the construction of 20,000 airplanes for use in the war against Germany. This is practically the whole number of airplanes for which provision was made in the $640,000,000 aviation bill. One-fourth, or about 5,000, of these will be built abroad, the other 15,000 being built in this country.

Aviators are being trained in 24 flying schools and in a number of ground schools. Their final training will be on foreign soil. The plans of the army contemplate the delivery of motors, planes, equipment and men so that all may be available as rapidly as one is ready for the other.

A great number of American aviators have been sent abroad, where they are now undergoing intensive training behind several of the battle fronts. More than 30 allied air experts are in this country, composing what may be called an international aviation general staff, in connection with the development of America's great military aerial force. When the first American military airplane is sent to Europe, and Secretary Baker says this will be done within reasonable time, it will be of American manufacture from the tip of its propellers to the engine, machine gun and camera.

These are some of the facts that stand out in a statement issued by Secretary of War Baker summarizing, as far as it can without giving away military secrets, the progress thus far made with the aviation program adopted under the $640,000,000 appropriation. The Secretary's statement follows:

To Spend $640,000,000 Appropriation.

"The development of the 'Liberty Motor' is being followed by highly satisfactory progress in the equipment of the aerial branch of the army and the training of its aviators. While it is inexpedient to impart information of military value or to detail strategic plans, it is felt that a partial announcement may be made of the progress of the aviation program. This statement is to meet numerous requests of the press and to convey to the country an authentic report of the work of the aviation section. The aviation situation today may be summarized as follows:

"Contracts have been let and work is in progress on practically the entire number of airplanes and motors for which provision was made in the $640,000,000 Aviation bill passed by Congress in July. This program called for more than 20,000 airplanes.

"The types of airplanes now in process of manufacture cover the entire range of training machines, light high-speed fighting machines, and powerful battle and bombing planes of the heaviest design. Our contracts call for an ample number of training machines, and embrace as well giant battle planes capable of the work of the Caproni, the Handley Page, and similar types.

"Every measure of insurance has been taken that the American forces in France shall be amply equipped with aircraft. The work of the aviation section has been thoroughly systematized. The training of aviators, the building of motors, and the construction of wings is proceeding uniformly—each keeping pace with the other and with general war plans.

"The comprehensive plan is that when motors are ready there shall be ready also the planes necessary; and when the motors and planes are ready aviators and machine guns shall be available. Coordination has been developed in every branch of the aviation section.

First Airplane Wholly American.

"Within a reasonable time, considering the period for preparation, this country will send its first airplans to Europe. This airplane, from the tip of its propellers to the engine, machine gun, and camera, will have been made in the United States.

"It has been necessary greatly to develop and expand the aircraft industry in this country. This work of increasing the output of existing manufacturing establishments, creating new plants, and providing tool, gauge, and jig equipment for great quantity production, has required time, and the months

BRITISH PIERCE GERMAN LINES 1½ MILES IN YPRES ADVANCE ON 8-MILE FRONT; WIN DOMINATING RIDGE, CAPTURE 3,000

Shortage of Munitions Now Menaces Germany; Labor Leaders Called Into Conference on Crisis

COPENHAGEN, Oct. 4.—Leaders of German labor were received at German General Headquarters this week, not to congratulate Field Marshal von Hindenburg on his birthday, as intimated at first, but to confer on means to have German workmen speed up the production of munitions.

The leaders submitted to General von Ludendorff, Chief Quartermaster General, complaints of the laboring classes, dealing especially with the compulsory labor service law. A long conference was devoted to discussing possible improvement of the conditions of labor and maintenance of the output of munitions, which Ludendorff declared was the duty of the hour.

Private reports have been received by The Associated Press that the German authorities were having difficulty in preventing a falling off in the production of munitions, owing to the lowering of the working capacity of the underfed workman and the scarcity of raw materials, notably the rarer metals used in the manufacture of high-grade steel. There have been persistent reports that nickel was embarrassingly short in Germany. It is doubtful, also, if Germany will be able to keep pace with further increases in Anglo-American production, if, indeed, it is now holding its own.

Reliable reports from widely separated sectors of the western front say that the German artillery has strict orders to save ammunition in every way possible.

AMSTERDAM, Oct. 4.—Fears that Germany might be unable to continue fighting owing to lack of raw materials have been answered by Major Gen. Schuech, the new Minister of Munitions, who, according to a dispatch from Berlin, said:

"Regarding the supply of raw materials, particularly those required for the manufacture of guns and munitions, we are not dependent solely on the stock in hand, which, moreover, would be insufficient. We have to produce them, and this production is proceeding satisfactorily."

General Schuech admitted that production was interrupted temporarily last year because of transport difficulties.

A Separate Peace With France Was the Object of Bolo's Plotting

Spy Said Germany Would Trade Part of Alsace-Lorraine for French Colonies, Witnesses Tell Lewis—Ex-Minister Malvy Accused in France of Giving Secrets to Germany.

Paul Bolo Pasha, the Frenchman now under arrest in Paris as a German spy, who came to New York in February of last year and got nearly $1,700,000 from von Bernstorff, then the German Ambassador at Washington, to finance his traitorous activities in France, wanted "some Americans of influence" to join with him in the plot which was hatched to bring about a separate peace between France and Germany.

He stated when in New York that he had "a friend" in Switzerland through whom he had learned that Germany was ready to go to almost any length to get France out of the war. He even stated the terms on which, he said, Germany would be willing to conclude a separate peace with the French. These terms called for the cession by France to Germany of certain of the French colonies in exchange for a part of Alsace-Lorraine, which Germany, according to Bolo, was willing to give back to France, and also the evacuation of all Northern France by the German armies.

Adolph Pavenstedt, the former head of the banking house of G. Amsinck & Co., who was the go-between for Bolo and Bernstorff, made the above statement under oath during his examination by Merton E. Lewis, State Attorney General, yesterday afternoon. Pavenstedt added that he doubted the genuineness of Bolo's information as to Germany's alleged separate peace terms.

Other information of the activities of Bolo was made public by Mr. Lewis, who, at the request of the French Government, is conducting an inquiry into the activities of Bolo during the three weeks he was in New York. This information included copies of messages that passed between Bernstorff and the German Foreign Office, relative to the propositions made by Bolo, the aliases used by Bernstorff and other German agents in communicating with Herr Zimmermann, then the German Foreign Secretary, and particulars of a conference held at the Ritz-Carlton by Bernstorff, Pavenstedt, and Hugo Schmidt, the Deutsche Bank representative, at which the Ambassador announced his own and Berlin's approval of the Bolo Pasha scheme for the corruption of the French press in the interest of Germany and the bringing about of a separate peace.

A fact which stands out in all the testimony taken by Mr. Lewis is that Germany was ready to go almost any length to negotiate a separate peace with France. Pavenstedt on the witness stand told how the proposition put forward by the French traitor appealed to Bernstorff and how the diplomat lost no time in consummating the conspiracy and placing unlimited credit at the disposal of Bolo Pasha.

Bernstorff Known as "Gledhill."

It was Hugo Schmidt, the agent of the Deutsche Bank and the paymaster in the Bolo affair, who divulged to Attorney General Lewis the aliases used by Bernstorff in communicating with Dr. Zimmermann. In these messages Bernstorff was referred to as "Charles Gledhill," the German Foreign Office was "William Foxley," and the code word for the Guaranty Trust Company was "Fred Hooven," while little sums such as $100 meant $100,000, or perhaps $1,000,000. Schmidt said that the Ambassador made his inquiries regarding the Bolo proposition by cable, a statement which indicated that the wireless was not the only means Bernstorff had of communicating with Germany.

Schmidt contended while on the stand that he did not know what use was to be made of the $1,700,000 he checked out of the Guaranty Trust Company and the National Park Bank, all of which finally reached Bolo as adeposit to his credit in the Royal Bank of Canada, New York branch; Bernstorff said he wanted the money, and the Deutsche Bank wirelessed him to let "Herr Gledhill" have it.

In the course of his examination by Deputy Attorney General Alfred L. Becker, who cross-examined the witness at the request of Attorney General Lewis, Pavenstedt said that he first met Bolo Pasha in the early part of 1914, before the outbreak of the war in Europe. He met him, he said, in Havana, where Bolo had gone to establish a Cuban branch of the Paris banking house of Perrier & Co., the bank to which was transferred $1,000,000 of the money given to Bolo by Bernstorff.

Pavenstedt said the next time he saw Bolo was when the latter arrived in New York on Washington's Birthday last year. Pavenstedt said that a few days later Bolo showed him a contract between Bolo and Senator Charles Humbert, owner of Le Journal of Paris, which detailed the money interest that Bolo was about to acquire in that publication.

"Did Bolo say anything to you about purchasing an interest in other Paris newspapers?" Mr. Becker asked Pavenstedt.

Buying Into Other Papers.

When he stated the large sum he required he mentioned that he needed it for paying his obligations to Senator Humbert," replied the witness. "I am not certain whether he said he had already bought or intended to buy an interest in other papers."

"Name some of those papers."

"I think that they were provincial papers. He said some were in the provinces. He did not mention any of the well known Paris dailies."

"Was La Paix, published in Madrid, mentioned?"

"I do not recollect that it was."

"Was there any mention of Le Bonnet Rouge?"

"Not to my recollection."

"Was the Tranchee Republicaine mentioned?"

"I candidly tell you that I do not remember what papers he mentioned, and I never heard before the names that he did mention."

"I understand that these papers, whose names you have forgotten, were mentioned at the first meeting with Bolo at the Plaza?"

"Yes, I remember vaguely that he told me that Le Journal was his great card. I knew what Senator Charles Humbert meant in France. I knew that Senator Humbert was one of the leading politicians and most patriotic men in France."

"Did you attend a dinner of a somewhat elaborate character given by Bolo at Sherry's?"

"Yes."

"How many persons were present?"

"Twelve."

"Can you name them?"

Mr. and Mrs. Hearst There.

"There were Mr. and Mrs. Hearst of the Hearst papers—of the New York American—and Jules Bois, the French poet. The others were strangers to me."

"Who introduced Bolo to Mr. Hearst?"

"I do not know. I have no knowledge of his relations with Mr. Hearst at all."

"Had he met Mr. Hearst at any time before this trip to America?"

"I don't know."

"Had he ever discussed Mr. Hearst with you?"

"He did in a social way. He told me that he had called on them and that he (Mr. Hearst) had a wonderful home and pictures. It was all about personal matters."

Pavenstedt some days before the dinner had introduced Bolo to Vice President Voorhees of the National City Bank.

"To whom did you introduce Bolo besides Mr. Voorhees?" Mr. Becker asked.

"I introduced him to George Kessler, a champagne agent."

Pavenstedt then told of going to a

HAIG'S SUCCESS COMPLETE

GERMANS YIELD IN DROVES

GAINS ARE EXTENDED NORTH

They Include Crest of the Passchendaele Heights as Far as Ypres-Roulers Railway.

LONDON, Oct. 4.—Field Marshal Haig this morning delivered another powerful blow upon the German lines east of Ypres, and his troops are now in possession of newly conquered territory on a front of more than eight miles, having penetrated the foe's positions, at the most advanced point of the attack, to a depth of about a mile and a half.

The Reuter correspondent at British Headquarters in France says of the results of the drive:

"Today is one of the great days in army annals. The victory is being proclaimed as one of the greatest since the Marne."

The British assault, which covered the territory from the region north of Langemarck, on the Ypres-Staden railway, to a point south of Tower Hamlets (a height to the south of the Ypres-Menin highroad,) was completely successful, according to Field Marshal Haig's report, all its objectives having been gained.

The crest of the main ridge, which dominates the German positions to the east of the Ypres salient, is in British hands up to a point 1,000 yards north of the village of Broodseinde, (half a mile east of the Zonnebeke Station, on the Ypres-Roulers Railway,) which was captured in today's advance.

Prisoners are pouring back to the British rear lines in greater numbers than in the earlier "push," more than 3,000 having been collected already.

British Win Dominating Heights.

The Associated Press correspondent at the British front in France and Belgium telegraphs:

"The trial of strength among the strongholds composing the Germans crucially important system of defenses along the Passchendaele-Gheluvelt ridge was renewed at dawn today, when the British again surged forward over a wide front to the east and northeast of Ypres. Within a few hours great success had already been recorded throughout the zone involved.

"At some places the British had penetrated to a depth of a mile and had overrun the crest of the ridge which the Germans had held so long.

"On the northern wing the onrushing troops are battling forward within a short distance of Poelcapelle. They have got a footing on the famous Gravenstafel Ridge, which juts out from Passchendaele Ridge to the west, and they have crashed their way through the blood-drenched Zonnebeke-Broodseinde Ridge, which forms an integral part of the Passchendaele-Gheluvelt Chain.

"Between the village of Broodseinde on the north and Noordenhoek, a mile to the south, at an early hour they were holding to the crest of the ridge itself in the face of heavy counterattacks from the desperate enemy. Some had penetrated well beyond the hamlet of Broodseinde, in which lie the crossroads formed by the highways between Zonnebeke and Moorslede and Passchendaele and Becelaere, where so many Germans have recently given their lives to swell the toll claimed by the British artillery.

"Further south Cameron Covert, which has been the scene of so much hard fighting, had been left well in the rear.

"Everywhere the British arms have done splendidly in the opening hours of the offensive, which is one of the most pretentious attempted along this front. The attack was launched at 6 o'clock under heavy clouds and mist. There had been a slight drizzle during the night, which caused some anxiety to the British observers. But the threatened heavier rain held off, and the prospects were little damaged.

"A tremendous barrage preceded the infantry into the enemy country, leaving a trail of death and devastation behind it. As this terrifying deluge broke over the German lines batches of the enemy rushed forward in many places and raised their hands in token of surrender. Prisoners were coming in much more rapidly and in greater numbers than in the last fight.

Barrage Hits German Divisions.

"There was an unusual feature in the battle near Zonnebeke. Three German Divisions had been ordered to retake the line the British captured here last week. The attack was set for 6 o'clock. The Germans were caught in the British barrage as they were preparing to push forward, and lost grievously.

"The left wing of the British offensive today was heavily shelled by the Chapelle and Glencorse Wood and Inverness Copse were put under an intense fire. The British casualties were reported as exceedingly light, but the battle is still raging furiously, and much sanguinary fighting seems certain before its close. The Germans undoubtedly will use every means in their power to retake this invaluable territory and determined counterattacks are expected."

Ridge Vital to German Defense.

"The Passchendaele-Gheluvelt Ridge, which makes its sinuous way in a northeasterly direction from the old Ypres salient, has been a vital defense of the Germans in this section of the western front. It has been a barrier between the British and occupied Belgium. Beyond it can be seen the cultivated fields of King Albert's prisoner subjects.

"Tower Hamlets, Inverness Copse, Glencorse Wood, Polygon Wood, and numerous other positions which formed part of the Passchendaele-Gheluvelt chain on its southern end have been torn from the bitterly resisting enemy and have been held in the face of determined counterattacks. Today the British were again reaching out for still more of these crucial points.

"The Passchendaele-Gheluvelt elevation would not be characterized as a ridge in America. At its highest point it is not more than 200 feet above sea level, and the approaches to the crest are gradual undulations in most places. As a matter of fact, it is really composed of a series of ridges and hills. There is a Passchendaele Ridge proper, upon which stands the town of the same name. Below this is Broodseinde Ridge, and still lower down Gheluvelt.

"From the village of Passchendaele it stretches in a southwesterly direction toward the old salient in long curves like the letter S. At inverness Copse it reaches its nearest approach to the stricken city of Ypres, which lies about four miles to the west of it."

"All Our Objectives Gained."

Following is the text of the night official report:

Our attack this morning was launched on a front of over eight miles from south of Tower Hamlets to the Ypres-Staden Railway, north of Langemarck, and has been completely successful. All our objectives have been gained, positions of great importance have been won and over 1,000 German prisoners have already reached the collecting stations.

We are now in possession of the main ridge up to a point 1,00 yards north of Broodseinde.

"South of the Menin Road, where only a short advance was intended, our objectives were reached at an early hour. North of the road the English battalions carried the hamlet of Polderhoek and Polderhoek Chateau, where sharp fighting occurred, and drove the enemy from numerous farms and small woods south and east of Polygon Wood. Australian troops captured Molenaarelthoek and cleared the houses on the Zonnebeke-Broodseinde Road.

"The advance against our final objectives was carried out inaccordance with the plan, and was attended by equal success. English troops took the villages of Reutel and Noordenhork, and secured the high ground overlooking Becelaere. Australian regiments captured Broodseinde and established themselves well over the crest of the ridge five miles east of Ypres, which gives observation eastward.

Most of Poelcapelle Won.

"On the left of our attack English troops carried the greater part of Poelcapelle Village, and secured the line of their objectives east of Poelcapelle Church.

"The whole of our objectives had been captured before midday. Information obtained from prisoners and confirmed by identifications of German units and by the numbers of German dead established the fact that our attack anticipated by a few minutes an attack in force by five German divisions against our front from Plygon Wood to Zonnebeke.

"Our artillery barrage descended upon the enemy's troops as they were assembling, and the hostile attack never took place. Those of the enemy's infantry who escaped the fire of our artillery were overwhelmed by the advance of our infantry. In consequence of the enemy's losses in the area of his intended attack, few counterattacks have yet developed.

"Two counterattacks attempted early in the afternoon east of Gravenstafel were in each case broken up by our fire before reaching our positions. Another counterattack northeast of Langemarck resulted in severe fighting, but it was unable to drive our troops from the positions they had gained. Later in the afternoon three other unsuccessful counterattacks were made by the enemy."

Berlin Admits 1,000-yard Loss.

BERLIN, Oct. 4. (via London.)—To-night's report of the Flanders battle issued by Army Headquarters says that the British drive east of Ypres has penetrated about 1,000 yards into the German defensive zone. The statement reads:

On the battlefield in Flanders the British during today's great attack penetrated only about one kilometre deep (about 1,000 yards) into our defensive zone between Poelcapelle and Gheluvelt. Especially fierce fighting is still proceeding to the east of Zonnebeke and west of Becelaere.

On the other fronts there is nothing of importance.

Throughout the night a powerful artillery duel continued unabated from Houthoulst Wood as far as the Lys. This morning it increased to drumfire. With the launching of strong British attacks the Ypres bend the battle of Flanders again developed.

With the other armies the fighting activity throughout the day for the most part remained moderate, due to bad sighting conditions, and only revived toward the evening.

HALT GERMANS NEAR VERDUN.

French Repulse an Attack and Shell Enemy Concentrations.

PARIS, Oct. 4.—Violent artillery fighting has been in progress all day on the right bank of the Meuse, in the Verdun sector, where the French this morning repulsed a German infantry attack, and turned their guns upon enemy concentrations of troops. Artillery and grenade engagements took place south of Ailles, near the Chemin des Dames.

The statement issued by the War Office tonight says:

There were grenade engagements and artillery actions on the plateau south of Ailles. An enemy surprise attack was repulsed west of Pompelle.

There was very violent artillery fighting all day on the right bank of the Meuse. We repulsed this morning an enemy attack against one of our trenches north of Hill 344. Our artillery caught under its fire enemy concentrations in this region.

BERLIN, Oct. 4.—(via London.)—A strong French attack in the Verdun sector east of Samogneux was repulsed by the German troops last evening, according to the report from army headquarters. The French losses were heavy. The communication reads:

Army of the German Crown Prince: On the eastern bank of the Meuse a most intense fire suddenly began at nightfall on Hill 344, East of Samogneux. In deep columns the French shortly afterward came forward to attack, with the object of recapturing positions won by us. The storming efforts broke down with heavy losses and without result under the defensive fire of our artillery, and in the face of the Württembergers' stubborn resistance.

HAVE CAPTURED 51,435 GERMANS IN THE WEST

British Have Also Taken 332 Guns Since July 31 and Lost None.

LONDON, Oct. 4.—In a statement to The Associated Press on today's victory east of Ypres, in which he reported the capture of all the British objectives on a front of 16,000 yards, General Frederick E. Maurice, Chief Director of Military Operations at the War Office, summed up British gains since July 31.

Since that date, he said the British had captured 51,435 Germans and 332 field and heavy guns on the west front, having themselves lost 15,065 prisoners and no guns. In all theatres of the war they have taken 72,518 prisoners and 470 guns and have lost 15,850 prisoners and no guns.

A map of the Flanders battlefield, with the day's objectives marked in colored crayons, lay on the desk before the General, indicating the extent and importance of the victory and the positions on the crest of the ridge now held by the British troops. After pointing out the objectives, General Maurice turned to the makeup of the Flanders army and said:

"The troops which have been engaged in the fighting from July 31 to the present are composed as follows: British, (English,) 70 per cent.; Colonials, 16; Scottish, 8; Irish, 6. The casualties in the same period are distributed as follows: British, 76 per cent.; Colonials, 8; Scottish, 10; Irish, 6."

Summing up the work of the British Army in the first nine months of the year, the General said:

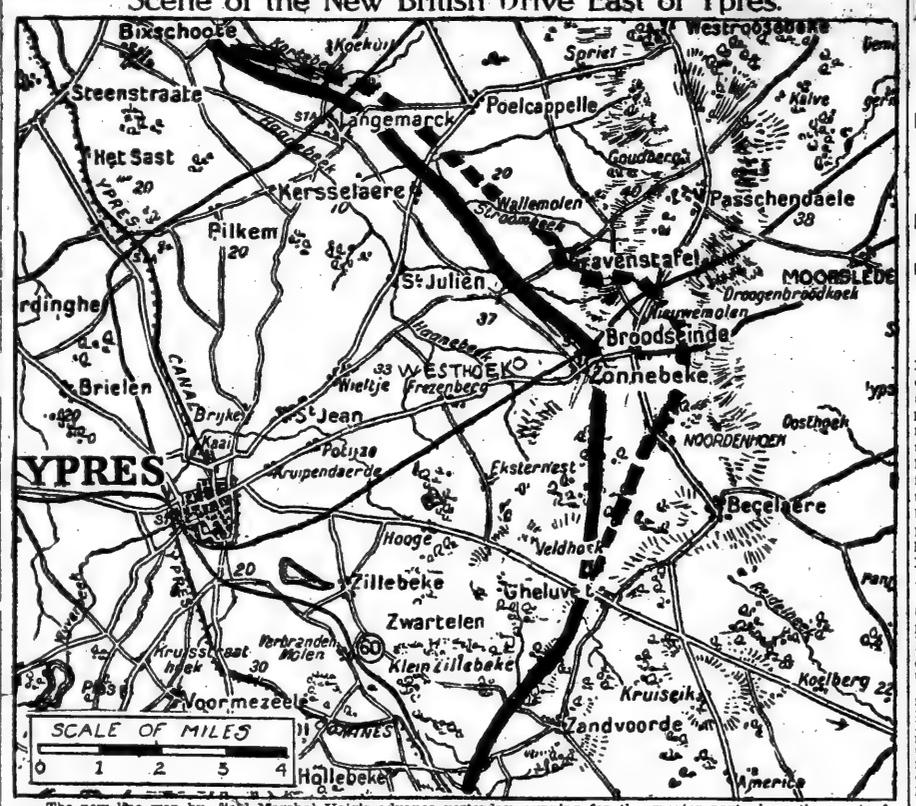
"During that period we have taken on the west front 51,435 German prisoners and 332 field and heavy guns, while our losses have been 15,065 prisoners and no guns.

"In all theatres we have taken 72,518 prisoners and 470 guns, and have lost 15,850 prisoners and no guns."

With reference to aerial operations, General Maurice said:

"The general impression has got abroad recently that we are a long way behind in the air—not only behind the Germans, but also behind the French and Italians. That is not true. During the recent air raids on London the Germans dropped four and a half tons of explosives on the London area. In the same period British aviators dropped 215 tons of bombs on objectives behind the German lines. We have always led the enemy in the air, and are still leading.

"During the whole battle of Ypres, from July 31 to the present, we have not allowed the Germans to interfere with the regular routine of our reconnaissances and photographic machines and other necessary offensive activities."



The new line won by Field Marshal Haig's advance yesterday, running for the greater part along the crest of the Passchendaele-Gheluvelt ridge, is indicated approximately by a broken line. The British front, as it was yesterday morning before the attack, is indicated by a heavy black line.

ACCUSES MALVY OF BEING TRAITOR

RAISES STORM IN CHAMBER

Painlevé, Upheld by Deputies, Promises Immediate Investigation of Charges.

PARIS, Oct. 4.—Louis J. Malvy, ex-Minister of the Interior, who resigned office on account of press attacks against him in connection with exposures of German intrigues, caused a nation-wide sensation by announcing in the Chamber of Deputies today that he had been slanderously accused of abusing his position as minister to betray the country. The charges were made by Leon Daudet, son of the late Alphonse Daudet, the noted writer, in a letter to President Poincaré, which Premier Painlevé read at the request of M. Malvy.

After Malvy had indignantly denied the charges, and Premier Painlevé had promised the Chamber that M. Daudet would be obliged to prove his words, the Chamber voted confidence in the Government, with a number of abstentions, principally among the Socialists.

The Minister of Justice, M. Peret, admitted that the present state of the law made it impossible to proceed against M. Daudet, the charges having been made in a private letter. He, however, undertook to introduce a bill "making impossible a repetition of such slanderous acts, which sowed distrust and pessimism throughout the country."

Climax of Daudet's Campaign.

M. Daudet's action is the climax of a long campaign he has been conducting in his newspaper, L'Action Française, against German espionage which he started long before the war. He at first was generally regarded as attaching too much importance to this subject, but a number of persons against whom he directed his attacks, notably, Miguel Almereyda, editor of the Bonnet Rouge, Jellinek, Margulies, Landau and Goldsky, having been arrested, the public began to recognize that there was considerable truth behind his articles, especially since the Clemenceau attack on M. Malvy and the Bonnet Rouge in the Senate.

M. Daudet himself had already requested Captain Bouchardon, of the Paris Military Court, to take a deposition in support of the charges against M. Malvy. A subpoena was sent to him today, but he failed to appear.

The public awaits with eagerness further developments in the affair, which in France dwarfs almost every other topic.

It was after the Chamber of Deputies today decided to take up immediately discussion of the case of Bolo Pasha, arrested on the charge of having conducted German propaganda in France, that ex-Minister Malvy said:

"The President of the Republic has received a letter from Leon Daudet, (leader of the Royalist Association and editor of L'Action Française.) This letter, reciting infamous calumnies against me, has been transmitted to the Premier, who has communicated it to me. I cannot accept this letter in silence.

"The accusations against M. Malvy," Premier Painlevé interrupted, "are very grave. He is accused of having betrayed secrets to Germany during three years."

"M. Malvy is accused of having wished to enter the War Council to deliver to the German command the plan of attack upon the Chemin-des-Dames. M. Daudet declared that the hand of the Surete Generale (political police attached to the Ministry of the Interior) was in the troubles of May."

"The letter! the letter!" was shouted from all parts of the Chamber.

"Treason Proves Superabundant."

"I will obey the will of the House," said the Premier, "but I must say that this letter is not addressed to me. In it M. Daudet affirms that, with regard to M. Malvy and M. Leymarie, (former head of the Surete Generale,) the proofs of treason are superabundant. The letter cites two accusations, one concerning the attack on the Chemin-des-Dames, the other regarding the troubles in May. It is essential, the letter says, to deliver M. Malvy immediately to military justice."

Daudet's Outspoken Charges.

M. Daudet's letter to President Poincaré reads thus:

"I address myself to you because it is important that you should be informed on what no longer is a secret for many people, and also because you have a great rôle to play and can save France.

"M. Malvy, former Minister of the Interior, is a traitor. He has betrayed the national defense for three years with the complicity of M. Leymarie and some others. Proofs of this treason superabound. It would be too long to lay them before you. Be assured only that M. Malvy has kept Germany fully informed of all our military and diplomatic plans, notably by the bank of spies of the Bonnet Rouge, by his friend Vigo, (Almereyda,) and by one Bouter, Director of the Maggi Kub, (As Beef Extract Company.)

"It was thus the German high command knew, point by point, to quote only one example of the plan to attack the Chemins-des-Dames. See the Spanish newspaper A. B. C. of July 23, 1917. When Malvy was admitted to the Council of War it was with applause from the Bonnet Rouge.

"Know also that documents of indisputable authenticity show the hand of M. Malvy and of the Sureté Generale, (the political police attached to the Ministry of the Interior,) in the military mutinies and the tragic events of June, 1917.

"It lies with you, Mr. President, to verify the foundation of these accusations by a rapid investigation, which will be an easy matter for you, and to do prompt justice, for it is reported that Germany, to cause trouble in the public mind, is getting ready to give M. Malvy away in a short time as useless to her cause.

"The only means to destroy the German plans, therefore, is to act and bring before the military tribunals the wretch who has delivered France to the enemy, morsel by morsel.

"In any way, fulfilling what I believe is my duty as a Frenchman with regard to you, Mr. President, I fix a date with a view to later eventualities and remain,

"Very respectfully,
"LEON DAUDET."

The Chamber of Deputies which resumed its sessions at 6:20 o'clock this evening, discussed the Bolo interpellation, after which M. Painlevé said that M. Daudet would be heard by an investigating Magistrate on his accusations against M. Malvy and that justice would take its regular course.

The Chamber desired immediate action on M. Daudet's accusations, and M. Painlevé stated that if within forty-eight hours Daudet had not proved his charges, severe measures would be taken against him.

Charles Dumont, ex-Minister of Finance, demanded that M. Daudet be summoned to testify before an investigation commission, to be composed of members of the Chamber of Deputies.

Joseph Caillaux, ex-Premier, said he had taken note of M. Painleve's declaration, adding: "I cannot conceive of liberty of the press without responsibility."

M. Moutet, Socialist, said he was unable to feel confidence in Premier Painleve, whose want of vigor had allowed the present state of affairs to be created.

M. Painleve asserted that his energy had never been deficient, and that he would employ administrative measures against M. Daudet if he failed to furnish proofs. He said he intended to introduce a law providing penalties against calumniators whose conduct proved to be a danger to France.

A vote then was taken on a motion proposing confidence in the Government. The motion carried, 380 to 3. More than a quarter of the members of the Chamber abstained from voting.

Bolo Revelations Suppressed.

The case of Bolo Pasha and other espionage cases closely bound up with it continue to absorb the public attention, as each new step in the investigation, which is being conducted with vigor and dispatch, brings out new facts involving new persons.

Bolo Pasha has been interrogated in his cell in the Fresnes Prison infirmary by Captain Louchardon of the Paris Military Court in the presence of his lawyer, Jacques Bonzon. The newspaper reports of the interrogation are studded with large blank spaces, the censorship having forbidden the publication of the details of the proceedings, and the text of cablegrams and letters connected with the case.

Paul Poncet, Socialist member of the Chamber of Deputies, announces that he will interpellate the Government on what steps it intends to take "with regard to the newspapers which received subsidies from Bolo." A stormy debate is likely to result, in the course of which it is expected that M. Malvy will speak.

Accused in Bonnet Rouge Scandal.

Accusations against Louis J. Malvy, Minister of the Interior in the recent Ribot Cabinet, have been made in the Paris press ever since the Bonnet Rouge affair became an open scandal with the arrest of the director of that newspaper, M. Duval, on the charge of imparting information and the arrest of the editor, Almereyda, and his death in prison. Bolo Pasha is believed to have subsidized the Bonnet Rouge in German peace interests.

On Sept. 21 Deputy Georges Bonnefous wrote to Jules Steeg, Malvy's successor, asking whether Malvy, while Minister, paid a monthly subvention of 8,000 francs out of the Secret Service fund of the Ministry to the Bonnet Rouge.

The Secret Service Chief, M. Leymarie, discovered last Spring that M. Duval was making trips to Switzerland. He arested him, and found on him a check for 450,000 francs. The check was photographed and Duval released.

On Aug. 20 Leymarie was called by Malvy and criticised for not reporting the case to him. When M. Leymarie left the office he had resigned from the Secret Service.

Then came on Aug. 31 the resignation of Malvy, who is a Radical Socialist. It is said that Malvy decided to resign when he read an attack upon him in L'Homme Enchaine by M. Clemenceau, who tried to prove that Malvy had been on intimate terms with Almereyda.

Clemenceau has summed up the case against Malvy as follows:

"As the Minister of the Interior it was his duty to protect the country and the army from this reptile press. He did not. Why? He was acquainted with Vigo (otherwise Almereyda) and addressed him in the familiar second person singular—tu, toi, &c. He had, moreover, given him moneys from the Secret Service fund."

BOLO PROPERLY INTRODUCED.

Royal Bank of Canada Had No Suspicion of Traitorous Activities.

MONTREAL, Oct. 4.—The head office of the Royal Bank of Canada issued today the following statement regarding the report of the financial operations in New York of Bolo Pasha, now under arrest in Paris as a German spy:

"No transaction of an unusual nature has taken place in the agency of the Royal Bank of Canada in New York. Bolo Pasha was introduced to the Royal Bank by its Paris bankers. A deposit account was opened, but after a short time the funds were withdrawn and transferred to J. P. Morgan & Co. In so far as the Royal Bank is concerned the transaction was entirely regular, and the New York office of the bank had not the slightest suspicion that the depositor had any connection with von Bernstorff or the German Government."

ARABS IN REVOLT LINK UP WITH BRITISH

Control Hedjaz Railway as Far North as Maan — Drive Against Turks Predicted.

Interesting military possibilities in Palestine are forecast in advices from Mecca, as reported in Arabic newspapers reaching New York, to the effect that the Arabs in Arabia, in revolt against the Turks, have effected a junction with the British army in Southern Palestine.

The Arab revolt was making increased headway when the latest British official statement regarding it, issued on Aug. 22, reported its progress. The King of the Hedjaz, as the new head of the Arabian revolution is styled, was then declared to be conducting military operations on a comprehensive and well-thought-out scale and to be definitely attached his cause to that of the Allies. Already a considerable section of the Hedjaz Railway, running parallel with the Red Sea Coast northward from Medina, had fallen under Arab control.

The current advices state that this railway is now controlled by the Arabs as far north as Maan, about seventy miles northeast of Akaba, at the head of the Gulf of Akaba, on the easterly side of the Sinai Peninsula.

GOAD SOLDIERS WITH LASH.

Italians Say Austrian Officers Whip Men Into Battle.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

ITALIAN HEADQUARTERS, Oct. 3—The last Italian advance is memorable for the rapidity with which the enemy was surprised, the quantity of booty seized and the importance of the positions won. The mountain conquered is surmounted by five peaks each 2,500 feet high, forming a single rocky, arid height. The enemy placed observatories on each of these five tops from which they were able to observe all the Italian movements in the valley and the ravine roads leading to the Bainsizza Plateau.

The Italians found the Austrian trenches filled with dead bodies. Crossing these, they pressed two hundred yards forward over the hilltop and reached a line of caverns where Austrians had taken refuge. Here they found a quantity of food, wines, liquers, playing cards, bottles of perfume and cigarettes. The Austrian officers were sad, but the younger soldiers were joyful at escaping further danger.

As usual after the occupation of new positions, terrible, furious counterattacks commenced, the Austrian officers horsewhipping their soldiers to induce them to advance. The Italian infantry, however, in their strongly fortified positions constitute an almost unbreakable iron barrier.

AUSTRIAN ATTACKS FAIL.

Enemy Continues Desperate Efforts to Retake Gabriele Positions.

ROME, Oct. 4.—Further violent attacks by the Austrians against the positions held by the Italians on the slopes of Monte San Gabriele in the Gorizia sector have been repulsed, according to the Italian official communication issued today. The text of the communication follows:

From Tuesday evening to yesterday afternoon fighting continued on the western slope of Monte San Gabriele. Repeated enemy attacks, delivered with the support of numerous assaulting parties, were broken up by our fire. In a raid we captured four officers and twenty-two soldiers who were hidden in a cavern. In the Raccogleano sector a successful raid gained us twenty-seven additional prisoners. On the remainder of the front there have been the usual artillery duels.

An enemy airplane which was attacked by one of our airmen above Aussa was forced to land inside our lines. The crew was made prisoner.

FRENCH CIVILIANS AIDED.

Red Cross Donations for Families of Officers and Soldiers.

PARIS, Wednesday, Oct. 3.—The President of the Municipal Council of Paris has received 270,667 francs from the American Red Cross for the families of officers and soldiers, domiciled in Paris, in want through the war.

The President of the General Council of the Department of the Seine has also received 133,333 francs for similar distribution in the suburbs.

The President of the General Council of Saint Etienne has received 50,000 francs for the benefit of wounded in the Department of the Loire.

The warmest thanks have been extended to the Red Cross for these three donations.

FACTORY FRANCE'S HOPE.

Editor Says She Must Meet German After-War Trade Combat.

In the October issue of The New France, the editor, Denys Amiel, paints a picture of France after the war. "France too must set her face toward the factory," writes Mr. Amiel. "To live she must work—and to find work she must adapt herself. This does not mean, be it well understood, that in those departments of life where she has ever excelled in hand work she is to try to excel by the method of machinery and materialism—there is no need for her to change the objective of her work—she does not need to add new fields of endeavor to her appointed ones—but it does mean that where for centuries the hand has done the loving labor of the craftsman-artist the machine must now bring the product (and many examples of the product at once) to the last possible point before the hand of the artist becomes indispensable. If a hundred pieces of leather are to be stamped in approximately the same way we cannot waste the life of the nation in stamping each one separately by careful seal—we must accept the fact of the internationalisation of the standardised demand.

"In articles of luxury France has always led and in articles of luxury she will continue to lead. That is one field where she will most prevail and find the income to reconstruct her shattered lands. But though necessity lead her the spirit will inform, and where the informing of the spirit has an actual commercial value France will remain supreme."

The writer reaches his conclusions on the premise that after the war Germany will be ready for a greater trade combat and France must meet her.

FRENCH LOST 10 STEAMERS.

Five of Last Week's Victims Were of a Tonnage of Over 1,600.

PARIS, Wednesday, Oct. 3, (Delayed.)—The weekly report of losses to French shipping by submarines and mines shows that five vessels of more than 1,600 tons each and five of less than that size were destroyed. Four of the smaller ships were lost in the preceding week. Five vessels were attacked unsuccessfully, one of them in the previous week. Six fishing vessels were sunk, two of them in the preceding week.

May Let Mexico Have Gold.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 4.—The American embargo against the shipment of gold abroad, to prevent it from falling into German hands, will probably be modified to permit the withdrawal from the United States of gold deposited in this country by Mexico. It was officially intimated today that it seemed unjust to refuse to permit Mexico to take out of the country gold placed here by that country. The Federal Reserve Board is studying other problems arising out of the gold embargo with a view to ameliorating conditions of reported hardship.

SEPARATE PEACE WAS BOLO'S OBJECT

Pavenstedt said he introduced Bolo to Mr. Voorhees at a little luncheon he gave the two at the Down Town Association. He said that as Mr. Voorhees did not speak French and as Bolo spoke no English, he acted as interpreter. Mr. Voorhees, he added, did not appear to be at all interested in Bolo, and never had any reason to suspect that Bolo was any but the most loyal of Frenchmen.

At the conclusion of the examination of Pavenstedt and Schmidt, Mr. Becker said:

Wanted Americans In.

"Pavenstedt has produced certain papers, which I shall refer to later. He stated that at his first meeting with Bolo Pasha, which was immediately after Bolo arrived in New York, Bolo informed him that he had been in touch with friends in Switzerland, and that he had reason to believe that a peace propaganda in France, at that time, would be successful.

"Bolo, according to Pavenstedt, said he understood Germany was willing to conclude a separate peace with France, which would involve the cession by France to Germany of some of the French colonies, and the cession by Germany to France of a part of Alsace-Lorraine and an evacuation by Germany of all the occupied territory in Northern France.

"I asked Pavenstedt if he inferred from what Bolo said that the latter had been in communication with German officials. Pavenstedt replied that he drew no such inference and that in his opinion what Bolo had said was nothing but 'town gossip.'

"Bolo discussed at length with Pavenstedt the separate peace proposition and told Pavenstedt that he thought the peace plot could be advanced by getting various people to invest in French newspapers. He said the people he had in mind were people interested in peace. In the opinion of Pavenstedt, Bolo had Americans in mind when he made the above statement.

"Pavenstedt says he informed Bolo that under conditions as they then existed it would be absurd to submit such a scheme as Bolo had in mind to any person as a business proposition. The money, according to Pavenstedt, was to be loaned to Bolo without interest and was to be payable two years after peace was declared. Pavenstedt advised Bolo to get in touch with Bernstorff.

"At the suggestion that he see Bernstorff, Bolo, according to Pavenstedt, shrugged his shoulders and said he preferred that somebody else should see the Ambassador. Pavenstedt agreed to place the proposition before Bernstorff, and went to Washington. Pavenstedt said that, as he viewed the matter now, it looked as if Bolo, a shrewd intriguer, had foreseen that by coming in close contact with Pavenstedt, who had been close to German diplomats for twenty years, the matter would finally reach the German Ambassador.

Didn't Mention Name of Bolo.

"Pavenstedt told Bernstorff about the proposition, although he swears he did not mention the name of Bolo. He did tell Bernstorff, he said, that the unnamed Frenchman was a friend of Humbert. Bernstorff told Pavenstedt that he would consider the matter, and a few days later the Count arrived in New York and met Pavenstedt and Hugo Schmidt at the Ritz-Carlton Hotel.

"'I have decided,' Bernstorff said to Pavenstedt and Schmidt, 'to provide the funds needed in this enterprise.'

"Bernstorff then told Schmidt that he was to make such disposition of the $1,700,000 as Pavenstedt might direct.

"Schmidt insists that he was a commercial and not a political agent of the Deutsche Bank, and that what he did in the case was done as a result of orders received from the bank in Berlin. We have copies of these messages in which Bernstorff is referred to as 'Gledhill' and the German Foreign Office as 'Foxley.' The first of these messages, which was wiredssed from Sayville by Schmidt, read:

Communicate with William Foxley (foreign office) and telegraph whether he has placed money at my disposal with you for Charles Gledhill, (Bernstorff.)

The answer received one week later read:

Replying your cablegram about Charles Gledhill, (Bernstorff,) Fred Hooven (Guaranty Trust Company) will receive money for account. You may dispose according to our letter, Nov. 24, 1914.
DIREKTION DEUTSCHE BANK.

"The letter of Nov. 24, Schmidt testified, gave the Guaranty Trust Company the power of attorney to dispose of money on the order of Schmidt.

"A message sent to the Deutsche Bank on March 13 by Schmidt stated that he had paid to Charles Gledhill (Bernstorff) through Fred Hooven (Guaranty Trust Company) the sum of $500,000, and that Charles Gledhill needed at least $1,000,000 more, to be paid to him 'graciously.' A wireless from the bank to Schmidt fixed the amount to be paid to Gledhill at $1,700,000. Other messages sent by Schmidt to Berlin showed how the money had been turned over to Bernstorff, the total amount reaching $1,683,500.

"As soon as Bernstorff received his final instructions he communicated with Pavenstedt and told him the money was available. Pavenstedt immediately communicated the information to Bolo, and Bolo then notified J. P. Morgan & Co. that funds were about to be deposited with that bank to the credit of Humbert.

"Pavenstedt contends that the plot which brought Bolo to New York was not prearranged. We are told that Bernstorff provided $1,700,000 for somebody he did not know. I am not making any charges, but simply calling attention to the generosity of the former German Ambassador in turning over nearly $1,700,000 to an unidentified total stranger.

"Schmidt, who appears to be a sort of alternate director of the Deutsche Bank, maintains that he did not know Bolo and never even saw him. He was apparently the financial prop of the undertaking, and he knew nothing about what was going on."

Ernest Charles Pignatel of 645 West End Avenue, who was in charge of the commercial credit department of the Royal Bank of Canada, testified that he met Bolo at the bank in February, 1916, when Bolo went there and presented the letters of introduction he had brought with him from France. At the time Pignatel said Bolo represented to him that the object of his mission in America was to place unusually large contracts for print paper. He said he was the owner of Le Journal, and that at a conference of Paris newspaper publishers he had been commissioned to contract either here or in Canada for not less than 20,000 tons of print paper monthly.

He said that Bolo spoke no English and for that reason Pignatel, who spoke French fluently, was designated by the bank's officers to transact Bolo's business. Pignatel verified and explained in detail the transfer of funds for Bolo into the Royal Bank of Canada from G. Amsinck & Co., and out of it on Bolo's orders. Pignatel testified that he was interested in the lectures here of Jules Bois, to whose credit in the Royal Bank of Canada Bolo had placed $5,000, against which Bois drew from time to time. Pignatel expressed the desire to meet Bois and was invited to the Plaza Hotel for lunch by Bolo, where Bolo did meet Bois. At that luncheon Pignatel testified Bolo informed him of Bolo's acquaintance with William Randolph Hearst.

"He informed me that he had given a dinner, at Sherry's, I believe, at which he had invited Mr. Hearst," said Pignatel.

"Meaning the proprietor of The New York American?" asked Mr. Becker.

"That is what I understand. He mentioned him as 'Mr. Hearst,' and I happened to remember that because he made a statement that his floral decorations were so beautiful. He spent a great deal of money on the floral decorations, and it was that incident—that gorgeous display of flowers—which amused me and drew my attention to that dinner."

"Was anything said at the time to the effect that he believed Mr. Hearst to be pro-German, and was trying to convert him to the Allies?"

"Yes."

A Valued Client.

Attorney General Lewis made public several letters which passed between the banking house of Morgan, Harjes & Co. of Paris and J. P. Morgan & Co. of New York. In one of the letters written by the Paris house to the New York house, the following reference to Bolo occurs:

"We think it perhaps well to add, in view of the somewhat Oriental sound of this gentleman's name and title, that he is not a Turk, and, in fact, is the brother of a well-known French Archbishop."

Indicating how completely Bolo had deceived his friends in Paris as to his true status is the following cablegram from Morgan, Harjes & Co. to J. P. Morgan & Co.:

"1402. Bolo Pasha says remit us, cable, his balance. Although original agreement not kept, would be very pleased if you could allow some interest, possibly even 2 per cent., in view of connections of this client, which of great importance to us."

HEARST SAYS HE MET BOLO ONLY SOCIALLY

Had No Reason to Suspect He Was a Spy—Threatens to Sue Lewis for Slander.

Special to The New York Times.

LOS ANGELES, Cal., Oct. 4.—William Randolph Hearst, who is a visitor in Los Angeles, issued a statement today in regard to the information given out in New York by Merton E. Lewis, Attorney General of New York State, showing that Mr. Hearst attended a dinner given by Bolo Pasha in New York, in 1916, at which the other guests included Adolph Pavenstedt, involved in the transfer of German funds to Bolo for peace propaganda among the French newspapers; Captains Boy-Ed and von Papen, at that time attachés of the German Embassy at Washington, and Jules Bois, a French lecturer. Mr. Hearst's statement follows:

"The statements and inuendos of the Attorney General of New York in regard to myself and Bolo Pasha are not true, and I challenge him to substantiate his utterances, which are distinctly discreditable to him as a political partisan.

"I met Bolo Pasha merely as a French newspaper man, the reputed representative of the Paris Journal. He came to me and said: 'You use more print paper than any other man in the United States. Will you tell me where to get it best and cheapest? Print paper is almost unobtainable in Paris.'

"I told him where we got our print paper and what we paid for it and gave him all the information about the paper market that I could and that any newspaper man with any courtesy would naturally give to a visiting French journalist.

"Bolo Pasha seemed entirely loyal to his own land and I had no reason to suppose that he was not. He was very polite and very appreciative, like all well-mannered Frenchmen, and invited me to a dinner which he gave to a number of ladies, as well as gentlemen, in the public dining room at Sherry's. The conversation was general and trivial, as it is at all such social dinners.

"That is all that I have ever known or seen or heard of Bolo Pasha. I have never met von Papen or Captain Boy-Ed in my life, and Attorney General Lewis's implications to that effect are unfounded in fact.

"I defy the Attorney General to disprove any word in this statement of mine or to substantiate any one of his own unwarranted implications, except his one truthful statement that my acquaintance with Bolo Pasha was 'purely social.' Should he fail to do so I shall proceed against the small Attorney General of the great State of New York for petty and premeditated slander, in conspiracy with rival newspapers in the interest of his already defeated candidate for Mayor."

CONFIRMS BOLO PLOT.

But State Department Withholds Its Evidence Which Involves Bernstorff

WASHINGTON, Oct. 4.—State Department officials admitted today that they have evidence that Count von Bernstorff, ex-German Ambassador here, directed expenditures of the funds paid to Bolo Pasha, but declined to reveal their evidence, although they may do so after the French Government finishes with Bolo's case. The State Department does not feel justified in revealing its facts at this time.

It was said that out of the multitudinous financial transactions conducted by the German Embassy and its agents many were wholly legitimate, although there are records of many entirely improper from an international aspect. The part played by banking houses, it was indicated in many cases, was entirely justifiable, many of the transactions being in connection with accounts of established concerns for legitimate work.

WEALTHY AUSTRIAN ARRESTED AS A SPY

GENEVA, Switzerland, Oct. 4.—An Austrian named Jellinek Mercedes was arrested today on a charge of espionage for the Central Powers. He was permitted to retain his liberty owing to ill health on depositing bail to the amount of 20,000 francs (normally about $4,000.)

The man, who resided at Nice prior to the war, possessed a vast fortune there, much of which was sequestrated. It is alleged that he was the German master spy in the Riviera, where he was a well-known figure. He was closely associated with another Austrian millionaire named Margulies, who recently was arrested in France, and is reported also to have been a friend of Prefect De Joky, who recently was removed from his post at Nice, mainly, it is alleged, as the result of accusations made against him in connection with his relations with Jellinek Mercedes and other subjects of the Central Powers in the Riviera.

A dispatch from Paris late in August said an Austrian capitalist named Margulies, who had been sent to an enemy concentration camp, was being made the subject of a judicial inquiry. It was added that various documents were seized by the police in his villa at Nice, but that the nature of these papers had not been disclosed.

Greater Strength and Increased Service

THE Guaranty Trust Company of New York has joined the Federal Reserve System. Through this membership, the character of the Company is unchanged but its strength is increased and its opportunities for service are broadened.

With only a few minor exceptions, the Guaranty Trust Company retains all of its charter rights, and will continue its activities as a trust company under the New York State Banking Law. The personnel of its Board of Directors is not in any way affected by its new status.

The advantages resulting from membership will directly benefit the Company's commercial customers, and through them the entire business community.

As a member of the Federal Reserve Bank of New York, the Guaranty Trust Company can enlarge the scope of its acceptance and discount business, securing for its customers the most favorable terms.

As a member bank, this Company has behind it the entire strength and facilities of the Federal Reserve System.

AMERICA TIGHTENS NEUTRAL EMBARGO

CUTS FOE'S LAST SOURCE

New Order, Which Allies Will Join in Enforcing, Completes the Chain Around Germany.

NEUTRALS BLAMED FOR STEP

Exports Board Was Unable to Get from Them Information as to Their Actual Needs.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 4:—A final step to make complete the embargo which will prevent Germany, or northern neutrals of Europe, from obtaining products of the United States, Canada, Mexico, or any of the South American nations that might aid the enemy, was taken today by the Exports Administrative Board, by placing a ban upon bunker coal.

In an official statement it was asserted that the United States had failed to obtain the definite information it had asked of northern neutrals concerning their actual needs for home consumption, and the status of the traffic in which they had engaged with the Central Powers. It was stated further that the Administration had adopted as definite the policy that it would in no way contribute to trade with these neutrals which "will undoubtedly accrue to the benefit of the enemy."

This policy is in line with the steps which have been taken by the Government to obtain an embargo combination against Germany and the northern neutral nations which have been feeding and arming her, in which all of the countries allied against Germany will be involved, and will work in concert. It will end the practice which has been engaged in extensively by some neutral shipping interests, of obtaining here the coal necessary to the transportation to Europe of cargoes of foodstuffs, fodder, and other commodities which were refused to them by the United States.

The step was taken with the approval of all the Allies, who will co-operate by enforcing similar regulations. It follows closely Great Britain's declaration of a complete embargo against the Northern European neutrals, which was designed to strengthen the embargo already put into force by the United States.

Latin-American countries are the only nations left in the world in which Germany has a chance to obtain foodstuffs and other necessaries through the border countries. With this source cut off allied statesmen feel that the ring around Germany is drawn tightly, the economic pressure, reinforcing the Allies' ever-growing military superiority, will make the German people see their cause is hopeless.

The Official Statement.

Here is the official statement:

The Exports Administrative Board, in formulating their policy with regard to granting bunkers to neutral vessels, are actuated solely by the desire to prevent commodities from going to border neutrals for export to Germany. At the present time the Exports Administrative Board will not permit commodities, that may benefit the enemy directly or indirectly, to be exported from this country to the border neutrals, because the board has not yet been able to elicit the information which will enable them to determine whether such commodities will so benefit the enemy; and in accordance with this policy the board feel that consistency demands that they should not grant bunker licenses for a vessel which is bound for a border neutral and carries a cargo which may benefit the enemy, notwithstanding such cargo has originated in another country. In other words, although the board has no means, and does not purpose, to prevent trade between other neutrals and the border neutrals, they are, nevertheless, in a position to state that if vessels wish to use the coal of the United States they should not be permitted to apply our coal to the prosecution of a voyage which will result in supplying or assisting to supply the enemy with foodstuffs or feedstuffs or any other commodities.

Numerous cases have been presented to the board where vessels have touched at a United States port en route to a border neutral and carrying cargo which did not originate in the United States, but which is destined for a border neutral and will undoubtedly accrue to the benefit of the enemy.

This causes a serious embarrassment, and to avoid such embarrassment the board has adopted a policy calculated to prevent such cases arising in the future. This policy consists in stipulating that a vessel en route to non-European neutrals which touches at a United States port for bunker coal shall not be permitted to have bunker coal for the voyage unless she will agree to return to the United States with a cargo which would be approved by the board, or which is destined for a country other than a border neutral. The board is anxious to assist neutral vessels in continuing their service to South American and other non-European ports; but pending the receipt of the complete information which has been solicted from the border neutrals with respect to their resources and requirements, the board feels that they can properly pursue no other policy than the one outlined above.

Cuts Off Oil and Wheat.

The oilfields of Mexico and the wheat crops of South American countries are by this order cut off absolutely from Germany and the European neutrals unless the shippers who would aid them can obtain coal necessary for the operation of merchant vessels from some source other than the United States. The action will serve to tie up in American and other ports practically all of the neutral shipping unless the Governments involved agree to terms which the United States sets down, which will provide either for carrying only cargoes of which the Administrative Board approves or putting their vessels into trade channels which do not reach neutral Europe.

By taking this attitude the United States does not declare illegal the trade between Mexico, South American countries, and the European neutrals, but simply refuses to be a party thereto by supplying coal to the vessels engaged in it, a right which this Government as a belligerent reserves where it appears that the enemy is benefiting.

The terms of the announcement come as confirmation of the statements which have been published in THE TIMES that the United States has been far from satisfied with the trade agreements entered into by Germany and the neutral nations contiguous to her, and is unwilling to permit them to remain in effect if any action on the part of this country can prevent it.

No Hope for Dutch Ships.

As far as could be learned tonight there has been no change in connection with negotiations for the employment of the Dutch and other neutral ships loaded with grain and fodder which are now being held up in New York Harbor and other ports, but the United States is determined that none of them shall be permitted to sail under the present conditions. The Dutch, it is said, are unwilling to send the shipments to the Allies or to unload the vessels and place them in the coastwise trade, fearing the attitude which Germany might assume if aid were thus given to Germany's enemies.

The United States has not yet come to the point where it is willing to exercise the power of commandeer and take over the neutral tonnage. Unless some agreement is reached, however, it is entirely probable that all of the valuable cargoes will be ruined.

Chevalier van Rappard, who represents Holland here, was called into consultation late today by the State Department following the issuance of the bunker coal order, but no information could be obtained concerning what took place at the interview. It is known, however, that every effort is being made here to have the Dutch Government take some voluntary step which will make possible the use of the ships.

The Shipping Board is anxious to obtain ships to move 300,000 bales or more of wool from Australia which it is understood the English Government has consented to release for Government purposes here. Other commodities for the manufacture of explosives and the crops of some of the South American countries are available also if the ships can be obtained.

The Shipping Board hereafter will take part in the deliberations of the Exports Administrative Board, and Frank C. Munson, President of the Munson Steamship Lines, was designated today as the Shipping Board's representative by Chairman Edward N. Hurley. Since April 23 Mr. Munson has been a member of the Committee on Shipping of the Council of National Defense, to which he was appointed by the Secretary of War.

Neutrals Give No Assurance.

The new embargo move caused a sensation among the neutral diplomats today and resulted in several hasty conferences. Following these diplomatic talks the Exports Administrative Board, some time after the issuance of its order regarding bunker coal, made public a statement to the effect that no final decision had been reached. The statement contained the assertion that no decision had been formally reached because facts "repeatedly requested" of the neutrals had not been forthcoming. It read:

"The attention of the Exports Administrative Board has been called to a statement in the press in regard to the intentions of this Government in connection with the so-called world-wide embargo against neutrals. There is no basis whatever for any statement which implies that any final decision has been reached by the Exports Administrative Board. The matter is still under discussion with the neutrals and with the foreign Governments associated with us in the war. No final policy has as yet been decided upon by this Government because the board has not been able to obtain information from the Governments of the northern neutrals, repeatedly requested, as to the resources and requirements of the northern neutrals and other information necessary for intelligent action."

GERMANS COMPLAIN OF FRENCH RAIDERS

Can't Understand Attacks on 'Open Towns' — 'Barbarity,' Says an Official Telegram.

AMSTERDAM, Oct. 4.—A dispatch from Berlin here describes aerial raids on German towns Tuesday night. One airman penetrated as far as Dortmund and dropped six bombs. One person was killed.

Another airman dropped six bombs close to Feurbach, near Stuttgart. Small damage was done.

Ten airmen attacked Frankfort-on-Main. Most of the bombs fell harmlessly outside the town, but thirteen dropped in the city. Five persons were injured.

In Lorraine the industrial region was subjected to numerous attacks, but only slight success was attained.

Other attacks were directed against Rastapp and Baden-Baden, causing material damage.

A German official telegram says:

"For what purpose the French make these attacks on open German towns is not clear. In Rastapp there are no military objectives and the attacks on Türingen and Baden-Baden can only be considered the outcome of a blind desire for destruction. The sanatoria at Baden-Baden and the hospitals at Turingen contain numerous severely wounded men who are there seeking recovery.

"Even the French will not dare to assert that attacks on hospitals far behind the front are of military necessity. By such barbarity the will to persevere can only be strengthened among the German people."

PARIS, Oct. 4.—Another aerial raid over Germany was made last night by French aviators. The cities of Frankfort and Rastatt were bombed.

The following official announcement was given out:

DESTROY U-BOATS NOW MUCH MORE RAPIDLY

More Sunk in Last Three Months Than During Any Similar Period.

LONDON, Oct. 4.—A high official of the Admiralty said today that more German submarine boats had been sunk during the last three months than during any similar period.

ALLIES TO LAUNCH GREAT AIR WARFARE

Now Fully Equipped for Overwhelming the Foe in Reprisals for German Attacks.

DEMAND "EYE FOR AN EYE"

Announcement by Gen. Smuts Is Believed to Mark a Turning Point of Conflict.

LONDON, Oct. 4.—Great Britain is now amply ready for the air raid reprisals on Germany which have been decided upon. War planes of every type can now be produced by the Allies in far greater numbers than by the Central Powers, and it is asserted that the Allies are equipped for aggressive air warfare on a great scale.

The Cabinet's determination was reflected in a speech made today by Lieut. Gen. Smuts, formerly commander of the expedition against German East Africa and now a Privy Councilor, who is in close touch with the War Council. The occasion of the speech was a luncheon to Presidents of the Chambers of Commerce of the United Kingdom.

General Smuts said that Germany, "defeated on the battlefield and balked in the submarine campaign, is now in impotent rage more and more striking at us through our non-combatants, through our women and children." Aerial warfare against the defenseless was the new weapon, he said, and he predicted it would not only fail, but would prove to be a terrible boomerang.

"Last month," said General Smuts, "our naval and military airplanes dropped 207 tons of bombs behind the lines of the enemy. In the same period he dropped 4½ tons of bombs on London. In that month we bombed him on twenty-three days and on nineteen nights, chiefly attacking his airdromes and, as the figures show, damaging his machines and pitting his airdromes with shell holes. We also bombed his billets, trains, transports and railway stations, causing him the heaviest losses."

Referring to accounts in German newspapers of the demoralizing effects and the material damage wrought by the air raiders, General Smuts said:

"You know the material damage in these raids has been absolutely negligible, and as for the loss of life, many times more people have been killed or injured in bus accidents than in these air raids. But applying the principle of 'an eye for an eye and a tooth for a tooth,' we are most reluctantly forced to apply to the enemy the bombing policy which he has applied to us."

The total air losses in London last month, General Smuts said, were 51 persons killed and 247 injured.

"During the first nine months of this year," he continued, "the losses from air raids were 191 persons killed and 749 wounded, against 487 killed and 1,104 injured in traffic accidents in the metropolitan police area.

General Smuts said that the national temper, instead of weakening, was hardening under the strain of these terrors and abominations.

"If the Germans understood the psychology of this people," he said, "they would have no doubt about the results. Cowards become more cowardly under threat of danger, but brave men and women only become more determined. The people of London, after these raids, are thinking less of peace than ever before.

"But the Germans never have understood the psychology of their enemies, and so they will continue to blunder to the end of the chapter. It is wrong to think that we hitherto have had no means of carrying our aerial warfare into the enemy country. I already have said that ecer since the battle of the Somme we have had a clear military superiority in the air, and on a small scale we could have followed that up by bombing enemy centres as the enemy bombed London and other places in this country. But we felt that we should prepare for an air offensive on a large scale, and we were also anxious to avoid adding further horrors to a war already the most cruel in the history of the world."

After reiterating his statement that the Germans already were beaten and that their rulers knew it General Smuts said:

"Defeated and retiring everywhere, the enemy has singled out one opponent for an offensive blow. Germany is doing her best to strike down Russia. Great as have been the German blunders in the past, I am not sure that this is not her greatest and most fatal blunder of all. The invasion of Belgium and the submarine campaign were the colossal mistakes which cost Germany this war, and her striking down of Russia at this juncture may do more, and may even compromise her distant future.

"For in striking down Russia she is striking one who cannot defend herself, who like Germany was an autocracy but has received new consciousness from the sufferings of this terrible war; one who has reached some inward crisis of the soul, like the Soul on the way to Damascus, and now is being led, blindfolded and incapable of offensive action.

"Whatever the strict rights of the case may be the spirit of history will never forgive Germany. The liberty which is being painfully born in Russia will rise to vindicate Russia in the coming generation, and will be the most implacable enemy for future Germany."

General Smuts concluded with an expression of belief that the war already had been won and that the military, moral, and economic forces marshaled against Germany would prove invincible.

"But many a battle has gone wrong during the last half hour; many a victory has been forfeited or lost through indecision, wavering or loss of nerve at the end," he said. "What is required of you is the unalterable determination to see the struggle through, not in a selfish, imperialistic spirit, but in the conviction that this is the Armageddon in which the power of militarism must be slain forever, and to realize that it is not only our duty but our right and privilege to fight to the utmost to secure that victory."

The impending retaliation for the German air raids is the main feature of the London papers, made conspicuous with big headlines. No opposition is expressed, even in quarters where reprisals have been deprecated in the past, while elsewhere the decision is welcomed with enthusiasm, though qualified with questions as to why it has been so long delayed and with fears lest it be further delayed and carried out without sufficient energy.

It is asserted that the Government's decision does not indicate any sudden change in policy, the matter having been long under consideration, and that acquiescence to the popular demand is in no wise implied. The apparent delay in adopting the policy of retaliation was due, it is said, to considerations of construction and the necessity of keeping the requirements of the aviation arm on the western front supplied.

CZERNIN DEPRESSES PAN GERMAN HOPES

Fear of England Is Cited as Cause for Doubt of Policy of Disarmament.

WILSON ALSO DISTRUSTED

But Most of German People Are Believed to Welcome Austrian Statesman's Peace Bid.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, Oct. 4, (via London.)—Count Czernin's Budapest speech has been read by a majority of Germans with unreserved approval, but its effect on various party organs has been extraordinary and somewhat amusing. Reventlow, in the Deutsche Tagezeitung, remains silent, which leads to the supposition that Tirpitz, who is conducting the Fatheriand Party, is to be consulted first. It is suggested that perhaps the Pan Germans will begin to realize after this speech their complete isolation in Central Europe.

The Democratic Zeitung am Mittag says of Czernin's speech:

"No economic war, freedom of the seas in war and peace, no compensations, compulsory submission to courts of arbitration, international control of disarmament. Doesn't that make you think of Wilson's message of Jan. 22? Wilson, however, merely used these proposals as diplomatic preparations for a war already decided on, while here we have an honest program of peace that cannot be misinterpreted.

"Czernin himself admits it is fiction as yet, and he has no illusions as to the enormous efforts that must be made to translate his proposals into facts, but he is convinced that it can be done. It is good to hear a practical statesman pronounce views that heretofore were only heard from the lips of pacifists and Utopians. He suggests disarmament and courts of arbitration as a means for the creation of a peace atmosphere of which Kühlmann spoke so eloquently."

Doubts End of Wars of Revenge.

The Lokal-Anzeiger begins by praising Czernin's speech and says:

"Never has the Entente issued a document so full of deep, honest love for peace."

After stating that the speech is perhaps the most convincing proof of the complete understanding existing between Germany and her allies the Lokal-Anzeiger recapitulates in few words the essence of the speech and exclaims:

"What else is it that Czernin demands but what Nicholas II. hoped to realize by his peace conference at The Hague? The first paragraph of his program was that the powers should pledge themselves to abstain for a certain time from any increase of their forces on land and sea. The proceedings at the conference proved that not even this first point of Nicholas's program could be realized, if, for no other reason, on account of the differentiated geographical position of the various countries. The powers agreed unanimously that such a restriction of armaments was impossible.

"Czernin contends that there will be no wars of revenge in future, but Italy, starved out and burdened with an enormous war debt, will surely hate Austria worse than ever if she doesn't get at least Trieste and the Trentino. France, not having succeeded with her plans for the disannexation of Alsace-Lorraine will forever nourish thoughts of revenge and reconquest."

The Lokal-Anzeiger thinks that Czernin's idea of international courts of arbitration is problematical.

Fear of Britain's Navy.

The Vossische Zeitung expresses the opinion that Czernin's speech must be regarded as a supplement to speeches of Michaelis and Kühlmann and that Czernin actually meant to say things which his two German colleagues had left unsaid. It calls special attention to the energetic warning of the Austrian statesman that his offer of peace must not be regarded as permanent, but would certainly be liable to revision if not accepted within a reasonable time.

Coming to the section of the speech in which Czernin demands that restriction of armaments be extended to navies, the Vossische Zeitung says it is clear that he considers the freedom of the seas impossible so long as it is threatened by the English fleet and that it will always be while England is in possession of the most important of straits, narrows, and channels. The paper continues:

"After this war Europe must be placed upon a new basis of international law. After this it will be impossible to rely merely on international treaties. England has not respected any of her treaties which seemed in the least obstructive to her plans. While yet peace reigned in the world England, regardless of Belgian neutrality, prepared to place that country within the scope of her operations in case of war.

"Czernin believes international courts will be a sufficient base, but can it be expected that a great power will leave the welfare of her citizens and her own honor and existence in the hands of a court that can never be quite unbiased? If nations that seek their rights at court of arbitration have no longer any power behind them, those among them whose vitality is most felt in the world would always be the losers. Therefore it cannot be Czernin's intention to weaken the nations to that extent."

Predicts Federations of States.

The Vossische Zeitung thinks a great deal of what Czernin says about the readjustment of Europe, and believes that his remark that every nation would have to sacrifice some of its independence points clearly to the way of success. The larger number of European States which have common interests the less friction in Europe it adds. It thought the security of future Europe will rest on federations of States and other political structures that compass the interests of a majority of the European States.

The Tageblatt concurs with Czernin in nearly everything he says, adding:

"Czernin points to the great decision question of the future and to the true aim with logical clearness and with the foresight of a great statesman when he desires general disarmament. He will not be swayed by the one-sided military argument, or by cheap critics, who will refer to Utopia and pacifist dreams. He approaches this goal which must be reached. Our Pan Jermaeus and followers of the munition kings have invented the phrase of a 'starvation peace.' It will certainly be a starvation peace if they have their way but not if Count Czernin's wise advice is followed before the whole world is impoverished."

The Pan German Deutsche Zeitung, younger sister of the Deutsche Tageszeitung, says that Czernin wants to construct a new world. This paper is very careful not to wound the susceptibilities of Austria-Hungary too severely and refrains from the cheap sarcasm that usually comes so readily when it is pleased to abuse those who do not share Pan German ideas.

The Deutsch-Zeitung regrets "that Czernin wants all nations, even Germany and Austria, to sacrifice some of their independence. Will he tell the millions at the frontiers that these are the aims they are 'fighting for?'" it asks.

SUSPECT A REICHSTAG DEAL.

Chiefs Silenced, It Is Said, by Promise of Peace Move.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

THE HAGUE, Oct. 4.—The increasing vehemence of criticism by Austrian Socialists of German diplomacy and the recent speeches of Chancellor Michaelis and Foreign Secretary von Kühlmann makes the silence of German Social Democrats on the same subject a topic of inquiry. It is obvious that Austria gravely needs peace, as the German Centrist leader, Herr Erzberger, recently remarked, but at the same time it is considered remarkable that the Vienna Arbeiter Zeitung, which is in the main a supporter of the Germanic element as opposed to the Slav, should rally in strong attacks which continue daily and that this should represent an exclusively Viennese viewpoint.

Vorwärts recently said that the understanding was that peace negotiations might begin before the end of the war, although the Socialist Leipzeiger Zeitung ridicules this statment. It is thought that the majority parties in the Reichstag have been silenced by the Government secretly holding out hopes that peace negotiations may begin before the end of this year, and that the majority has been persuaded that a strongly united country would secure better terms than a disunited one. It will be remembered that great stress was laid in the Reichstag speeches on the necessity of a uniform domestic front at the present juncture.

Nevertheless there have been manifestations in Frankfort and Berlin in favor of peace by agreement on the lines of the Reichstag resolution of July 19 and in favor of a new direction of German policy. At both meetings Social Democrats, Liberals and Centrists spoke.

The Leipziger Volkszeitung sharply criticises recent proceedings in the Reichstag, saying that in spite of the disguise used all Germany knows that the Pan Germans and annexationists won an overwhelming victory.

HINDENBURG INVOKES UNITY.

"German Oaks Will Get Space," He Says in Reply to Congratulations.

AMSTERDAM, Oct. 4.—Field Marshal von Hindenburg has made a general reply to the congratulations sent to him on his seventieth birthday, which is published in the German press. It is in the form of an appeal to the German people to "remain united and not trouble about what may happen after the war, because this merely carries discord into our ranks and strengthens the hopes of our enemies.

"Be confident," says the Field Marshal, "that Germany will get what she needs for her security, and that both air and space will be given to the German oaks for their free development. Keep your muscles tense, your nerves firm, your eyes on the goal."

Important Speech by Italian Premier Expected Oct. 16.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 4.—Premier Boselli, at the convening of the Italian Parliament on Oct. 16, is expected to make an announcement calculated to have far-reaching results toward accentuating the Hungarian agitation for a separate peace.

Official advices reaching here intimate that the Premier's announcement will be of great importance and pledge anew Italy's determination to continue the war with vigor.

Teutons Give Up Their Advanced Trenches in One Section of the Rumanian Front.

PETROGRAD, Oct. 4.—The Germans on the southwestern front again are attempting to fraternize with the Russians by throwing boxes of tobacco and cigarettes into the Russian trenches and calling to the soldiers to "come out of the trenches."

The Russkaia Volya says in connection with the German attempts that "our soldiers are answering them with gunfire."

On the northern end of the Russian front, in the region of Jacobstadt, an artillery duel of great severity is in progress, says today's official statement. On the Rumanian front, in the Poliani sector, the enemy left his advanced trenches and retired to a more favorable position. The text of the communication follows:

Northern Front—In the region of Jacobstadt an intense artillery duel is proceeding. On the other sectors there have been fusillades and reconnoitring operations.

Western and Southwestern Fronts—There have been fusillades.

Rumanian Front—On the Poliani sector, eight miles northwest of Sotip, the enemy has left his advanced trenches and retired to a more favorable position. On the other sectors of this front all is quiet except for occasional feeble rifle and artillery duels.

Caucasus Front—There is nothing to report.

In the Baltic Sea Tuesday and Wednesday enemy hydroaeroplanes made several scouting raids on Cerel, on the Island of Oesel, and on Ainazhi, forty miles south of Pernau. Supplementary reports show that the explosions at Cerel killed seventy persons and wounded forty-four.

In the Black Sea, in the region of the Bosporus, our torpedo boats have sunk two barges loaded with coal. A tug and a third barge were captured and brought into Sebastopol. Thirty-nine Turks were made prisoner.

Aviation—An enemy aerial squadron has attacked the village of Krasno, southwest of Grishmalovka. Eighty bombs were dropped and three private soldiers were killed and four wounded. Several horses also were killed.

BERLIN, Oct. 4, (via London.)—The War Office today issued the following bulletin:

Eastern Theatre—Near Jacobstadt, Dvinsk, and Zbrocz, as well as at the angle of the Danube, near Galatz, the firing activity temporarily increased. Reconnoitering engagements took place at various points and ended to our advantage.

KERENSKY UNSHAKEN BY CONGRESS VOTE

Russian Premier Will Only Recognize the Formation of a Coalition Cabinet.

PETROGRAD, Oct. 4.—The Russkai Volya says the Government will recognize only the formation of a coalition Government. Premier Kerensky is reported to have resumed pourparliers with politicians and representatives of the bourgeois party.

The Vechernee Vremyaa says the list of new Ministers already has been drawn up and that Premier Kerensky has so informed the Workmen's and Soldiers' Delegates. The latter are said to have replied that they are opposed to any reconstruction of the Government until it has been authorized by the Congress.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 4.—The statement was made at the Russian Embassy today that if the Democratic Conference now in session at Petrograd had voted against the coalition government favored by the Kerensky Government this might produce a serious crisis, but the belief was expressed that the Government would weather any political storm that might be developed as a result of the conference.

While the conference with more than a thousand delegates represents a considerable section of the Russian people, it has no legal right to supplant the Government. Legally it may meet and pass resolution, but these will not necessarily bind the Government.

It is emphasized that the supreme political power resides in the Provisional Government until the Constituent Assembly is elected and convened, which will then be the source of the supreme power. The Provisional Government constitutes the only continuing power since the overthrow of the empire, and a challenge to it by the democratic conference may precipitate a clash.

The Embassy's advices do not yet make the situation in Petrograd clear, and it is believed that there has not been up to this time such a crystallization of opposition to or support of the provisional authorities as would warrant any prediction as to the outcome.

to capture some unarmed steamer which might better serve their purposes. It is a difficult search, as there are hundreds of islands in the South Pacific extending westward and northwestward from the Society group toward Australia, the Philippines, and Japan.

According to the dispatch from Tutuila, made public by the Navy Department tonight, the commander of the Seeadler, left the South Pacific island, where the Seeadler was marooned, in a motor sloop with two officers and two men, provided with machine guns, rifles, bombs and two months' supplies. The remainder of the Germans seized the French schooner Letuce a short time afterward, armed her and put to sea. They left behind 27 white and 17 native prisoners from the Seeadler.

Raider at Sea Nearly a Year.

For nearly a year the American three-masted schooner Pass of Balmaha, of [illegible] tons, captured by the Germans on her way from New York to Archangel in August, 1915, renamed the Seeadler, and converted into a commerce destroyer, has been the mystery of the southern seas, both Atlantic and Pacific.

Her new career first became known in March, 1917, when the survivors of eleven vessels she had sunk reached Rio de Janeiro. On March 22 the German Admiralty announced the safe completion of the second voyage of the raider Möwe and her bag of twenty-two steamers and five sailing vessels, and, as some of these appeared on the list of the victims of the Seeadler, the existence of the latter as a raider was at first doubted in maritime circles.

Interviews, however, with the survivors brought into Rio by the French bark Cambronne left no doubt. This ship had encountered the Seeadler on March 7, two-thirds of the way between Rio and the African coast, and had been forced to embark 268 men from the crews of ships previously captured by the raider.

The refitted Seeadler had left a German port in company with the Möwe and convoyed by a submarine on Dec. 22, 1916. The raiders ran the British blockade with their guns concealed in their holds. There were also a couple of gasoline launches to each ship. While the Möwe took up her position in the seaway off West Africa, the Seeadler turned southwest. The Seeadler got clear of the Strait of Gibraltar and then mounted two six-inch guns behind masked ports on her forecastle. On sighting a merchantman she would hoist the Norwegian flag, which would be replaced with the German naval ensign as soon as she got within firing range of her prey.

As she made only 12 knots an hour, she usually secured her victims by signaling that her engine had broken down or that she was short of water. To the Captain of each captured ship her commander presented a certificate setting forth the circumstances of the vessel's capture and destruction. They had a band on board the raider and when no craft was in sight it played and the enforced passengers enjoyed themselves above decks.

CONGRESS FINISHES WAR FUND PROGRAM

HIGHER RANK FOR PERSHING

Bliss and Bliss to Have Title of General—Several Corps Commanders to be Lieutenant Generals.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 4.—Congress completed its financial program today, when the House unanimously adopted the conference report on the $7,657,434,410 Urgent Deficiency Appropriation bill. It is said to be the greatest measure of the kind in the history of any Government. It finishes a program of expenditure such as no other Congress or Parliament ever has approached. Approximately $20,000,000,000 has been spent or authorized in expenditures or loans to the Allies. President Wilson is expected to sign the measure tomorrow.

A resolution offered in the House by Democratic Leader Kitchin to adjourn Congress at 3 o'clock on Saturday afternoon was unanimously adopted amid applause.

With the $10,000 maximum insurance plan restored, as urged by the Administration, and with an additional provision raising Major Gen. Pershing, commanding the American forces in France, and Major Gen. Bliss, Chief of Staff, to the rank of General, the Soldiers' and Sailors' Insurance bill, carrying an appropriation of $178,000,000, passed the Senate by a vote of 71 to 0.

Discussion of the conference report on the Deficiency Appropriation bill was perfunctory. Chairman Fitzgerald of the Appropriations Committee explained the slight changes which the measure has undergone since it left the House. The vote was vive voce, given vigorously. Its unanimous approval in both branches of Congress follows a similar record for the $11,500,000,000 War Bond bill.

The measure as perfected by the conferees carries $5,255,976,016.93 in direct appropriations, and various departments of the Government are authorized to enter into contracts which, if completed, will call for $2,410,458,393.50 additional.

Chairman Fitzgerald reported that the conferees' sessions were harmonious, with no disputes over the principles of the measure, and only a few as to details.

He was asked by Representative Longworth if he could estimate what sums would be asked of Congress in its regular December session. He replied he could not, but he thought many carmarks had been made which considerably overshoot the mark. He doubted if as much would be required as has been asked this session. But he said the whole situation depended on the number of men the nation had under arms and the policy of future loans to the Allies.

Enactment before adjournment of the House bill permitting foreign built vessels to enter the American coastwise trade is planned by Senate leaders. It will be considered tomorrow by the Senate Commerce Committee, which plans an immediate favorable report.

President Wilson sent a letter today to Senator Martin, Democratic leader, stating that the bill is urgently necessary, in view of the shortage of coastwise shipping, and Senate leaders arranged to get the bill through the Senate tomorrow, if possible, without amendment.

Two Generals and a number of Lieutenant Generals for the war army are authorized in a new clause added to the Insurance bill as it passed the Senate, and the House is expected to accept the provision without objection. The Lieutenant Generalships will go to army corps commanders and to high staff officers. The titles are for the war army and will not mean permanent advancement in grade for the officers holding them. Secretary Baker sent the bill to the Senate today with an urgent request that it be passed before adjournment.

An amendment to the Insurance bill by Senator Smoot provides that $25 a month shall be paid to widows of civil war and Spanish-American war veterans, as well as to the widows of men who may be killed in the present war. This was adopted 37 to 33. It will mean an increased cost to the Government of $3,500,000 annually and an advance of $15 a month to 4,141 Spanish war widows and $5 a month to 48,544 civil war widows.

Other amendments offered by the Utah Senator authorizing the Bureau of War Risk Insurance after the war to turn over to life insurance companies at Government expense policies held by soldiers and sailors and providing for the payment of $100 a month to men permanently incapacitated because of wounds or disease were rejected.

Reductions were made by the Senate in the House provisions for compensations paid for death or disability of soldiers and sailors or members of the Army and Navy Nurse Corps. Under the bill as it now stands a widow would receive $25 a month compared to $35 fixed by the House, while a widow with two children would receive $47.50, a reduction of $5. The other sections of the House bill were accepted with only minor changes, with the exception of the insurance section in which was inserted a provision which permits a soldier, not later than five years after the war ends, to convert his insurance without medical examination into any other form of insurance he may request.

The proposal of the Senate Finance Committee to reduce the maximum amount of insurance allowed to each soldier from $10,000 as passed by the House to $7,500 was rejected by a vote of 40 to 15.

Allowances to dependents of men at the front range from $15 a month for a wife to $32.50 for a wife and two children and $5 more for each additional child. One-half of each man's pay is to be retained by the Government for dependents or if there are none, to be paid to the man with interest on his discharge or to his heirs in event of his death.

SWANN NOW DEMANDS MAYOR MITCHEL'S DATA

Calls for All Information Gathered at the Re-examination of Primary Ballots.

District Attorney Swann yesterday caused a subpoena duces tecum to be served on Abram S. Gilbert, attorney for Mayor Mitchel in the recent re-examination of the ballots cast in the Republican primary, which ordered him to produce before the Grand Jury whatever data he may have collected. This action was taken by the District Attorney following the receipt of a letter from Mr. Gilbert saying that Mayor Mitchel had no information in his possession which could be of aid to the Grand Jury. The letter sent to Mr. Gilbert read in part:

"Inclosed find a subpoena duces tecum which calls for the production of all memoranda, tabulations, &c., made at the time of the recount which will be of service to the District Attorney's office in obtaining indictments of primary frauds. I know you had men checking up the results of the recount and making notes of the discrepancies in the various election districts. Let me have these, as they will save a great deal of time and trouble in the preparation of the cases for the Grand Jury."

Fourteen of the twenty-two inspectors indicted on Wednesday for making false returns have voluntarily surrendered themselves to the District Attorney, and have been admitted to bail. Warrants for the arrest of the remaining defendants were issued last night and given to detectives to serve. Those who surrendered yesterday were William Ray of 532 East Eighty-fourth Street, and Irving Lowenstein of 238 East Eighty-second Street, both Republicans of the Fifteenth Election District of the Fifteenth Assembly District; Moe Freedman of 18 East 106th Street, and Paul H. Rosenthal of 15 East 106th Street, Democrats, and Clarke James of 1,444 Park Avenue, Republican, all from the Fourth Election District of the Seventeenth Assembly District; Michael Silberstein of 20 West 111th Street, and Emanuel Semanasky of 2 East 108th Street, both Republicans of the Fifth Election District of the Seventeenth Assembly District; Benjamin Horwitz of 1,815 Seventh Avenue and Adolph L. Simon of the same address, Republicans from the Twenty-ninth Election District of the Seventeenth Assembly District, and Frank A. La Rocca, 106 East 117th Street, Republican from the Twenty-eighth Election District of the Eighteenth Assembly District.

All of the above named were arraigned before Judge Mulqueen in General Sessions, where they entered pleas of not guilty. In response to a motion made by Assistant District Attorney Neilson Olcott for an immediate trial of the defendants, Judge Mulqueen gave the election inspectors until Oct. 15 to present demurrers to the indictments or make the usual applications for permission to inspect the minutes of the Grand Jury.

Assistant District Attorney Olcott said that he had had a conference yesterday with ex-Senator Bennett, the successful candidate in the Republican primaries, from whom he said he had obtained some additional valuable data which would be laid before the Grand Jury today.

"Some of the data was very interesting, indeed," Mr. Olcott said. "For example, in the Sixth Election District of the Second Assembly District the official tally gave Bennett no votes and Mayor Mitchel 33. In the recent recount an inspection of the ballots disclosed twenty-five erasures before the name of Mr. Bennett. No one can say that the failure to count these ballots correctly was the result of an honorable mistake."

Assistant District Attorney Wallace, who is aiding in the investigation, arranged yesterday for the printing of a thousand forms of the indictment such as were used in the cases presented against the twenty-two inspectors now facing trial. Mr. Wallace believed that it would be impossible to submit enough evidence today upon which the Grand Jury could vote indictments. He predicted that on Monday at least a hundred more men would be implicated in the alleged election frauds.

District Attorney Harry E. Lewis of Brooklyn yesterday began his inquiry into the recent primary. Assistant District Attorney Hurley was placed in charge of the investigation and a subpoena was served upon the Board of Elections to produce the ballot boxes of the Eighteenth, Twenty-first and Thirty-fifth Election Districts of the Twelfth Assembly District.

SAYS HYLAN STAYS AWAY.

"Haven't Seen Him Since He Was Nominated," Murphy Declares.

Judge John F. Hylan, Tammany candidate for Mayor, continued yesterday his policy of refusing to see reporters who called at his headquarters to ask his opinion regarding the issues of the campaign. All inquirers for the candidate were informed that he was busy working on the speech he was to deliver in Brooklyn. Charles F. Murphy, leader of Tammany Hall, was not so reticent. When the reporters informed the Chief that Judge Hylan could not be found, he said with a grin:

"You've got nothing on me. I haven't seen him since he was nominated."

In reply to a question as to whether Justice Cohalan was a member of the organization or had anything to do with Tammany Hall, Mr. Murphy said that the Justice had not been connected with the Hall since he was elected to the Supreme Court bench.

"Justice Cohalan," said Mr. Murphy, "has had nothing to do with the organization since he was elected a Supreme Court Justice. He left the organization when he was elected, as they all do, and has had nothing to do with it since."

Wife Sues Herbert Berri.

Herbert Berri, son of the late William Berri, and part owner of the Brooklyn Standard Union, has been made defendant in a suit for separation. This became known yesterday, when a motion was made before Justice Callaghan, in the Supreme Court, Brooklyn, to compel Mrs. Ethel Powell Berri, his wife, to make her complaint more definite. No papers were filed at the conclusion of the argument and the lawyers for both sides were instructed to submit them when they agree upon an amended form of complaint. Mrs. Berri charges her husband with cruel treatment.

UNTERMYER DENIES MAYOR'S CHARGES

Says Alleged Interview Which Mitchel Quoted Was a Fabrication.

EXPLAINS WARHEIT MATTER

Never Owned Stock in the Paper, but He Loaned Money to One of the Owners.

Samuel Untermyer issued a statement yesterday replying to the attack made upon him by Mayor Mitchel in his Cooper Union speech Wednesday night in which the Mayor said that not only had Mr. Untermyer conferred with Dumba and von Bernstorff, but that he had expressed himself in an interview that he was opposed to the United States sending young men "to fight for England, which has injured us as much as Germany has." Mr. Untermyer also issued a statement explaining the charge that he was the principal owner of the Warheit. Regarding the Mayor's attack at Cooper Union, Mr. Untermyer said:

"As I am about starting West at the personal request of Secretary McAdoo on a two weeks' speaking tour in aid of the Liberty Loan, I shall be too busy to give any further attention to the false and silly vaporings of the Mayor concerning me. My public record and speeches both before and after the war and the contributions that I and the members of my immediate family have made and are making in men and money must speak for themselves. They demonstrate that from the outbreak of the European war in 1914 to the present day I have been aggressively and consistently pro-American and a warm supporter of every Administration policy, domestic as well as foreign, including his Mexican policy, as I had been in fact long before President Wilson went before the Baltimore Convention in 1912, of which I was a delegate. It is outrageous and absurd to try to attach to me the reproach of being lukewarm in my patriotism in the face of all I and my family have done and are doing and shall proudly continue to do for our country.

Calls Interview a Falsehood.

"The alleged interview which the Mayor quotes from The Evening Telegram of April 5, 1917, is a fabrication from beginning to end. I had no such interview in words or substance, and it does not and never did in any respect represent my sentiments. It is contrary to my publicly expressed views for years past. The Mayor means by his veiled, misleading insinuation that he heard me make any such statement, which is what he intended to convey to the public without saying it, I regret to have to reply that he is uttering a willful falsehood, and that from his persistent misrepresentation of me I almost suspect that he knows more than I do about the alleged interview at the time when he was smarting under the exposure of his wicked assault upon the loyalty of Senator Wagner.

"At the time I am represented, in this alleged interview, as having criticised the sending of our men to the front I was, as I still am, the President of the American League of Jewish Patriots, which was organized while the Government was calling for volunteers and before the Selective Draft law was passed, for the purpose of aiding the Government in securing recruits for the army. Headquarters for enlistment and for a patriotic campaign were opened in various parts of the city and the movement was financed mainly by me.

"Every public utterance on my part is at variance with that alleged interview. Whether the Mayor, who says it represents a statement made by me while we were in the Senate Chamber during the Wagner investigation, inspired the 'interview' I do not know. It is one of his regrettable characteristics that whenever his arrogant and ungovernable temper betrays him into reviling those who dare oppose his schemes and those of his friends and drives him into slandering and abusing his opponents, after he cools off and realizes that he has perpetrated a great wrong, instead of making a manly retraction and apology, he always seeks to justify himself even though it be necessary to resort to further slander and fabrications in order to maintain his reckless assertions. The Mayor has great personal charm, but his makeup appears utterly devoid of a vestige of judicial temperament, and he does not know the meaning of fair dealing in playing his political game.

Had No Conference With Envoys.

"Mayor Mitchel next hurls at my head the heinous charge that while Dr. Dumba and Count von Bernstorff were the envoys of two great friendly powers I actually had a conference with them at my home and that 'as a result of one of these conferences' I gave the interview that he repeated, intimating, but not daring to assert, that he was present. We all know that Dr. Dumba was given his passports and left the country months before the war, and that Count von Bernstorff, of course, left when diplomatic relations were severed, which was some weeks before the war.

"In point of fact, although it is not of the slightest consequence and signifies nothing to any reasoning mind, there never was a conference of Dr. Dumba and Count von Bernstorff with me at my home or anywhere else, and I had not seen Count von Bernstorff for months prior to his departure. The only time he ever visited my home was in connection with the case of Dr. Buens of the Hamburg-American Line, in which I declined to accept a retainer, although the relations between our country and Germany were at that time entirely friendly. As heretofore stated, I had repeatedly and consistently refused to assume any professional relation to any foreign Government by accepting retainers, in the determination to keep myself entirely free to serve my country if trouble should arise.

"If these gentlemen had been singly or together at my home, as they were frequently during that time visitors in many patriotic homes of our leading citizens as welcome and honored guests, would that fact furnish any justification for the insulting, misleading, and asinine deduction the Mayor seems to draw? If that cheap method of slurring his opponents under cover of insinuation does not give the people an inkling into the true measure of the man behind a glib tongue the people must indeed be as blind as he foolishly believes them to be.

"Let me remind the Mayor that I am not the opposing candidate, and that if I were, it would not follow that I am disloyal to my country for daring to contest the election of so great a patriot as he proclaims himself to be.

"I do not mean to charge the Mayor with not being a patriot, although he has done nothing and sacrificed nothing to show it. Nor do I charge him with being a scoundrel. But while he is desperately trying to obscure the real issues of this campaign, which concern the wastefulness, snobbishness, extravagance, and inefficiency of his administration, and his intimate relation with that patriotic outfit known as Reynolds, Greve, and Bailey, et al., by the slogan 'I am a patriot,' (as though there were anything extraordinary about that, if it were true, and about which thinking men will soon begin to doubt if he keeps on exploiting it as his bid for office,) let me remind him lest he forget that the great Dr. Samuel Johnson once used these significant words: 'Patriotism is the last refuge of the scoundrel.'"

Regarding the story of his owning stock in the Warheit Mr. Untermyer said:

Not a Stockholder in Warheit.

"I have not now and never had the slightest financial or other interest in the Warheit. I have never seen the paper, and do not know where its office is located, or what are its policies or politics. I did not know that it was an applicant for or had received any part of the election advertising that has been distributed among the ten New York papers.

"One of my friends, Judge Levy, came to me with his friend, Mr. Miller, and asked me to lend him a small sum of money to buy Mr. Miller's minority interest, which I did long before there was any idea of our being concerned in the war, and solely as an action of friendship to Judge Levy. He personally furnished part of the money and I made a loan for the balance, which was not large. He has repaid part of the loan and has advised me that he is about to pay most of the balance. I am reminded that when the loan was made I was on my way back from South America on the warship Tennessee, where I had gone as a member of the International High Commission, and that my Secretary arranged the matter pursuant to instructions I had left some months before, that Judge Levy was to have a loan whenever he applied for it. That is the whole story.

"At the time Judge Levy bought Mr. Miller's stock in the Warheit it was being held as collateral for the same loan that I made to Judge Levy by one of the most prominent bankers, who had refused to continue it further for Mr. Miller, which I understand was the occasion of Mr. Miller's selling the stock to Judge Levy. It always represented a mere minority interest. Mr. Miller did not have control of the policy of the paper.

"Some years before that time and before the European war or any other war, Judge Levy brought Mr. Miller (who I understand is a member of the Mitchel Campaign Committee) to me and introduced him as his close friend and asked me to help him in connection with a publication known as the Jewish Leader, with which Mr. Miller, who was a stranger to me, was then concerned. I finally offered to do so again without buying any of the stock or taking an interest in the paper, out of friendship for Judge Levy, provided the control of the stock was placed in the hands of some one I knew until the loan could be repaid, as I did not care to hold it. Judge Levy reported to me that he would not permit me to lend him the money under any other conditions. The next thing I knew was the receipt of a letter from Mr. Miller to the effect that he would not part with the control. I had not the slightest interest in either transaction except to serve a friend."

Municipal Court Justice Aaron J. Levy issued a statement last night explaining his connection with the Jewish Warheit. He said in part:

"Radical agitators for many years have endeavored to inflame the Jewish people into an un-American and revolutionary spirit. I was apprehensive that something had to be done. I became associated with the Jewish Daily Warheit through the kindness of Mr. Untermyer in the idealistic hope that I should be able to assist in bringing our people to a higher realization of their duties and responsibilities to government.

"I have uniformly preached respect for law and order, and the Warheit has supported me in those efforts. The Warheit has been and still is one of the most constant and consistent advocates and champions of the American government among the foreign language press of this Republic. Before entering the war it 'did not love Caesar less but Rome more.' Then it was not so much pro-German as it was anti-Russian. Its sympathy naturally was with the persecuted Russian Jews. Since America became involved it has uniformly and forcefully supported the Government and sustained the President and Congress."

As proof of the Warheit's loyalty Justice Levy called attention to the paper's support of the Liberty Loans. He said that in the recent Americanization movement of the American Alliance for Labor and Democracy the Warheit had a representative at Minneapolis as a delegate.

GIRL MYSTERIOUSLY SLAIN.

Miss Bessie White Attacked at Night While Walking at Massena.

WATERTOWN, N. Y., Oct. 4.—Miss Bessie White, 22 years old, of Massena, was murdered by an unknown assailant last night in that village.

The body was found early this morning by a workman under a temporary wooden walk. The authorities are investigating.

Miss White was on her way to the business section from the home of E. F. McDonald, School Commissioner. Her route led past a new school building, the yard of which is littered with material and traversed by a temporary wooden walk. She was apparently attacked while passing the school grounds.

Residents near the school heard cries about 9 o'clock, but failed to make an investigation. The only marks on the body were a cut and bruise on the forehead, which appeared to have been caused by a blow.

Miss White was the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Moses White, whose home is at Maple Ridge, near Massena.

FACTS are the most radical things in the world to-day!

THE PUBLIC is forging ahead in circulation and influence not because its outlook is radical, nor because its editorials are merely brilliantly written. It is being read by wide-awake men and women all over the country because it has a firm grasp of the realities. In other words, it has the FACTS!

An editorial in THE PUBLIC is also NEWS. The writer of it did not start with a newspaper clipping and a theory and plaster one on the other to produce the result. He started with a special knowledge of his subject, a knowledge made possible by unusual facilities for keeping in close touch with the political, economic and social life of the Nation and the world.

We are not impartial. We are prejudiced, partisan, radical. But if you wish to prove that an editorial in THE PUBLIC is wrong, you will have to prove that something is wrong with our FACTS.

Brand Whitlock says of The Public:

You don't know what a comfort it is to get The Public. In the midst of all the horrors of the world it is the one thing I know of—aside from one's own conscience and the democratic principle down deep in our heart—by which to correct one's reckoning. It is a compass—never sensational, always calm and pointing in the same direction.

MITCHEL GETS MORE REPUBLICAN SUPPORT

C. B. HUBBELL FOR MAYOR

Head of State Prison Commission Says the Issues Remove the Situation from Partisan Politics.

The Mitchel-Fusion campaign managers said yesterday that a city-wide swing of popular approval has set in in favor of Mayor Mitchel's candidacy and that the Mayor's appeal for support on the ground of patriotism was lining up for him forces which there was no indication would be for him before he accepted a popular independent nomination. The Mayor's attacks upon Charles F. Murphy, William R. Hearst, and those opposed to President Wilson's war policy, it was said, have met with ready response and the Mayor has been urged to keep up this line of campaign until Election Day.

The change toward the Mayor has already set in among the Republicans, who bitterly opposed his renomination, according to Emory R. Buckner, the Mayor's campaign manager.

"The people of New York are now having a direct primary," said Mr. Buckner, "and the issues are patriotism and the return of Tammany rule. So strong is this issue that last night four Republican district committees by formal resolutions indorsed Mitchel for Mayor and repudiated the so-called recent primaries. It was pointed out by members of the Republican Party that such repudiation was not irregular because it has always been the policy of the Republican Party to stand for Fusion and nonpartisanship in municipal elections. Indeed, the Supreme Court had to tell the Democratic Party on one occasion that party regularity could not be determined by the stand of any party man in a municipal election.

"In the Coffey case the Court held that the only test of 'regular party standing' was State and national elections, and that a man could not be whipped out of his party by Court proceedings because he had failed to support his party nominees in a municipal election. These four Republican organizations that declared for Mitchel last night put out the first punch. The second punch was delivered when a delegation of labor men called on the Mayor and assured him of the support of labor in the coming election. Judge Seabury who was the Democratic candidate for Governor last year, also voted at this popular direct primary in favor of Mitchel. The tide is rising and the people of New York will see in the coming election the complete sweeping away of party lines."

C. B. Hubbell for Mitchel.

Charles Buckley Hubbell, Chairman of the State Commission on New Prisons, came out for the Mayor yesterday and sent the Mayor this letter, assuring the Mayor of his support:

> I have rather assumed that every good citizen of New York would find it unnecessary to assure you of his earnest hope for the continuance of a municipal administration that has already made one of the cleanest chapters in the history of New York. For my own satisfaction, however, I am sending this letter to assure you of my support and to express the hope that New York may have the benefit of your splendid service for another term.
> The issues that you have drawn remove the situation from partisan politics and address themselves, it seems to me, to the patriotism of this great and "no mean city."

ExSenator William M. Bennett, who defeated Mayor Mitchel in the Republican primaries, issued his first statement yesterday, since the recount of the primary vote showed that he was the victor. Mr. Bennett said:

"I see that the Tenth, Fifteenth and Eighteenth Assembly Districts at their local meetings of their County Committeemen last night indorsed Mr. Mitchel. With regard to those districts I simply desire to state that in the Fifteenth Assembly District the recount gave me a gain of 35 votes; in the Tenth I gained 38 votes and in the Eighteenth District I gained 150 votes. In the Tenth Assembly District, of which M. Schmeisel is the leader, there were errors in count in 21 out of the 40 election districts. The indorsement therefore, from these three districts comes from districts in which I was counted out to the extent of 223 votes, or almost enough by themselves to overcome the narrow margin of 335 which Mr. Mitchel had on the face of the returns. No wonder these districts are for Mitchel.

Hears of More Fraud.

"The recent Democratic Primary was more rotten than the Republican Primary. If the Democratic boxes are opened worse frauds would be discovered. I have information to the effect that in one election district in the Eighth Assembly District of Kings, 42 ballots were stuffed into the ballot box.

"I hereby pledge myself that this is the last dishonest primary that either the Democrats or Republicans will hold New York City in which for every man on Nov. 6, every vote counted for every man running at the election will be honestly counted for him.

"In addition, having been nominated by a direct appeal to the voters, I am going back to the voters and confidently predict that I shall carry every borough in New York on Election Day. They are going to help me to stamp out these frauds and bring about a situation in New York City yin which for every man there shall be one vote and every vote shall be counted."

Albert E. Seibert, a lawyer, who wrote Mayor Mitchel that he was for his re-election sent a letter to Mr. Bennett yesterday in which he said:

"A lifelong Republican writes this to you. If you value membership in the Republican Party as highly as I do, you will do nothing to aid Tammany Hall, now and always the representative of the vicious in politics and of every base influence in our city. This is not a Republican city. You cannot be elected, Mr. Mitchel can be. He has made good as Mayor, and as an exponent of straight Americanism has made himself necessary to the city. My duty is to vote for him. Your duty is equally plain."

When asked to comment upon the speech of Representative Murray Hulbert in Congress attacking Mayor Mitchel, Chairman Buckner said:

"Although complaining that Mayor Mitchel is trying to make a national issue out of the municipal election, Mr. Hulbert attacks the Mayor on the floor of the House of Representatives. This shows, I think, that the municipal election is a national issue. Of course Mr. Hulbert will get his speech printed free in the Congressional Record and by sending it to all of his constituents, he makes it a campaign document."

COLONEL DENIES A REPORT.

Calls Tale of Supporting Mitchel for Governor an Invention.

Special to The New York Times.

OYSTER BAY, N. Y., Oct. 4.—Colonel Roosevelt when told of the publication of an alleged comment in which he is supposed to have stated that he was going to work for Mayor Mitchel for Governor, stated:

"It is a preposterous invention. There is no foundation to it at all. At no time while with Mr. Hughes or any one else has this subject been touched upon. The whole story is absolutely untrue."

MITCHEL GREETED BY BROOKLYN CROWDS

In a series of meetings in Brooklyn last night Mayor Mitchel resumed his attack on the pro-Germans of the recent past and the doubtful patriots of the present who are conspicuous among the backers of John F. Hylan. He got a ringing "No" from his audiences to the question:

"Do you want to have a Mayor like Thompson of Chicago?"

Mayor Mitchel said that the eyes of the nation were riveted on the election in New York City, and that cities cursed with pro-German and pacifist officials were praying that New York should not know a similar affliction.

At Saengerbund Hall, Smith and Schermerhorn Streets, the Mayor said: "I came here with particular satisfaction to continue this campaign for the maintenance of honest American government in the City of New York. The eyes of the country are on New York. The people of Chicago are asking, 'Do you want have a Mayor like Thompson?' The people of Philadelphia are asking, 'Do you want a Mayor like the Mayor of Philadelphia?' They want to know whether these forces that get their inspiration from Berlin are to guide the municipal government of New York for the next four years.

"Now, gentlemen, think well of what you are going to do in this campaign. It is for you to decide, 'Will it be Murphy and Murphyism, Hearst and the German influence, or a government inspired by the ideal of service and guided from one year's end to the other by a desire to serve the nation and guided by the ideals of America?'"

After defending and explaining the purchase of Dreamland Park and other parks by the city, Mayor Mitchel said that Hylan, if elected, would not be likely to give much attention to parks for the city's children.

"Mr. Hylan will have more to do," he continued, "going up to visit his friend in Eighty-sixth Street who writes editorials not to send our men to Europe when we declare war."

Mayor Mitchel was applauded several times when he described the striking improvements in the Police Department which had taken place under Commissioner Arthur Woods.

MINERS CONDEMN I. W. W.

Southern Coal Workers Express Loyalty to the Government.

KNOXVILLE, Tenn., Oct. 4.—The convention of United Mine Workers of America, in East Tennessee and southeastern Kentucky here today formally ratified the agreement entered into last week in Washington between representatives of the union and the coal operators of the district. Between 16,000 and 18,000 men will resume work.

The union strongly expressed its loyalty to the American Government and condemned the I. W. W. as an "illegitimate organization, trying to harass the Government in the successful prosecution of the war."

BENNETT LOSES IN REPUBLICAN VOTE

of mind. Every capital in Europe, every capital in every neutral State, every thinking man and woman in the United States, is looking to the election this Fall in the City of New York to determine whether or not our great people are behind the Government and the purposes for which this war is being fought. And when the verdict comes, whether true or not, if Mr. Mitchel is defeated, flags will be flung in the capitals of the Central Powers, and if he is elected there will be rejoicing throughout the world. This is the second city of the world, and the first in the Western Hemisphere. The City of New York has as many or more votes than any one of forty-four States of the Union, and she is rightly looked to, with her great cosmopolitan population, as a guide and a prophecy of public opinion in the United States. Now, can we as Republicans, placing this country first, putting our duty to it and to this great and beloved city far above anything else, thinking of the boys whom we have sent, some of whom are somewhere over there tonight waiting to hear the verdict of this, the only great city to speak this Fall upon the question which is uppermost in their minds?

Says the Issue Is Patriotism.

"Can we as Republicans hesitate to stand for the things that we believe will give courage to our people and our Government and our soldiers, and bring dismay to the ranks of our enemies? One thing more. It doesn't make any difference whether we want it or not, the issue of patriotism has been put into this campaign.

"I want this great party to place its belief in this city, and the good of this city above mere party regularity and name. I want it to stand for the things that are to make our country what it ought to be in this fight to civilization. I want it to remember that the man who directly or indirectly effects this result adversely to patriotism and free democracy and good government, whether in the nation, State, or city, is to be held to a double responsibility, and the party that follows him, in my opinion, will go down to deserved political oblivion. Therefore, Mr. Chairman, I hope that the resolution which has been offered, so far as it relates to Mr. Bennett, will be overwhelmingly defeated in this Republican Committee."

Job Hedges, the next speaker, said that less than three weeks ago it was the dominant belief among men in the city that Mr. Mitchel would succeed himself, but since then, he said, a new element had been injected, and he raised a laugh when he added that he was convinced there were more candidates for Mayor than he knew of. Regularity, he said, was the right of a man to call himself a Republican and be eligible.

He said that every county in the city had gone on record for the proposition of Fusion in this campaign, either by vote of its Executive Committee or of its County Committee, and that this was as much of a matter of regularity as the result at the primaries. Referring to the result of the primaries in Richmond, where Mr. Mitchel was defeated, Mr. Hedges said:

"I want to know if a garbage plant in Richmond can make a New York Republican regular."

Mr. Hedges went on:

"Every one in this room knows, if he knows anything, that probably one thousand of those votes for Bennett were cast for William S. Bennett. Everybody who wants to know it knows there were other reasons for many of the votes. It takes no analysis at all to see that the question has not been tried out, and yet the vote is there. Now we are asked in this resolution to reverse this County Committee's action before, to reverse its previous action of its Executive Committee, and by resolution of this body to repeal the action of the voters of the primaries in this county. Now, every one can say, 'Well, that leads to the same rule in every other county.' All right. We cannot help that. If they knew as much as we do, they would not have done as they did do."

Denies Bennett Is Regular.

Mr. Hedges denied that Mr. Bennett was a regular Republican, as he had often opposed a Republican candidate for office and in 1912 had turned Progressive.

"I have not any objection to Mr. Bennett desiring to be Mayor," said Mr. Hedges. "I have a decided objection to his saying to any Republican who has been a Republican before he was born, so far as party service goes, that he has a right to represent the Republican Party as the result of these past primaries."

Between Mitchel and Bennett, the speaker said that every one in the room knew that Mitchel was the only one who had a possible chance of winning. Albert J. Berwin, leader of the Seventh Assembly District, then took up the cudgels for Bennett. He said that his district, by a large majority, would support the vote cast for Mr. Bennett in the primary.

John M. Gregg, a colored member of the committee, then got the floor and, after attacking Mayor Mitchel for his stand on patriotism, he launched into the war and threw the hall into great confusion by declaring that any one had the right to sympathize with Germany.

There were cries of "Throw him out!" and several nearest the speaker made a movement as if to carry out the suggestion. There were cries of Mitchel all over the hall, and it was several minutes before order was restored. The speaker was allowed to continue a short time longer by promising not to discuss the war.

Joseph Levenson, leader of the First Assembly District, next took the platform and made a plea for the Bennett resolution. He said the Republicans had registered their approval of Mr. Bennett at the polls and it was the duty of the County Committee to indorse him. He said:

"The Borough of Manhattan notwithstanding all the talk about patriotism or lack of patriotism voted for Mitchel. The German sections of Yorkville and elsewhere in Manhattan passed up large votes for Mitchel. Mitchel carried every Assembly district of Manhattan. Mitchel carried Irish districts, and Jewish districts, and American districts, if you want to term some districts as such, carried German districts and Italian districts, so you cannot raise the issue of patriotism; but the fact is that the other boroughs of the greater city voting as Republicans refused to accept the dictation of New York County and said they did not want Mr. Mitchel. Now, if it is an issue of patriotism you must make your fight against Mr. Morris Hillquit and the Socialist Party, because that party stands for treason, and the issue in this fight is to keep down the Hillquit vote as a protest vote against our Government in this time of stress."

The next speaker was Senator Ogden L. Mills, now a Captain in the army, who has just returned from France. He made a strong plea for the committee to vote down the Bennett resolution and indorse the Mayor. He denied that Mayor Mitchel had created the patriotic issue. That was done, he said, by men like Senator La Follette, the I. W. W. conspiracy, the People's Council, the Non-Partisan League of North Dakota, and the seditious press, foreign and English, fighting the cause of the Kaiser.

He was loudly cheered when he added: "A county-wide propaganda carried on by the agents and the money of Germany to foster a premature peace created the patriotic issue, and the fact that throughout his public and private life John Purroy Mitchel has been a clean-cut, energetic, courageous, fighting American, creates that issue."

L. L. Honnigmann at this point made the motion that the resolution be laid on the table. A roll call was ordered, and when it was half through, Senator Mills insisted that many of the members misunderstood its purpose and did not know just what they were voting for. Chairman Samuel S. Koenig explained that the motion meant that the resolution to indorse Mr. Bennett would not be acted upon, and then many demanded that a new roll call be taken.

The hall was in the utmost confusion by this time, the Bennett supporters yelling for the roll call to proceed. Chairman Koenig finally obtained order and the new call was taken. The motion to table the resolution was lost by 203 votes and then the vote on the original resolution was taken. After it had been lost by 620 votes the meeting was adjourned.

Senator Mills said after the meeting that the Mitchel supporters would offer a Mitchel resolution at the next meeting of the committee on Oct. 18. He said the Mitchel men did not want to force the issue at this time, as there was a possibility of the committee indorsing the Mayor by a unanimous vote later.

JUDGE HYLAN OPENS FIGHT FOR BALLOTS

DECRIES THE WAR ISSUE

Declares His Purpose Is "to Banish Invisible Government and Boss Rule" from City Hall.

Judge John F. Hylan, Democratic candidate for Mayor, made the first speech of his campaign in Brooklyn in Prospect Hall last night. The speech itself did not make so great an impression as some of his friends had hoped, owing to the fact that Judge Hylan read it from manuscript, but before and after it was delivered the candidate received a great ovation from about 5,000 persons. There was a parade of several thousand men through South Brooklyn before the meeting, and there was much flag waving and red fire. When the candidate entered the hall the audience jumped to its feet and, led by several bands, sang "The Star-Spangled Banner" and waved thousands of small American flags.

The meeting was held under the auspices of the Democratic Fusion Committee, and many of the Democratic candidates made speeches. Judge Hylan entered the hall late, while Sheriff Alfred E. Smith was addressing the gathering, and the crowd was on its feet at once, cheering wildly. Bowing and smiling as he went, Judge Hylan made his way to the platform. The cheering lasted less than a minute.

The meeting was opened by Chairman Bell of the County Committee, who introduced ex-Controller Bird S. Coler, the Chairman of the meeting. Peter S. Brady, President of the Allied Printing Trades Association, was the first speaker. After him came Senator Daniel J. Griffin, the candidate for Sheriff.

Judge Hylan spoke, in part, as follows:

"Before we take up the issues of this campaign—the problems of municipal government and how they are to be met—I want to make one statement: It is a statement I have made in substance on three occasions in this campaign. I make it again so that no man can say he does not know where I stand.

"My first consideration is my country. It is the country for which my father fought to preserve the Union in the dark days of '61. Corporal Thomas F. Hylan, Company K, New York Volunteers, was one of the first to answer President Lincoln's call. It is the country to whose institutions and opportunity I owe all that I am. It is the country for which I now stand ready to give all that I have. Where my father stood in '61 I stand today, ready to uphold the hand of the President as he champions the rights of mankind."

Judge Hylan then quoted from his letter of acceptance and from a newspaper interview following his designation by the Democratic Fusion Committee, in which he decried the war as an issue in a municipal campaign. Then he went on:

"This constant attempt (on the part of Mr. Mitchel and his backers) to create the impression in the minds of the people that in some way I am disloyal to my own country is a base, contemptible, cowardly conspiracy to poison the minds of the people and to hide corruption and wrongdoing behind the American flag. Any man who stays at home and who attempts to seek votes by capitalizing the sacrifices made by men who do the actual fighting is the worst kind of a slacker.

"In accepting the nomination tendered him by his hand-picked Fusion Committee of 250—a nomination which the people refused him in the primaries—Mr. Mitchel said: 'The issues of this campaign are: Has my administration been honest, nonpartisan, uncontrolled, and businesslike?'

"Mr. Mitchel offered the issue, the people challenged it, and denied him the Republican nomination. Though to do so it was necessary to frustrate election frauds worse than those of the days of John Y. McKane.

Hylan Assails Mitchel.

"Having lost the nomination in spite of the debauchery of the first direct primary held for the office of Mayor in New York City, he now wraps himself and his corrupt administration in the folds of the American flag and he says: 'You who are patriotic citizens must take me, Rockefeller Reynolds, primary frauds, and all because if you do not I will claim that the people who vote against me are traitors.' Is there a spark of patriotism or honor in a man who will raise such a question?

"When the candidate for any office dares to intimate that his defeat is a sign that the great Metropolis of America is disloyal, he offers aid and comfort to the enemy with the same recklessness of the interest of the United States that characterizes the infamous attempt to fold the American flag around his Rockaway Point real estate deals. I say to you that to raise such an issue is the grossest disloyalty to the American people and their President. It is an insult to every man in this city. It is a deliberate and cunning attempt to blackjack men who are real patriots into voting for a candidate despite the corruption of his administration.

"The good old flag has been waved to save many a poor show, but this is the first time that a Mayor has resorted to waving the American flag in his endeavor to cover up and continue the scandalous administration he has given the citizens of this city for the last four years.

Judge Hylan then took up the City Hall meeting of last Monday at which Mayor Mitchel accepted an independent nomination, referred to Mr. Hughes as "the Rockefeller trustee and the city payroll advocate," and ended with the sentence:

"But let me tell you they cannot hide Mr. Reynolds behind Old Glory."

"When Mr. Mitchel talks about disloyalty," Mr. Hylan continued, "he does it because he does not want to talk about Reynolds. He wants the people to forget the primary frauds which were committed in his behalf. He wants the people to forget that he has turned the control of the education of their children over to the Rockefeller interests which committed outrages against the working people of this country in the mine fields of Colorado and in the refineries of Bayonne. He would like you to forget that little private dinner which he and the members of the 'Vagabondia' crew gave to his friend Reynolds. It is not pleasant to have the people talking about the fact that he dined with Reynolds at $140 a plate while the Police Department under the direction of the Mayor's Commissioner and a doctor in the pay of one of the Rockefeller agencies was teaching the people how to live on 25 cents a day.

"He would like to have the people of Brooklyn forget the fact that he denied us borough autonomy and that he refused to obey the plain mandate of the city charter and appoint a sanitary superintendent for the borough at a time when a terrible epidemic was killing and crippling thousands of our babies. Of course, they will tell you that the Mayor only a few weeks ago appointed a sanitary superintendent and declared in favor of borough autonomy. But when the Mayor did that he was very sick politically. In fact, the evidence then has shown it to be a political deathbed repentance.

"Everybody knows that this administration does not speak the truth. It is not conceivable that the majority of the members of the rank and file of the Republican Party who were not too utterly disgusted with the whole mess to go to the polls, could have voted to reject the Mayor, if they believed his profession of virtue, if they believed that his administration had been efficient, honest, decent and democratic.

"In the face of the primary fraud and recount, he appeared before the Republican General Committee of Kings County, whose constituents had emphatically and overwhelmingly condemned him, and told them the issue was 'clean government.' In clean government ever predicated upon dirty ballots? He says he did not want to run but the Moneybund forced him to run in the face of the people's rejection. Failing to impress with other issues, the Mayor now seeks election at the behest of the Moneybund on the ground that he is a 'War Mayor.'

"There is one figure in this campaign that looms above all others. That figure is the connecting link between the present Administration and the Moneybund whose every order the Mayor has obediently carried out. That man is the intimate friend of the Mayor, and now under indictment."

Digressing for a moment to assert that "the Mayor has played into the hands of the foundations and has turned our public schools over to the domination of the Rockefeller interest" Judge Hylan took up the subject of municipal ownership.

Praises Municipal Ownership.

"The greatest service," he said, "that can be performed for the people of this city is the instituting of municipal ownership and operation of our public utilities. If the people control these public service corporations invisible government will be swept aside. The agents of invisible government live for the purpose of securing special privilege at the expense of the people.

"The Rockefeller domination of our present city Government has for its primary object the protection and perpetuation of license and oppression of the people. I stand for municipal ownership and operation of all the city's public utilities. Municipal ownership has stood the test. It has won its way and today is more widespread than ever before."

Judge Hylan quoted at length from one whom he described as a "celebrated writer on the subject of municipal ownership." In the city of New York, he continued, there were 102 public utility corporations. Then he went on, after telling of the revenues of the various corporations:

"When the people realize that John D. Rockefeller and a dozen other millionaires now backing Mayor Mitchel for re-election control these companies and are the chief beneficiaries of these immense revenues is there any one foolish enough to believe that they are in favor of municipal ownership or that their activities on behalf of Mayor Mitchel, Controller Prendergast, and their running mates are prompted by any other spirit than that of personal profit and personal interest in keeping the people of the city under corporate control, for which purpose they have found John Purroy Mitchel at all times a willing tool?

"These selfish owners of public utilities cannot hide their designs in the folds of our glorious flag. They tell you that the Mayor is a 'fighting Mayor' and they ask you to keep him on the job. Fighting for whom and on the job for whom? For Rockefeller, Reynolds, and the New York Central Railroad Company, fighting to obscure from the people's vision the iniquities of the Staten Island garbage contract given to William M. Greve, Reynolds's business associate. A contract which Greve says is worth $10,000,000 to them. Fighting to obscure from the people's vision the Dreamland scandal and the Rockaway scandal. Fighting for the New York Central, which has not yet given up hope of grabbing Riverside Park and water fronts along the Hudson valued at over $250,000,000. Fighting to prevent exposure of further scandals of which the people as yet know nothing. Fighting always against the people's interest and on behalf of the billionaire band which cries out that we must take Mitchel again or be branded a traitor city.

Explains His Purposes.

"My fight is to restore the City Government to the people. My fight is on behalf of our children and our children's children to retain for them an educational system of equal opportunity for all, free from the Rockefeller-Steel Trust control. My fight is to deport the tax-eating out-of-town fake experts. My fight is to banish invisible government and boss rule from the City Hall. My fight is to destroy dishonesty in the public service and build up a government for the people of this city which will give them a sane, economical, commonsense administration of the city's business.

"My fight is to take from the hands of monopoly the control of our public utilities and administer them for the profit of all the people. My fight is to drive out from the shadows where they lurk the wolves that have been preying upon the property owners and rent payers. My fight is to sweep out of the City Hall those who seek to perpetuate their profligacy, their misrule, and to make political capital out of a patriotism which is the birthright of us all." of the Summer have been, and the early Fall will be, devoted to this essential groundwork.

"United States airplanes are being constructed both in this country and abroad. Approximately one-fourth of the number soon needed will be made abroad.

"Provision has been made also for the manufacture of the many accessories necessary to aircraft service at the front. Sources of supply for machine guns, observation apparatus, cameras, scientific instruments of navigation and precision, and many other specialties of the aircraft art have been provided. Both in this country and abroad this work has been under direction of skilled men.

"The designing of the 'Liberty Motor,' previously referred to by the Secretary of War as probably the greatest single achievement of the war, has been accorded foreign recognition. Our allies have already asked for samples of these motors and are investigating the possibilities of quantity production in this country.

"The United States today is in practical control of many of the materials required for the manufacture of aircraft, both for this Government and its allies. Steps have been taken for the conservation and distribution of such materials and the great resources of this country.

"Under the direction of the Aircraft Production Board there is being accomplished an international standardization in the tests of materials and their specifications, so that through a unification of the demands upon this country there may be full utility of our resources.

"If the operations of the land forces of the country are directed by a General Staff the aviation service may lay claim to an 'International General Staff.' More than 30 of the air service experts of the allied nations have come to Washington, and are on regular duty with the officers of the army and navy air services and with the members of the aircraft production board. The best men of the air services of the allied countries have been loaned to this Government, and were sent here to aid in getting our aviation program under way with the fewest possible mistakes and the greatest economy in time.

"There has been a remarkably gratifying response to the call for aviators. This country has an unlimited supply of young men possessing courage, self-reliance, good judgment and decision—the things required in the air service. This service, appealing to both the imagination and patriotism of such young men, is today fitting thousands of Americans for flying.

"The ground schools conducted by several of our great universities are turning out cadets steadily. Twenty-four flying schools have been authorized and construction work is up to schedule.

"Realizing there would be a shortage in the beginning of American-built training planes, a successful substitute plan was evolved. Arrangement was made with the allied countries for the acceptance of our cadet students for final training upon foreign soil. These men are being trained in our uniforms and will be turned over as finished aviators to the fighting forces in France.

"American aviators are today in training in all the allied countries. They are now undergoing intensive training behind several of the battlefronts. The sending of great numbers of American aviators abroad, and the rapidity of training preparations at the flying schools in the United States—such as the one near Dayton—indicate the scope of the work of the aviation section since funds were made available for an army of aviators.

"There is practically no limit to the number of aerial fighters which the United States can, and will, furnish in the war for democracy. No time has been lost in experiments. The machines which have already proved successful will be reproduced in large numbers in this country. Through negotiations consummated through the Aircraft Board there has been established the principle of the free interchange of manufacturing and patent rights. There exists today the closest co-operation among the allied nations in sending a great aerial fleet above the battlefronts. When this nation's army moves up to participate in the fighting the eyes of her army will be ready.

"The Signal Corps and its staff of foreign advisers are well satisfied with the progress made since the designing of the 'Liberty Motor.' It is not possible to make public the details of the work accomplished. The War Department can only say that its earlier expectations and hopes for the consummation of our extensive aircraft program are being more than realized."

U. S. OFFICERS SEIZE OLD GERMAN PAPER

Freie Zeitung of Newark, Founded in 1858, Closed and Owners Arrested.

HELD UNDER ESPIONAGE ACT

Complaint Alleges Conspiracy to Promote Success of Enemy and Encourage Disloyalty.

Acting on complaint of Chief Postal Inspector Charles E. Entemann of Newark, United States Assistant District Attorney Charles F. Lynch and a number of Secret Service agents yesterday seized the publishing plant of the New Jersey Freie Zeitung, said to be one of the oldest German language papers in that State, and arrested its two owners and three editors. The five men gave their names as Benedict Prieth and Edwin S. Prieth, publishers, and William von Katzler, Frederick J. Hartmann, and Henry Waechter. They were arraigned before United States Commissioner Samuel Kessler and held in $5,000 bail for a hearing on Oct. 16.

It has been known that the Freie Zeitung, which was founded in 1858 by the father of the present publishers, has been under surveillance of the Federal authorities for several months. Complaints against the character of the editorials and the manner of presenting news have been frequently sent to Postmaster John F. Sinnott of Newark. As the result of preliminary investigations conducted by order of Postmaster General Burleson, the publishers were served on Sept. 26 with an order to show cause why their paper should not be barred from the mails because of its war attitude. This order was returnable in Washington today for argument.

Although United States Assistant District Attorney Lynch would not tell his reasons for making the raid in view of this post office case pending against the publishers, it is understood that an editorial in Tuesday's issue prompted the Government to take immediate action. Mr. Lynch also declined to comment on the effect action might have on the Washington proceedings.

The complaint filed by Chief Inspector Entemann alleged that the publishers of the Freie Zeitung had violated Section 3 of the Espionage act of June 15 of this year in that "they did unlawfully, knowingly, and willfully conspire to commit offenses against the United States to wit: They did willfully and unlawfully conspire to make and convey false reports and false statements with intent to interfere with the operation and success of the military and naval forces of the United States and to promote the success of its enemy, and they did willfully cause and attempt to cause insubordination and disloyalty and mutiny in the military and naval forces of the United States."

The acts on which the complaint was based occurred, it was stated, on Aug. 6, 12, 19, and 30 and Sept. 1, 2, 3, 4, 5, and 15 of this year.

While they were waiting to be arraigned before Commissioner Kessler, the Prieth brothers joked with bystanders about their arrest. They declared that they had always been loyal to the United States and had urged their readers to abide by the laws. As proof of the paper's loyalty in the past, the publishers said that in 1863 they were compelled to suspend publication for three days while they defended their office against an angry mob, which they declared took exception to editorials on the draft upholding the Government's position.

The Freie Zeitung is reported to have a circulation of 30,000, more than half of which was gained since the war began. The Federal agents removed a large auto truckload of documents and papers from the building.

DELUGE OF DEMANDS TO OUST LA FOLLETTE

Senate Committee Again Fails to Reach Decision—Effigy Hanged in Wisconsin.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 4.—Telegrams, letters and petitions to Senators advocating the expulsion of Senator La Follette continue to pour in, although none has been presented to the Senate for two days because the parliamentary situation prevents it.

Decision as to what action shall be taken on the petitions demanding expulsion was again postponed today by the Senate Committee on Privileges and Elections. Another meeting will be held tomorrow, when it is hoped to determine whether any action shall be taken, and if so whether before or after adjournment of the present session.

The question of a formal investigation and hearings upon Senator La Follette's speeches and statements was discussed. Several Senators were said to favor a resolution deploring his attitude and censuring him. More drastic action, such as expulsion or impeachment, it was said, is not seriously considered.

There was some sentiment in the committee for recommending investigation of Senator La Follette's speech before the Non-Partisan League at St. Paul. The committee virtually decided that there was no prima facie basis for extending any investigation, if one should be decided upon, to Senators Stone, Gronna or others named in the petitions.

SHEBOYGAN, Wis., Oct. 4.—Senator La Follette was hanged in effigy on a bridge just outside the city limits early today. The dummy, placarded with the Senator's name, was discovered by an automobilist, who notified the Sheriff. The figure was removed.

MADISON, Wis., Oct. 4.—City Superintendents of Schools, in annual State convention here today, adopted a resolution declaring that doctrines expressed by Senator La Follette were opposed to the ideals of liberty and democracy.

COLUMBUS, Ohio, Oct. 4.—Deportation of Senator La Follette and his supporters through the Allies' lines to Berlin because of their "treasonable utterances" was urged in a resolution received today by Governor Cox from the Executives' Club of Toledo, representing twenty-four clubs and associations in that city.

Special to The New York Times.

HARTFORD, Conn., Oct. 4.—At a meeting today of the State Council of Defense the following resolution was voted:

"That the United States Senators from Connecticut be informed that the Connecticut State Council of Defense is in hearty sympathy with the action of the Minnesota Committee of Public Safety in seeking to rid the Senate of enemies of this country, and, further, that a copy of this resolution be sent to all of Connecticut's representatives in Congress."

DON'T WANT HARDWICK.

Invitation to Speak at Millen, Ga., Raises Storm of Indignation.

Special to The New York Times.

MILLEN, Ga., Oct. 4.—The Democrats of Millen and Jenkins County object very seriously to the coming to Millen on Oct. 19 of United States Senator Thomas W. Hardwick. They object to it so seriously that they have taken occasion to let the people of Georgia know that he was not invited here through any action of any organization, political or otherwise.

His invitation went from the President of the Five County Fair, J. J. Burkhalter, who is also editor of The Millen News. He issued it because he thought a speech by the Senator would draw a crowd—and the money. He admits he did not consult the Democrats of the county about it.

E. G. Daniels, President of the Woodrow Wilson Club of Jenkins County, said today that he and other loyal Democrats of Millen and Jenkins County were amazed and indignant to learn that the Senator had been invited to attend the fair.

The Grand Jury of Burke County has adopted resolutions deploring the invitation and condemning the junior Senator as a man who "by his treasonable utterances and persistent antagonism to the war policy of our great President" has brought himself into disfavor throughout the country.

It is understood that the action of the Grand Jury in passing this resolution virtually means that Burke County will not participate in any manner whatsoever in the fair.

gave an informal opinion that the provision exempted the pay of Senators and Representatives. They pointed to the decision of the Supreme Court of the United States that a Representative in Congress was "an officer of the Government." This decision was rendered recently in the case of David Lamar, who had been convicted of violating a Federal law prohibiting the impersonation of a Federal officer. In telephone conversations with members of New York banking houses and railroads, Lamar had pretended that he was A. Mitchell Palmer, then a Representative from Pennsylvania. He appealed on the ground, among others, that Congressman Palmer was not an officer of the Government within the meaning of the law. The Supreme Court held otherwise.

Under this decision, in the opinion of Treasury experts, Senators and Representatives are "officers and employes under the United States." Therefore they are exempt as far as $1,500 of their official salaries is concerned from the payment of the 8 per cent. tax which they have imposed on professional and business men and salaried men earning more than $6,000 a year. It is also probable that the Treasury Department will hold that the various perquisites of Senators and Representatives are likewise exempt. These include mileage and allowance for stationery.

Congressmen Loath to Talk.

Representatives of THE TIMES found difficulty today in inducing members of Congress to discuss the application of the excess profits tax to individual incomes. They were trying to get away, and pleaded lack of time to go into the matter. But from various sources the story of how this provision came to be inserted behind the doors of the Conference Committee without consulting the Senate and the House is being pieced together.

The tax was imposed as the outgrowth of a protest in the conference committee against letting farmers go scot free from paying from the great profits they have made out of war prices part of the expenses of the Government, when others who have made war profits were compelled to contribute heavily to the treasury. This suggestion brought objection from members of the conference committee, who represented agricultural communities. But the feeling in the committee was such that the friends of the farmers had to compromise.

Foremost among them was Representative Claude Kitchin, Chairman of the Committee on Ways and Means, Democratic leader of the House, and Chairman of the House conferees. Mr. Kitchin was mentioned today as having had the tax on excess profits made applicable to occupational incomes to offset the tax on "his little farmers." Apparently the provision was a compromise. Some members of the conference thought the excess war profits of farmers should be taxed, and Mr. Kitchin insisted on having the tax made applicable to all occupations. One member of the Conference Committee said today that the real reason the provision was inserted was to reach lawyers and physicians who received big fees.

A curious feature of the whole transaction is that a member of the Conference Committee confessed today that he did not recall having heard any discussion in the sessions of the committee of the matter of applying the excess profits tax to the earnings of professional men. That it was discussed, however, there is no doubt. Other members of the conference testify to that. But this important transaction, affecting thousands of people throughout the country, seems to have been disposed of without causing some conferees to realize its widespread application and the failure to discriminate, as in Great Britain, between those who get a living by their own efforts and those whose income is derived from stocks, bonds, remittances, and other sources classified by the British Government as "unearned increment."

A member of the Conference Committee said yesterday that the 8 per cent. tax on earnings over $6,000 would be assessed against his salary as a Senator. Today experts of the Treasury Department interpret the exemption applied to "officers and employes under the United States" as relieving Senators and Representatives of paying the additional tax that they have imposed on private citizens who earn amounts annually in excess of $6,000.

Under the same exemption which will save money for Congressmen a member of the Cabinet is exempt from the payment into the Treasury of $480 a year. The Vice President of the United States and the Speaker of the House of Representatives are spared a like amount. Ambassadors of the United States will save $920. Major Generals of the army and senior Rear Admirals of the navy will profit by the thoughtfulness of the Senate and House conferees to the extent of $160. If the tax on salaries and earned professional and business incomes were applied to the salary of the President of the United States, he would be obliged to pay into the Treasury every year the sum of $5,520.

Thinks Intent Clear.

The Internal Revenue Commissioner's office has not undertaken to make any interpretation of the 8 per cent. excess profits tax on which the House and Senate conferees have agreed. The provision did not originate with the Internal Revenue Bureau and no special study of it has yet been made. An official of the bureau said tonight:

"We think the clause is very clear, whatever may be said of the wisdom or justice of it. It will be very simple to make regulations to put the law into operation. The point of difficulty if there be one in the law is to define just who is liable to the tax as having a trade or professional occupation. It is true, as the criticism commonly heard today puts it, that the tax is laid on workers and the drones seem to be allowed to go scot free. We must also admit, unpleasant as the fact appears, that we know of no good reason from any public point of view why officers of the Government or of the States should be exempted. If we were to venture a guess it would be that the exemption of members of Congress was the thing aimed at and to accomplish that it was necessary to take in with them all officers of the Government.

"It seems to be clear that the aim was to put a heavy tax on professional men who enjoy large fees, such for instance as big corporation lawyers. No doubt that this was one of the main considerations in the framing of the amendment. The Internal Revenue Bureau has had no time in the pressure of work connected with the vast amount of new taxation legislation to make any analysis of this new tax or its application.

"We do not know how much revenue would be derived by it, and we are not able now to say just how it would draw the line as to occupations. There is a question as to whether the new tax would apply to salaried men, as distinguished from men in business independently either in trade, or in the professions. Inasmuch as Government officers draw salaries and are expressly exempted, it would appear that it is the intent of Congress to put the tax on all men who draw salaries, and that they would be liable to be either in trade, or professionally occupied.

"Aside from the matter of drawing a few fine distinctions like these I have mentioned, the law seems to be a very clear one whatever may be thought of the burden that it lays on those who are to be taxed. It must be remembered that we are in a war; that the whole country is in it, and that the people generally must bear the burden of it. This new tax is one of the war burdens. It is the price we are paying for liberty and for the destruction of autocracy."

BUSINESS MEN ARE STIRRED.

Resentment Expressed Over Secret Method of Imposing Extra Levy.

The discovery of the "joker" in the new income tax law, which provides for an impost of 8 per cent. on the earnings of individuals and partnerships in excess of $6,000 a year, was a disturbing matter yesterday to lawyers, engineers, physicians, bank and corporation officers, and others who draw comfortable salaries. Inquiry in the financial district showed that while some men who had read the law carefully had noted the special tax, few realized its import. Many bankers and lawyers had not learned of it until the facts were presented in THE TIMES.

Coming as an additional factor of taxation, the "joker" worked to depress further than before the sentiment of investors and speculators toward securities. Liquidation of stocks and bonds was quickened in yesterday's market, and under a flow of selling orders greater than on any preceding day since early in September stocks declined two to six points. The average quotation for forty active bonds dropped to the lowest level in four years and more.

While opinions differed as to the way the 8 per cent. tax would be imposed, the view was held among practically all persons interviewed that the sections covering the special levy had been purposely inserted to make a heavy draft upon large salaries and fees. The secret manner in which the impost was decided upon in the Conference Committee was condemned, as was also the purpose of penalizing the fruits of individual labor and enterprise. Deep resentment was evident in many quarters because of the apparent discrimination the tax would make against persons able to earn substantial sums, as compared with the freedom from the tax burden which others would enjoy who drew their incomes from investments.

"There is no ambiguity about the two sections of the law referring to the 8 per cent. tax," said F. S. Bangs of the law firm of Guthrie, Bangs & Van Sinderen, which has devoted much study to income tax legislation. "The provision for an 8 per cent. tax on earnings above $6,000 is emphatic. It lays a burden upon personal service, and is another example of the way in which a measure of great importance can be prepared in secret and passed through Congress without the public securing adequate knowledge about it. Personally, I would prefer to give my income to the United States Government rather than have the German Government take it from me, but at the same time more satisfactory means might be used in taxing the incomes of individuals than are indicated in Sections 200 and 209 of the war profits tax division of the statute.

"Section 200 undoubtedly states that the tax shall apply to all professions and occupations. The provision may be changed later, but as the law now reads—as it has been accepted by Congress—earnings of partnerships and individuals in excess of $6,000 per year are subject to 8 per cent tax."

"The individual profits tax provision written into the War Revenue bill in conference has occasioned a great deal of surprise and discussion in financial circles. Considerable uncertainty exists as to the purpose and application of the provision. The opinion prevails in some quarters that the provision was not intended to apply to salaries and professional fees. The belief also exists that if it is made to apply to them the provision may be repealed at the next session of Congress in December.

"Under the provision all professions and occupations of individuals are taxable. Doubtless, the necessity for increased revenue led Congress to select this as one of the most available subjects of taxation. On the other hand, there was probably much opposition to taxing businesses carried on on invested capital and permitting incomes derived from other businesses to be free from excess profits tax.

"As the law now stands, it is possible for salaries in excess of $6,000 to be taxed. But the taxation of salaries was discussed very little, if at all, prior to the enactment of the law, and if Congress intended to tax salaries, the idea evidently originated in the Conference Committee. It is more than likely, however, that the intention was to tax only professions and businesses which were carried on by individuals on their own account. If this was the intention of Congress, and the law is interpreted to include the taxation of salaries, the situation can be relieved only by an amendment to the law. This might be enacted at the next session of Congress, without affecting the assessment of the excess profits tax for the year 1917, or the returns of income made between Jan. 1, 1918, and March 1, 1918, for income received for the year 1917."

A leading banker said he was glad the 8 per cent. tax had been included in the war tax law, as it would help draw the attention of the public to the many inequalities of the statute in respect to income and excess profits taxation.

"If expert advice was made use of by Congress in drawing up tax legislation," he asserted, "there would be fewer decisions like this. But that is not the way we do things. A law is prepared without public hearings, hurriedly enacted, and afterward it is found to be unfair to many persons."

It was pointed out in legal circles that the 8 per cent. tax would be particularly burdensome on small partnerships, including law and engineering firms, whose members worked together without any requirements as to capital. An incident was cited of a law firm in which a partner had a one-tenth interest. Normally his total yearly income was $3,000.

Under Section 200 of the war profits division of the new law the exemption to which the firm's income would be entitled would be $6,000, which would make the partner's individual exemption $000. The 8 per cent. tax on the balance of his earnings, $2,400, would be $192, a heavy drain upon an income of $3,000, particularly as he would have the income tax to meet, besides, on $1,000 or $2,000, depending upon whether he were married or single.

KENOSHA NASH WISCONSIN

We are glad to announce that we have secured the Nash selling franchise in this territory, because we believe in Nash Motors and its products.

In offering Nash products to our customers we feel sure that we are giving the best dollar for dollar investments.

The Nash name-plate is its own guarantee of merit.

It is the hall-mark of an organization of automobile experts headed by C. W. Nash, who has a record of 25 years' experience in building and selling fine carriages and motor cars.

Nash Motors' products now comprise four passenger cars and three trucks—all built 93 per cent complete within the walls of the 100-acre Nash plant.

This plant employs 3000 skilled mechanics. To its already modern equipment has been added a half million dollars' worth of new machinery.

Non-productive costs have been practically eliminated. Volume production on the Nash progressive plan of manufacture has been installed.

That means high quality produced at lowest possible cost. It means that for the same quality you buy in a Nash product you must pay appreciably more elsewhere.

Nash Passenger Cars

First, there is the perfected valve-in-head Nash Six—The car with the deep breathing motor. Because of the enthusiastic reception accorded this car by the buying public we advise placing your order now for this car, thus assuring early delivery.

Then, there is the Nash four-passenger roadster. This car also has the perfected valve-in-head motor. Roominess and comfort for the passengers has been the aim and achievement of its builders. Its popularity will be wide.

And the Nash Sedan for five passengers—a car of dignity and great utility. In these days of self-dependence, when one prefers to drive his own car, this Nash Sedan meets every need. For winter driving heavy plate glass windows convert it into a veritable limousine. For touring days the windows drop down into the doors, leaving a touring car with permanent top.

The Nash seven passenger model 671—formerly Jeffery six—improved and refined by Nash engineers, has been manufactured by the Nash Motors for the past year at Kenosha. This car is giving such satisfactory service in the hands of thousands of owners that it now bears the Nash name plate.

Nash Trucks

First of all there is the Nash Quad—formerly the Jeffery—the truck that drives, brakes and steers on all four wheels. Tremendous government demands for this truck make prompt delivery impossible at this time.

Two new Nash rear-drive trucks have lately been announced. One is a one-ton, the other two-ton. Both are worthy truck mates for the Nash Quad.

GIANTS IN CHICAGO READY FOR SERIES

New Yorkers Take No Chances in Practice Game with the Cubs and Lose, 9 to 5.

SCALPERS ARE STILL ACTIVE

Comiskey Would Give $10,000 Toward Purchase of Seats Now Held by Speculators.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Oct. 4.—The Giants dusted into Chicago this afternoon after a flying trip from Philadelphia, hurried straight to the National League Park, and were defeated in a warming up game with the Cubs by a score of 9 to 5. The Giants put up a pretty poor exhibition for a world series entry. It was so bad, in fact, that the White Sox players on hand to get a peep at McGraw's men left in disgust in the third inning and took it for granted that New York was reserving its tricks for a later display.

Chicago is buzzing with world's series chatter and the saddest man in town is Charles Comiskey, the Old Roman, who a few weeks ago could boast of having more friends than any man in the national game. Comiskey says that in the last few days he has lost more friends than he has made in his entire lifetime. His offices have been swamped with 200,000 requests for tickets, with less than 32,000 to fill the demand.

The White Sox owner said this afternoon that he would willingly pay $10,000 to buy up the tickets which have fallen into the hands of the speculators so that he can find out where the tickets came from and publish the names of those who gave the pasteboards into the hands of the scalpers.

Speculators are taking orders for tickets and assure patrons that they can fill the orders. There promises to be a ticket scandal here which will be more sweeping than any of the ticket mixups which have marred other world's series events.

Ask $60 for Series Tickets.

All identification cards for tickets were turned in today when the admissions were distributed. Late tonight the speculators had them and were filling their orders. Brazenly they are trying to corner all the tickets in sight. For box seats, costing $5 each, or $15 for the three games, they were asking $50 and $60. In spite of all precautions there seems to be no way to stop speculation, and a big scandal is sure to follow when the names are published showing where the speculators got their supply.

The betting on the series is brisk, but only the most ardent White Sox fans are offering odds. Most of the bets are being made at even money. There is a feeling here that the Sox cannot lose, and that Eddie Cicotte is going to be the same puzzle to McGraw's men as he has been to the best American League batters all season.

It became known this afternoon that neither McGraw nor the National League would make any protest against the so-called "shine ball," which is supposed to be Cicotte's ace. Most baseball men regard it as a myth, and as Ban Johnson, President of the American League, has given assurance that the knuckle ball delivery of the White Sox star is perfectly legal, no protest will be made.

Chicago fans are not worrying half so much about a possibility of the White Sox being defeated Saturday as they are losing sleep about how they are all going to get tickets to see the games. Many fans who have been faithful supporters of Comiskey and the American League for years have been left out in the cold and the only hope ahead is to get in line at the park tomorrow night.

White Sox Are Idle.

It rained so hard here last night that Comiskey Park was muddy and sticky, so Rowland's men did not risk getting out on the field. The pitchers and catchers put in a practice session just to keep in shape. Rowland will have his whole squad out tomorrow morning at 10 o'clock to put on the finishing touches before the big clash. The Giants will warm up at Comiskey Park some time in the afternoon.

As the sun field at Comiskey Park is right field it may necessitate a change in the Giants outfield by shifting Burns to right. Right field is also the sun field at Weeghman's Park, where the game was played this afternoon, and for a while Robertson was tried out in the sun field wearing smoked glasses. As this change would be liable to injure Robbie's value as a fielder, it is very likely that McGraw will send Burns to right and Robbie to left.

McGraw was anxious to get in a game this afternoon in spite of a wet field. He risked injury to his players in order to give them needed exercise. "Some of my players were pretty well fagged out a few weeks ago after the hard games with the Phillies and Brooklyn," said McGraw this afternoon, "and it was absolutely necessary to call them off. The rest which many of the regulars took did them a world of good, but it is just as important now to keep them constantly at work so as to keep them on edge. I want to give them as much work as possible right up to the day of the game. I don't want to risk the chance of any of them going back physically."

Before the game today McGraw pitched to his batters. He also had all his pitchers hard at work and the White Sox players saw the Giants doing more work in practice than they did after the game started. Perritt, Schupp, Benton, Tesreau and Sallee all did a lot of practice pitching. Demaree pitched the game against the Cubs and it is a sure bet that he will not be a starter in the classic, as the Cubs pounded him merrily all over the lot.

Vaughn Pounded by Giants.

The New York players started in the first inning by bombarding "Hippo Jim" Vaughn for four runs. The Giants regulars were all in the line up at the start. Burns singled and Herzog fouled to O'Farrell. Burns went to third on a wild pitch and Kauff got a pass. Zimmerman's double scored Burns and sent Kauff to third. Fletcher then poked a home run under the wire fence in left field, shooting over three tallies in a bunch.

The Cubs went at Demaree hard in their half of the first and four singles, an error by Jim Thorpe in right and a sacrifice hit gave them three of the runs back. After the Giants had scored another run in the third on Herzog's single, Kauff's double and Fletcher's sacrifice fly, the Cubs came back in the very next inning and batted all the way around, making six hits and four runs.

When this fusillade started the observing White Sox scouts decided that there was nothing to gain by watching that kind of baseball so they departed from the scene. They did not fool themselves, however, that the Giants are as bad as they appeared to be this afternoon, for "Kid" Gleason, Eddie Collins and Eddie Cicotte returned from Philadelphia with glowing accounts of the Giants' work.

Gleason sounded a note of danger to the players today and warned them against overconfidence. He said that the Giants were dangerous and the White Sox would have to be at their very best to beat them. There has been a danger of late that the White Sox players were holding the Giants too cheaply, and nothing would be more disastrous to the White Sox chances than a mistake of that kind.

The Cubs changed pitchers often. Nick Carter and Claude Hendrix took their turn against McGraw's men. Before the game was over McGraw had yanked out most of his regulars and used his second-string talent. Ross Young was in the game for a while and again performed so well that followers of the club regret the fact that the youngster is not eligible to play in the series.

Every train is bringing in baseball fans from all parts of the country. Bill Lange, the old Chicago outfielder, and Claude Rossman, the former Detroit first baseman, were fanning around the hotels today. The enthusiasm which fills the air is even greater than it used to be in the old days when the Cubs were winning world's championships.

LAST GAME TO SENATORS.

1916 American League Champions Lose Season's Final Contest.

BOSTON, Oct. 4.—Boston and Washington closed the American League season here today, with the visitors winning, 5 to 4. Shaw needed today's game to round out fifteen victories for a bonus of $500. The game was poorly played, with both sides hitting freely. Cooney's fielding was a feature.

STARS ON SOCCER ELEVEN.

Ambulance Team to Present International Experts in Game.

ALLENTOWN, Penn., Oct. 4.—Men of international reputation will be in the lineup for the United States Army Ambulance soccer team in the initial game of the season with the Fairview Field A. C. of Bethlehem tomorrow. The coach, John H. Love, and the Manager, Anthony Sanders, have both of them enviable records. Love, a versatile centre forward, received his training in England, where he captained in the Liverpool and District Monday Soccer League. He was later player-manager for the Brussels Racing Football Team of Belgium and, on coming to this country, he took charge of soccer at Princeton.

Sanders is well known to soccer enthusiasts through his connection with the Sparta F. C. of Holland. Ralph Ness, another centre forward, won his spurs with the Ready players of Christiania, Norway. J. W. Wells, who is to play left outside for the soldier team, is a product of Cornell University.

Weinert, hailing from Girard College, has been assigned inside left, while Clyde Sesse of Ohio will pair off at the other side. The University of Pennsylvania and Penn State College both have representatives on the team.

Three-Cushion Play Monday.

The Interstate Three-cushion League, with a field of fifteen starters, will open its championship season Monday and close May 8. On the road the experts will play twice at each stop. All the stars—Cannefax, Ellis, Kieckhefer, Maupome, Reiselt, Jackson, Heal, and McCourt—as well as the newcomers, George Moore, Jack Layton, Ray Palmer, and Tahall, the Spaniard, will play from scratch. Others will have the benefit of a handicap.

HEMPSTEAD NOT TO SEE CHICAGO GAMES

If there be an unusual number of superstitious or possibly temperamental players on the team which John McGraw starts against the White Sox at Chicago tomorrow, the first game of the world's series already is lost to New York. Many ball players and especially those on the Giants insist that precedent be followed with minute accuracy. And it is in just this point that one of the expected and usual parts of the big series will be lacking, as Harry N. Hempstead, President of the Giants, will not go to Chicago to see his team start the annual classic there.

Mr. Hempstead insists that he will exert all his long-distance power for victory and will implore fate or whatever it is that helps ball players achieve greatness to add a sting to the Giants' bats and strength to the pitcher's arm. Mr. Hempstead declares he is sacrificing a pleasure he has looked forward to for four years simply to assure New York patrons of the sport the best of protection and arrangements at the games to be played here Tuesday and Wednesday.

At the last minute it was found that some directing head was vitally needed here to take charge of the ticket arrangements. John B. Foster, Secretary of the club, was willing to handle them, but when asked point blank, Foster blinked a couple of times and admitted he would like to see the series. Eddie Brannick made no pretense of the fact that he wanted to be at the front to see the boys go over the top at Chicago. Brannick and Foster are in Chicago, which left it up to Mr. Hempstead to start his team under a big handicap.

It was announced by Mr. Hempstead yesterday that there would be no public sale of reserved seats. He declared that the 9,000 upper tier seats and box seats had been taken by members of the fourteen other clubs in the two leagues, friends of the contesting teams and patrons of the local game who annually buy seats for the season. There were so few reserved seats that it was found impossible to list any of them for the general public.

All the lower grand stand and bleachers seats at the Polo Grounds will be unreserved and will be sold on the day of each game. There are a trifle more than 25,000 of these seats. The gates will be opened at 9 A. M. on the morning of the game and seats will be sold on the idea of first come, first served. Only one seat will be sold to each person at the window, and the purchaser must agree to go into the ball park immediately after securing his or her ticket.

This arrangement, according to Mr. Hempstead, will preclude any speculation of tickets in this city and will deny New York a chance to have a ticket scandal such as seems to have excited Chicago during the last few days. Further to prevent any scalpers from working, Mr. Hempstead offers a reward of $250 for the arrest and conviction of any found illegally speculating in tickets.

Tickets will be sold at the Eighth Avenue entrances only, and admission to the upper grand stand reserved sections will be from the Speedway entrance to the grounds. Both the upper and lower ticket windows on the Eighth Avenue side of the park will be opened, but if the congestion gets too great the windows opposite the elevated station will be closed and tickets will be sold only from the ground floor windows. Mr. Hempstead advises all who want to purchase tickets who will ride to the grounds on the elevated to get off at 145th Street and Eighth Avenue and walk the rest of the way.

The games in New York will start promptly at 2 o'clock each afternoon. Two bands have been engaged to keep the early crowd from growing too restless.

ROSS LEADS TRADE GOLFERS

Has Best Net of Season in Tourney at Forest Hill.

A. H. Ross ascended to the leadership of the handicap class of the Eastern Trade Golf Association in the third and last tournament of the season of that organization at the Forest Hill Field Club yesterday. Ross had a net total for thirty-six holes of 142, which was several strokes better than any other of the hundred or more who played in the three affairs could accomplish. Ross made his bid for the laurels yesterday with 95, 30—65, for his first round, and 107, 30—77, for the afternoon journey of eighteen holes. The all-season bogey trophy went to C. S. Wood, who finished 4 down to the redoubtable Colonel.

In the play yesterday Ross's 95, 30—65, was the best net effort for eighteen holes, but the prize for this section of the affair went to L. A. Kelly with 89, 22—67, since it was a rule that no man could win more than one prize. B. W. Bennett had the second best eighteen-hole net card with 91, 22—69. W. L. Johnson was tied for third with L. G. Allen, each of whom had a net 70.

A special prize for the best tee shot at the third hole, a short carry over a gulley and a good one-shot hole, went to W. H. Babst, who dropped the ball within three feet of the cup and then holed his putt. J. B. Garfield collected tribute by accomplishing four birdies during the day, the largest number of any of the players. J. J. McKee and J. A. Donnelly won the best ball competition with 92, 30—62, and the best bogey attempt of the afternoon round was credited to F. W. Droatch, who finished 3 down. Red Cross medals were the prizes in all cases excepting in the all-season competitions.

The summaries:

Conejo Highbrow and Ridgeway Salonica Win at Danbury.

Special to The New York Times.

DANBURY, N. Y., Oct. 4.—German sheep dogs and fox terriers were among the principal classes judged at the bench show of the Danbury Fair today. In the former class Harras II. of Elmview, owned by John Gans, Jr., Staten Island, was first in winners' dogs with Carl, owned by W. C. Browning, Rye, N. Y., reserve. In winners' bitches, the first and reserve were Senta Von Roheluft and Hulda Von Maternhof, entries of Mr. Gans and Mr. Browning, respectively.

J. W. Weinberg's Albertonian Model won in the smooth-coated fox terrier class with Ch. Barnard's Chief, from the kennels of T. Rice Vaalck, reserve. In the female division Mr. Vaalck's Sabine Fernlike was the winner with Marbald Wireless, owned by M. S. Baldwin, N. Y., reserve. Highest honors in the wire-haired class went to Conejo Highbrow, owned by Mrs. Roy A. Rainey. She also won in winners' bitches with Ridgeway Salonica. The reserve dogs were A. Shaw McKeen's Ridgeway Dark Boy and Mr. Baldwin's Marbald Warsprite.

DODGERS FINISH SEVENTH.

Divide Double-Header and End Season Near Bottom.

The curtain on the National League playing season of 1917 was rung down at Ebbets Field yesterday when the Robins and the Boston Braves divided a double-header. It was a gloomy occasion for the adherents of the team across the bridge. Although they had the incentive of finishing sixth in the league if they won both games, the Robins failed to measure up to the occasion. After walking away with the opener by 5 to 1, the Dodgers dropped snugly into seventh place by calmly losing the night-cap encounter by 4 to 2.

Sherrod Smith gave the handful of optimistic spectators a chance for enthusiasm in the opening game. His effective efforts were aided by snappy fielding which discounted all but two of the seven hits Sherry allowed the invading tribe.

The Robins were unable to do any damage to the offerings of Scott, the Braves' twirler, until the sixth frame, when they lambasted him for three runs. Krueger and Smith singled and scored on Hy Myers's triple, while Hy scored on Casey Stengel's single. Another tally was registered in the seventh on a scratch infield hit, Scott's wild throw and a jumbling play in which Chief Meyers played the leading role, Jimmy Hickman coming home with the run. In the eighth Cutshaw tripled, scoring Zach Wheat, who had beat out an infield hit.

In the second encounter Artie Nehf, for Boston, was just as effective, as Sherrod Smith had been in the first game, and the Dodgers were decidedly tame. Boston runs were scored singly in the third, fourth, fifth and ninth innings, the Braves hitting Leon Cadore cleanly in each frame. In the eighth a pass to Krueger, a single by Cadore and Myers's sacrifice fly gave the Robins a run and they added another in the ninth on a single by Cutshaw, a pass to O'Rourke, and Krueger's single. With two on Cadore hit into a double play, ending the Robins' hope of sixth place.

O'DOWD WINS FINAL BOUT.

St. Paul Middleweight Knocks Out Loughlin Before Joining Army.

Mike O'Dowd, the St. Paul middleweight, made his last appearance in a boxing bout before he joins the military branch of the United States service, at the Clermont Sporting Club of Brooklyn, last night, and his final bout was a glorious success. Willie Loughlin, a capable middleweight of Philadelphia, essayed to box the "Fighting Irishman" for ten rounds, but one of O'Dowd's heavy right overhand swings laid Loughlin low for the full ten-second count before the second round had gone a minute and one-half.

O'Dowd boxed cautiously in the first round for about two minute, and then he went into Loughlin in his usual aggressive style and with effect. A right to the jaw dazed the Philadelphia boxer shortly before the bell, and he went down on his left knee. Loughlin was up in a flash, but O'Dowd tore right at him, and with a succession of blows, one of which was a clean right to the jaw, he sent the Philadelphian down for a count of nine. Loughlin was groggy when he got up, and just as the bell clanged he was floored again and had to be assisted to his corner.

Loughlin came up fairly fresh for the second session and jabbed and hooked O'Dowd cleverly, meanwhile keeping out of the way of the St. Paul lad's aggressive lunges. After the boxers had been working slightly more than a minute O'Dowd half spun his opponent around with a heavy right to the jaw, and Loughlin crumpled up on the floor of the ring to be counted out. It was several minutes before he was fully revived.

O'Dowd will leave this city today for his home in St. Paul, where he has been drafted into the national army. He will go to Camp Dodge, Des Moines, Iowa, where he will begin his training for real battles.

LEONARD TO MEET MORAN.

Champion Will Tackle New Orleans Lightweight Tonight.

Benny Leonard, world's lightweight champion, will endeavor to eliminate another rival this evening at the Harlem S. C. when he tackles Vic Moran, the New Orleans lightweight, in the principal ten-round bout. Moran has been one of Leonard's most persistent challengers since the latter acquired the lightweight title, his chief claim to recognition being the fact that he stood Leonard off for ten rounds last Winter, before the Harlem boxer had defeated Freddie Welsh for the title.

In the Leonard of today, however, Moran will face a different boxer than the Leonard of last Winter, and it would not be surprising if Leonard should add another knockout to his credit. To do this he will be forced to show his best, for Moran is sturdy and game, as he has displayed in his previous bouts here. In another ten-round bout Clay Turner, the Indian boxer, will oppose Jack London of Harlem.

Other bouts arranged for this evening are:

Freeport S. C., Long Island—New Al McCoy vs. Jack Coyne; Harry Condon vs. Sailor Joe Kelly. Both ten-round bouts.

Wanderers to Use Stadium.

Announcement was made yesterday that permission for the use of the City College Stadium at Amsterdam Avenue and 138th Street has been granted to the Overseas Wanderers Football Club, which won the second division of the New York State League last season. The Wanderers will play their home games at the Stadium, beginning Sunday afternoon, when they will open the league championship series by playing the Clan MacDonalds of Brooklyn.

BROOKS GOES OVER JUMPS TO RECORD

Mark for Aqueduct Steeplechase Course Lowered Once More—Favorites Fare Poorly.

For the third time during the Fall meeting at Aqueduct the record for the two-mile steeplechase course was broken when Joseph E. Davis's Brooks galloped in ten lengths in front of Mrs. G. H. Stetson's Ben Wyvis yesterday. The new mark of 4:08 4-5 was established in the Woodside Steeplechase Handicap, which was the feature of a rather poor card. Even the big race, with its added money of $1,000, failed to attract a representative field, and with three horses scratched the issue was fought out by the winner and Ben Wyvis, which turned the course in 4:10 4-5 on Sept. 22 and displaced the mark made by The Brook a few days earlier.

Since that time Brooks has beaten The Brook decisively, but this made little impression on those who make it a rule to support the jumpers trained by J. Howard Lewis. In consequence Ben Wyvis, an imported horse, was a 1 to 2 favorite when the pair started on their long journey. There never was a time that the favorite was in the hunt. Brooks, under the guidance of Nicklaus, set out to prove that his recent victory over The Brook was not the fluke that it was believed to be at the time. Brooks took all the jumps cleverly, and at all times maintained a safe lead.

Gillies, a cast-off from the Madden Stable, which has been trying to win a race all season, finally succeeded in getting down in front of the quartet which started in the selling handicap for all ages at a mile and a sixteenth. Brooklyn, which has finished well up in better company than he met yesterday, was installed favorite over the mediocre lot, but he met the fate of many other first-choices. Gillies jumped off with the lead, and it was not until well in the stretch that Brooklyn made his effort. This carried him to the front at the eighth pole, but he had no sooner got his head in front of Gillies than the latter was asked to do his best. It took a hard drive to land Gillies a length and a half in front of Brooklyn. Gillies ran in the colors of the Olympus Stable.

W. Cahill's Miss Kruter was the only favorite to score. The daughter of Transvaal had all her speed for the mile route, was easily the best of the half-dozen fillies, and had no difficulty in disposing of Wild Thyme at the finish.

R. D. Earle's Mirza was another to score his first victory of the season, but it was little to boast of, as in the field opposed to him Lady Little was the only one credited with winning brackets this year. It looked like a spot in which Allan Pinkerton's Andes might attain the success which he gains once a year, and he was the public choice. Hard luck followed Andes, however, as he bore out at the stretch turn.

A well-matched field of two-year-olds started in the last race, and after Trite and Ballymooney had made most of the pace, J. E. Widener's Trompe La Mort got up in time to win.

THREE STEVENS MEN HURT.

Hoboken Eleven Hard Hit on Eve of First Game.

The Stevens football squad was put through such an intensive scrimmage on Castle Point Field yesterday that three regulars were injured and may not be able to play against Haverford in the opening game of the season tomorrow.

Practice was under way less than half an hour when S. Johnson, playing at centre, was caught in a midfield rush and hurt. He sustained a strained back and twisted neck.

Then followed "Turkey" Heinen, an end, who fractured five ribs in a mixup in an open-field play. Immediately afterward Benjamin, while skirting an end, stumbled and broke his right ankle.

DISTANCE SET FOR RACE.

Omar Khayyam and Hourless Will Meet at Mile and a Quarter.

Special to The New York Times.

LAUREL, Md., Oct. 4.—Wilfred Viau's Omar Khayyam, champion of the three-year-olds, and Hourless, the handsome colt owned by August Belmont, will race for supremacy at Laurel Park next Thursday afternoon. Colonel Matt Winn of the Laurel management this afternoon announced the conditions for the match race between the two rivals. They will struggle for a purse of $10,000 in added money and a handsome silver loving cup donated by Mr. Edward B. McLean, the well-known Washington lover of the thoroughbreds. The distance is to be one mile and a quarter and both thoroughbreds are to carry 126 pounds.

It is agreed that the track shall be fast on the day the race is run. Should the course be slow next Thursday the race will be postponed to a date to be agreed upon later. The conditions were decided upon at a conference this afternoon at Laurel in which Colonel Winn, Richard F. Carman, trainer of Omar Khayyam, and Sam Hildreth, who conditions Mr. Belmont's horses, participated.

WELDSHIP IS TOP WEIGHT.

Great Jumper Has to Carry 166 Pounds in Piping Rock Event.

In addition to the Harbor Hill Cup for three-year-old jumpers, which will be the chief attraction at the opening of the Piping Rock meeting tomorrow, two steeplechase handicaps and two handicaps on the flat are on the program. Edward M. Weld's Weldship has been asked to carry top weight in both jumping events, being weighted by handicapper Frank Bryan at 166 for the Brook Championship trophy and at 164 for the Oak Ridge Cup.

The weights for the handicaps follow:

The Brook Championship Trophy, Steeplechase, 3-year-olds and upward; 2 miles.—Archdale, 133; Brooks, 141; Bet, 146; Cherry Malotte, 150; Crest Hill, 139; Eagle Thistle, 130; Maitre Corbeau, (imp.,) 151; No News, 130; Northwood, 136; Pebeto, 148; Peg o' My Heart, 130; Skibbereen, 146; St. Charlicote, 154; Stonewood, 135; Pigeonsthorpe, (imp.,) 132; Tetan, 139; Weldship, 166.

The Brookville Plate, 3-year-olds and upward; one and one-quarter miles. Buckboard, 140; Bond, (imp.,) 118; Dolly Madison, 115; Figinny, 133; Garbage, 138; Spearman, (imp.,) 117; Tetan, 126; Tener, 120; Thorn Bloom, (imp.,) 123.

The Oak Ridge Cup, Steeplechase, four-year-olds and upward; two and one-half miles.—Bet, 145; Brooks, 138; Belle of Bryn Mawr, 143; Crest Hill, 138; Maitre Corbeau, (imp.,) 150; Grey Leg, 135; Northwood, 134; No News, 130; Pigeonsthorpe, (imp.,) 132; Skibbereen, 146, St. Charlicote, 151; Syosset, 136; Stonewood, 134; Weldship, 164.

The Messenger Plate, 3-year-olds and upward; one and one-eighth miles.—Bond, (imp.,) 118; Buckboard, 140; Brand, (imp.,) 115; Figinny, 132; Garbage, 136; Jack Mount, (imp.,) 123; Minton China, (imp.,) 126; Neville 2nd, (imp.,) 126; Pollyanna, 120; Rhine Maiden, 137; Spearman, (imp.,) 115; The Decision, 130; Thorn Bloom, (imp.,) 122; Tener, 120.

WAR CLOUD FINISHES FIRST.

Macomber's Imported Son of Polymelus Wins at Laurel Track.

LAUREL, Md., Oct. 4.—A. K. Macomber's War Cloud, an imported son of Polymelus, was the victor in the Annapolis Stakes for two-year-olds this afternoon. There was $2,000 added money and consequently a first-class field went to the post, with War Cloud closing a slight favorite over Jack Hare, Jr., the top weight. Loftus got War Cloud away well, but had to ride his hardest to withstand the rush of Jack Hare, Jr., which just failed to get up. The Cleveland Stable's Matinée Idol finished third.

Mr. Macomber sent his crack two-year-old, Tracksend, against older horses in the Flight Handicap at six furlongs, for all ages. The youngster was well supported in the mutuels, but failed to get in the money. Victory rested with E. G. Vivell's Etruscan and R. F. Carman's Startling just beat Top o' Th' Morning for the place. One of the Quincy Stable's good things went over when Barry Shannon won the fifth race and Billy Oliver added materially to his bank roll by the victory of Judge Wingfield in the last race. The Judge paid $47.50 for $2.

TROTTING STAKE UNDECIDED

Transylvania Not Finished After Four Heats Are Raced.

LEXINGTON, Ky., Oct. 4.—The $5,000 Transylvania Stake, the feature of today's program at the Kentucky Trotting Horse Breeders' Association meeting, was unfinished at sundown, four heats having been trotted with four different heat winners, and the favorite, Early Dreams, standing best in the summary. Early Dreams finished tenth in the first heat, after a break. The favorite won the second heat after a close fight with Royal Mac. Royal Mac managed to win the third in a sharp battle with Early Dreams, while Ima Jay took the fourth from Early Dreams by a narrow margin.

The deciding heat of the Phoenix Hotel Free-for-All pacers was won by Miss Harris M. from William in 2:00¾, the time being the fastest of the year for a mare in a race. This is also a new record for Miss Harris M., and within a quarter of a second of the world's record for pacing mares. William was favored in the betting, and led until well into the stretch, when he was overpulled and passed by the mare.

TRAINING TABLE TO BE SET AT HARVARD

Twenty-one Crimson Players to Gather at 'Varsity Club for Breakfast Today.

Special to The New York Times.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Oct. 4.—A training table for the Harvard football team will be started tomorrow morning at the 'Varsity Club, where twenty-one members of the squad will gather for breakfast. The eleven had a hard scrimmage with the freshmen this afternoon which, after thirty minutes of play, resulted in a scoreless tie.

Once the 'Varsity worked the ball to the first year team's ten-yard mark only to lose it on an intercepted forward pass. Horween and Blanchard distinguished themselves during the jam down the field for the 'Varsity, while Church had one end run of twenty-five yards later in the scrimmage.

STIFF SCRIMMAGE AT N. Y. U.

Scrub Attack Discloses Weakness in the 'Varsity Line.

Signal drill and stiff scrimmage in the main composed the football practice at New York University yesterday. The signal drill was quite prolonged, especially for the 'Varsity. The scrimmage started with the ball in possession of the regulars. By means of some aggressive backfield work by Hammerschlag and crashing line plunges by Covello and Buckley the ball was soon in the shadow of the scrubs' goal line. A change in the regular backfield, following which Egan made a few wide end runs and Christopher lanced the opposing line, enabled the 'Varsity to cross the second team's goal line.

The ball was given to the scrubs and their offense disclosed several weak points in the 'Varsity line. On a fumble the ball went back to the regulars and from then on they kept the ball in their possession.

It was brought to light yesterday that both Hammerschlag and Finley, two of the most promising back field men, are ineligible because of studies and so cannot make the trip to Troy tonight where the Violet meets R. P. I. tomorrow in the first game of its season.

NEW FORDHAM BACKFIELD.

Erwig Will Be Missing in Game with Ambulance Eleven.

Although the Fordham eleven will enter the game minus the services of Bill Erwig, the fast half back, the Bronx players are fit and ready for the contest with the all-star ambulance eleven at Allentown this afternoon.

Coach McCaffery gave a light workout to the squad yesterday afternoon. The signal work was the snappiest seen at Fordham in some time, and the plays were run through smoothly and speedily. No scrimmage outside of a short dummy one was held.

On account of Erwig's absence several changes were made in the personnel of the backfield. Brennan will play quarter, Frisch and Dempsey the half back positions, and Colletti will play full back. Fitzpatrick will play left end instead of Golden.

Coach McCaffery will take a squad of twenty-two players on the trip. A number of rooters will accompany the team.

NEW END AT CORNELL.

Rubinstein, Second String Man, Shows Up Well in Practice.

Special to The New York Times.

ITHACA, N. Y., Oct. 4.—The Cornell football squad played on Schoellkopf Field for the first time this year today, and in a short twenty-minute scrimmage the 'Varsity scored a touchdown, Quarter Back Carey getting away for a forty-yard run. For the most part the second team held the 'Varsity well, also blocking several of Hoffman's punts.

Rubinstein, a second-string end, performed so valiantly that he may be started at the right wing against Oberlin Saturday instead of Harris. The latter and Colvin played the wings today. Wipperman and Ackerknecht were at tackles, Huntington and Swan guards, Reuther and A. Trowbridge centre, Carey quarter back, Hoffman and Van Horn half backs, and Pendleton full back.

FEW NEW PLAYS FOR UNION.

Coach Murray Prepares Team for Williams Game Tomorrow.

SCHENECTADY, Oct. 4.—Coach Murray has given few new plays to the Union team during the week, but has devoted his time to perfecting the team work on those already in use. The game last Saturday with St. Lawrence showed that in Captain Moynihan and Jones the Garnet has two very fast backs, who gain well through a broken field. The Union line is light and as yet no good kicker has been developed.

TWO TEAMS AT COLUMBIA.

Metcalf Has Large Squad of Players Seeking Positions.

Coach Metcalf put the two first-string squads at Columbia through a snappy signal practice yesterday, followed by a brisk scrimmage lasting about an hour. The teams were piloted by Miller and Lester. On Miller's team were Cochran and Weinstein as ends and Galvin as centre. In the backfield Rosen held down the position of fullback and Raimondo and Houlihan halfbacks.

Houlihan and Captain Cochran have been making some fine punts in the last few days. These two men probably will undertake about all of the kicking for the team.

ASK FEDERAL ACTION IN MARTINEZ CASE

Mexican Vice Consul's Disregard of Draft Law Is Reported to the Prosecutor.

1,000 DELINQUENTS HERE

Those Apprehended Hereafter Are to be Taken to Governors Island and Delivered Into Custody.

Roger B. Wood, in charge of the draft in New York, notified Assistant United States District Attorney John C. Knox yesterday afternoon that Jesus Martinez, the Mexican Vice Consul, who was called for examination by Board 145, had refused to comply with the provisions of the selective draft law, and asked him to take the proper action in the case. Under the law all men of draft age, whether citizens or aliens, must report for examination when called, and a failure to do so is a punishable offense. Martinez has been informed that as soon as he reports for examination and submits the affidavits required by law to prove his Mexican citizenship he will be exempted by the board, of which Charles H. Tuttle is the Chairman.

Martinez was first called for examination by Board 145 about three weeks ago. When Martinez received the card from the board, telling him to appear, Juan T. Burns, the Consul General of Mexico, took the matter in hand and ordered Martinez not to report. He wrote a letter to the board, in the course of which he said that "under no consideration will I allow him (Martinez) to humiliate himself or his country" through a compliance with the provisions of the selective draft law.

The board reported the facts to the State Department and to the draft officials in New York, and it was instructed to issue another summons to Martinez. Accordingly, the Mexican Vice Consul was ordered to appear at 9 o'clock yesterday morning. After the board had reported, late yesterday afternoon, that Martinez had not appeared, Mr. Wood telephoned to Mr. Knox and asked him to take whatever action might be necessary.

It became known yesterday that there are more than 1,000 draft delinquents from the 189 New York City districts. Department of Justice agents and the police have failed to find these men. Orders were issued yesterday that hereafter when a delinquent is arrested by either the Federal or city authorities he must be taken to Governors Island and turned over to the provost officers of the Eastern Department. Mr. Wood said last night that a reward of $50 would be paid for the delivery to the army authorities of any delinquent, no matter whether the man had been classed as a deserter or not. This order was issued last night:

"Effective this date, all delinquents, that is, men who have failed to report to their local boards for military duty and transportation to mobilization camp, when subsequently apprehended by the police, are to be taken to Fort Jay, Governors Island, and there delivered into the custody of the officer in charge."

Mr. Wood, last night, asked the police to arrest Maurice Weinstein, a drafted man from Board 13 in the Bronx, who for some days has been a patient in Fordham Hospital. It was said that the Government had been informed that Weinstein was feigning illness. Mr. Wood said that Weinstein probably would go to Camp Upton today.

CHINA MEDICAL BOARD STARTS INITIAL WORK

Report to Rockefeller Foundation Tells of Opening Pre-Medical School in Peking.

The China Medical Board of the Rockefeller Foundation in its annual report to the foundation describes the preliminary steps which have been taken in Chinese cities to make possible the great project undertaken by the foundation, which is that of promoting "the gradual and orderly development of a comprehensive and efficient system of medicine in China."

The main plan of the board is to establish at Peking and Shanghai medical schools which shall be of the same grade and character as the better medical schools of this country, but the creation of these institutions has been delayed because of the failure of Chinese schools to turn out students with sufficient grounding in science and general education to prepare them for courses in medicine. The first step at Peking has been to open a pre-medical school in order to supply the groundwork of education in which the graduates of Chinese schools and colleges are now lacking. The board granted $150,000 to the Tsinafu Union Medical College, which has been co-operating in furnishing the preliminary training to Chinese students.

Before the medical school is built by the China Medical Board, its work there will be carried on by the school and laboratories owned by the Chinese Red Cross Society. This plant was operated by the Harvard Medical School of China until July of 1916, when the Rockefeller board took it over.

While preparing for the founding of the two great schools the Rockefeller board has been giving assistance to various missionary societies co-operating in the plan for teaching modern medicine in China. During 1916 grants of money were made to the following missionary organizations: The American Baptist Foreign Mission Society, (North,) the Foreign Mission Board of the Southern Baptist Convention, the American Board of Commissioners for Foreign Missions, the Board of Foreign Missions of the Methodist Episcopal Church, (North,) the Board of Missions of the Methodist Episcopal Church, (South,) the Board of Foreign Missions of the Presbyterian Church of the United States of America, the Foreign Christian Mission Society, the London Missionary Society, the Church of Scotland Foreign Mission Committee, the Canton Christian College for the Canton Hospital, the Nanking Union Hospital, and the Huchow Union Hospital.

WASHINGTON SQ. PLAYERS.

The Washington Square Players will begin their second full season at the Comedy Theatre on the night of Monday, Oct. 29, and will again present a bill of four one-act plays. These will be "In the Zone," by Eugene O'Neill; "The Avenue," by Fenimore Merrill; "Blind Alleys," by Grace Latimer Wright, and "His Widow's Husband," by Jacinto Benavente. The first three are American and the last named has been translated from the Spanish by John G Underhill.

The Players will give five bills for their subscribers during the season, included in which will be several long plays. There will also be a number of special performances.

LOAN SALES MOUNT TO $175,000,000

| Endicott, Johnson & Co., Boston | 1,500,000 |
| Travelers' Insurance Co. of Hartford, Boston | 1,500,000 |

To Get Bonds "Over Counter."

A feature of the Second Liberty Loan not found in the first issue is that subscribers for an amount not in excess of $1,000 who pay in full before the books close on Oct. 27 will receive their bonds "over the counter." Louis F. Sailer, head of the Bond Issue Division of the Federal Reserve Bank, said yesterday that he hoped to have a supply of new 4 per cent. bonds by next Wednesday. Individual subscribers calling at the bank now and paying for the bonds will receive receipts which will entitle them to the bonds as soon as they are delivered from Washington.

Although Secretary McAdoo has not yet made an official announcement on the subject, it is understood that holders of the 3½ per cent. bonds or interim certificates of the First Liberty Loan will have the privilege of converting the 3½s into the 4s only during the period of six months beginning Nov. 15, the date of the new issues. They will, however, be permitted to make a conversion into the Third Liberty Loan under such terms and conditions as the Secretary may prescribe.

Various large corporations have made arrangements for the purchase of Liberty bonds by their employes on easy partial payment terms. The Equitable Life Assurance Society has sent letters to its 8,000 agents and employes, advising them that it would carry the bonds for them on the basis of periodic payments extending over five months. The New York Telephone Company has announced that it would arrange for the purchase of bonds by its employes on $1 a week basis, the company deducting $1 each week from the pay envelopes. Similar plans have been adopted by the Standard Oil, the General Electric, the United States Rubber, the American Bank Note, the Bethlehem Steel, the Western Electric, and the Westinghouse Electric Companies.

Clocks to Indicate Progress.

To show the public the progress of subscriptions to the war loan, twenty-seven clocks are to be erected in prominent locations throughout the city. One hand will indicate subscriptions reported for the entire country, while the other will show the amount raised in this district. The first of these clocks was placed yesterday on the Wall Street side of the Sub-Treasury. Other clocks will be erected at Broadway and Twenty-third Street, Fifth Avenue and Forty-second Street, and in Times Square.

The Women's Liberty Loan Committee has conceived the idea of erecting a miniature bank—a reproduction of the Sub-Treasury building—in Madison Square on the plot devoted to the Municipal Christmas tree. Work on this bank will begin today, and it will probably be ready by Monday, when it is expected that Theodore Roosevelt and the Mayor will make addresses at the opening ceremony. The bank will be open daily from 9 A. M. to 6 P. M. for the receipt of subscriptions, and all of the bank clerks will be women, who have volunteered their services to the committee. The women's organization has already established Liberty Bond booths in various parts of the city where they are receiving subscriptions.

With a vast series of special local organizations of officers and employes, the special Liberty Loan Committee on Railroads, headed by President Alfred H. Smith of the New York Central Lines, has launched its second nation-wide campaign to reach more than 1,500,000 transportation workers of all ranks. The annual wage earnings of this railroad army are approximately $1,500,000 or $4,000,000 a day.

Chairman Smith has called upon all railroad executives in the country to exhaust every effort to double the sales made to railroad workers in the first Liberty bond campaign, when 241,280 individual employes subscribed a total of $20,027,986. This amount was in addition to approximately $40,000,000 of bonds taken in large blocks by the railroad companies, and the wide scattering of the securities was made possible through the corporations' arrangement that employes make payments in monthly installments from their earnings.

Telegrams were sent to more than 500 railroad Presidents throughout the United States urging special organized efforts for the sale of the second Liberty Loan, and responses from railroad executives pledging hearty co-operation and the formation of special organizations for the bond selling have come in sufficient volume to indicate practically unanimous co-operation in the project.

Alvin W. Krech, President of the Equitable Trust Company, issued a statement yesterday declaring that the Liberty Loan bonds would always conform to the current money market and value of capital.

"If the world market says that 4 per cent. is a fair income from the highest type of investment security, i. e., the obligation of the United States Government, then the investor is going to get 4 per cent. on his money; but if the world declares, as evinced in its demands for capital, that the fair income from this security is at a higher rate, then the investor, through his conversion privilege in future issues is going to get that higher rate on his money," Mr. Krech said. "The Liberty Loan bond is the only security in the history of the world, as far as I know, which insures the investor that he will at all times receive a fair rate on his capital.

Hardship for Old-time Investors.

"The tremendous decline in the bond market of today is, of course, not due to the impairment of the properties which the bonds cover, but simply to a readjustment of the value of capital. Your investor in the old-line bonds must take his medicine and watch his securities decline as the readjustments in the money market occur, but in the future if he is fortunate enough or wise enough to be the owner of Liberty Loan bonds he will care little or nothing as to the readjustment in capital values."

John Mitchell, newly appointed Chairman of the New York State Food Control Commission, issued an appeal yesterday to the officers and members of the central bodies and local unions affiliated with the New York State Federation of Labor in his capacity as Secretary of the Federation, recommending that wage-earners undertake an active campaign for subscriptions to the Liberty Loan. "Organized labor in this emergency will demonstrate beyond doubt its devotion to the principles of freedom and democracy," he declared in his statement.

Every dollar taken in at the Vanderbilt Hotel today, whether for a room, cigar, a tip, or food, will be devoted to the purchase of Liberty Bonds. In reaching this decision Walter H. Marshall, the manager, stated that he believed that every New York hotel and other hotels throughout the United States would adopt a Liberty Bond day. This would result, he predicted, in fully $10,000,000 being subscribed to the issue.

"There are more than 5,000 hotels throughout the land that could well afford to invest some of their capital in this fashion," Mr. Marshall said. "In fact, the idea of the proceeds of a single day for every concern, whether hotel or otherwise, would not be a bad plan, and would result in arousing a tremendous enthusiasm and interest."

On the occasion of the floating of the first Liberty Loan Mr. Marshall made an extensive trip throughout the Southern States, arousing hotel men in the South to the necessity of participation, and through his efforts many hotels throughout the South have accepted Liberty Bonds in payment of hotel accounts.

One hundred and thirty-five thousand dollars was subscribed to the second Liberty Loan drive at the luncheon of the Rotary Club at the McAlpin Hotel yesterday by the 175 members in attendance. Allen D. Albert of Chicago, past President of the International Rotary Clubs, who has been called the "silver-tongued orator of the Rotarians," was the principal speaker and conducted the Loan subscription, calling the roll of those present. Following this, an impromptu bidding occurred when the members began buying lots for their wives, children, and grandchildren. District Attorney Swann and Assistant District Attorney John T. Dooling also spoke.

Liberty Loan Committee Issues an Appeal For Millions of Small Subscriptions for Bonds

New York, Oct. 4, 1917.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

At a meeting of the Liberty Loan Committee held this morning the following resolution was passed, ordered to be signed by every member of the committee and telegraphed to the editors of the twenty principal papers in the Second Federal Reserve District:
